

Even After Death by Liling Champ

Even After Death by Liling Champ Chapter 1611-Henley paled in comparison to David in every aspect since they were young. He had been living under David's shadow since the day he was born.

The resentment he bore toward David wasn't something new.

Often, he wondered if the title of "business genius" would be his own once David was exterminated.

If it weren't for Douglas, David wouldn't have been able to come this far.

Henley was on cloud nine when he found out that David wasn't Douglas' biological son.

He thought, "Even if I can't perform better than him, my status is higher than him!"

However, his expression fell when Linus showed up.

Because even the status Henley was proud of was nothing in Linus' presence!

At that moment, everyone's attention was on Linus and David. No one cared about Graham and Henley.

Instead of revealing Olivia's matter, Linus took another approach. "Nice to meet you, David. I'm Linus Heath, your half-brother. Dad can't come to see you due to his special identity, so I've come in his stead."

"D-Dad..." David's eyes reddened.

In fact, David knew everything all along.

Ever since he could remember, he had been living with his mother. He asked her who his father was before.

Every time, she would caress his head and give him a warm smile.

When they met Douglas, she told David that that man was his father.

Douglas treated David well like his biological son. However, David clearly knew that Douglas wasn't his biological father.

Considering how his mother wasn't willing to tell him the truth, David figured that she had her reasons.

Hence, he no longer asked the question when he grew up.

Furthermore, Douglas treated him well. David thought that such a life wasn't bad.

He had never dreamed about meeting his true family at all. He didn't only have the Fordham family; he also had another family!

Noticing his vehement expression, Linus held his hand. "Dad was happy when he heard about you. No matter where you are, there's always a place for you at home."

Those words were for David, but they also served as a warning to the Fordhams.

No matter who David was, he would forever be one of the Heaths. The Heath family would protect him.

The Fordhams weren't powerful enough to go against the Heaths.

Who were the Heaths?

They were the head of a country.

Money and connections could be wielded as weapons in the most intense, but were they enough to confront the head of a country?

Would one's intelligence be enough for such a battle? No, because one would need munitions.

It would take a single order from the Heath family to oust all of the Fordhams.

Linus, representing the Heath family, was here to support David.

Having been in the industry for so many years, David knew the meaning behind Linus' words.

David was indebted to Douglas and took Douglas as his biological father.

Every decision he made was actually for the Fordham family.

Even though he was aware of Henley's hatred, it didn't bother him because he was the elder brother.

Indecisive; stubborn; petty; and stubborn-that was Henley.

There was something he had wished to achieve since he was young-to surpass David.

In order to prove his capability, he also built a company himself a long time ago.

However, given his character, it was easy for him to offend others!

His incapability made it worse, so David's incapability made it worse, so David always had to clean up his mess.

David helped Henley out in secret because he knew how egoistic Henley was.

In the end, Henley thought that his luck played a role whenever a crisis averted, believing that God was on his side.

He was confident that he could one day surpass David and prove to everyone how capable he was.

Even After Death by Liting Champ Chapter 1612-Henley grew up thinking that way. It even rubbed off on Graham, and he thought the same as well.

Graham would get jealous of his brothers who performed better than him.

That was why he chose to enter showbiz. Becoming a celebrity meant standing in the spotlight.

Yet, little did he know that David had been helping out behind the scenes so that he could hit it big.

Back then, Graham intentionally hid his identity as he wished to gain success himself.

However, it wasn't that easy to stand out in showbiz without connections.

It was David who secretly hired an excellent manager to approach Graham.

David also protected Graham from those illicit affairs in showbiz.

Even though Graham's vile temper had offended many people, David was there to clean the mess.

Not only did David ask someone to concoct a plan for Graham to be a huge star, but he also personally chose decent scripts for Graham. 1 As time went by, Graham became famous with zero scandals. His popularity never failed to top the list every year.

Henley and Graham were able to become successful because David was there to shore them up behind the scenes.

Meanwhile, Emery's family had always been into art, hence their apathy toward Douglas' assets.

As for Sawyer, he left the family to overseas to focus on his recuperation after his engagement with Janice was annulled.

Had it not been for David, the Fordham family would've fallen a long time ago.

This was also one of the reasons why Douglas favored David more.

Compared to his other wayward sons, David was the suitable heir.

Unfortunately, no one knew how much David sacrificed for the Fordham family.

When David was in hot water, Henley intended to make things difficult for Avery and tried to steal David's position instead of helping them!

Similar to Henley, Linus was David's half-brother, but he was different.

Linus hadn't even lived under the same roof as David before. Linus only found out about David's existence not long ago.

Yet, he was willing to travel so far just to support David!

Oh, the irony!

Henley, whom David did everything in his power to protect, gave him the coup de grace in the end.

David never expected his true family to show up. The warmth of gratitude blossomed in him.

The silent Jacqueline was flustered as well, unsure if Olivia's identity had already been revealed or not.

Things were getting out of her control.

Feeling overwhelmed, David didn't know what to say.

Avery said, "It must've been tiring to travel this far, Mr. Heath. Come, take travel this far, Mr. Heath, Come, take a seat. hope you lion & mind giving Us some time to take care of our family matter."

Linus gave him an appraising look. "I think you should call me 'Uncle' instead of that."

That alone brought them closer. Avery addressed Linus accordingly, "Uncle Linus."

Sean and Troy followed suit, making Linus break into a gentle smile You have anäunt as well. I'll introduce her to you guys someday."

The better Linus treated David's family, the more dreadfyl it wasito Henley's family. It was as if they weren't part of the family.

This was supposed to be the Fordhams' family matter; outsiders weren't supposed to join in.

However, Linus was another case simply due to his identity.

The bodyguards he brought along were robust and fierce-looking. The murderous intent was overflowing from them. 1 Just one look at them was enough to tell that they had been through special training.

Each one of them could easily go against a hundred people.

No one dared to drive Linus away.

“Don’t mind me. Go on.” Linus took a chair for himself. His expression was rigid, putting pressure on others.

