Maureen fell silent abruptly.

The man backing her held equal standing with Townsend's associate, Adamson, in terms of influence.

However, their relationship lacked the closeness Townsend shared with Adamson, since Townsend and Adamson were related.

Maureen recognized her disadvantage against Townsend and felt lost.

With no path forward to acquire the primogem rocks, she decided to leave.

Just as she was prepared to leave, Marcelo Aguilar, Rosefinch Hospital's director, burst in with a frantic expression.

"Mr. Chapman!" he exclaimed. "A young man with exceptional medical skills arrived at our hospital today! His understanding of human anatomy surpasses even mine. I witnessed him effortlessly dissecting a heart on surveillance footage! He's a prodigy! If we're able to use him, our experiments will improve by leaps and bounds!"

Maureen paused and listened attentively.

Townsend, upon seeing Maureen's eavesdropping, didn't make her go away. Instead, he cast a cold stare at Marcelo and demanded in a low voice, "Enough talk. Where is he? Why wasn't he brought to me?"

Marcelo was momentarily stunned. He responded with an apologetic smile. "Mr. Chapman, I couldn't bring him in. I discovered he was with Shayla, who manages the Hoffman family's affairs. Shayla refused to acknowledge your name and insisted on leaving with him. How arrogant!"

Townsend's face broke into a playful smile upon hearing Shayla's name. He waved dismissively. "I know who you're referring to. You can leave now."

Marcelo was about to add fuel to the fire, but a glance at Townsend's cold eyes stopped him short. He quickly backed down in fear.

Marcelo reached the top floor and opened the door, ready to leave. However, he was met with the unexpected sight of Liam, Shayla, and Julie.

Recognition dawned on Marcelo's face as he spotted Liam. He pointed at Liam and stammered, "You... You..."

Remembering Townsend's presence, Marcelo turned to Townsend and shouted, "Mr. Chapman, the man I mentioned earlier is here! The one with the exceptional medical skills!"

Townsend was unfazed by Liam's uninvited arrival. "Let them in," he said.

Marcelo repeatedly nodded and ushered Liam and Shayla inside.

Townsend locked eyes with Shayla and sneered. "Tell me, what brings you here?"

Shayla directly met his gaze. "You're surely aware of the underground fighting ring, right? The competition where the four clans battled for ownership of the primogem rocks. Well, those primogem rocks are now in your possession. That's what I'm here to discuss. Our Flame Gang won the competition. As the winners, we believe we deserve a share of the primogem rocks."

Townsend's response was a laugh. He gestured towards Maureen and said, "Interesting! Why are both of you vying for the primogem rocks? Whom, in your opinion, should I give them to?"
