

Chapter 1043 No Corpse Left Intact

At the critical instant, Liam abruptly sensed a cold draft approaching from behind.

Responding promptly, he swiftly stepped to the side, narrowly evading the attack.

However, this interrupted him from absorbing Rohan's life force.

Whirling around, Liam found that it was none other than Townsend who had launched the attack.

After forcing Liam to dodge his attack, Townsend promptly advanced and swiftly pulled Rohan away.

Liam's expression turned grave when he saw Townsend approaching.

He glared at Rohan and said sternly, "Rohan, Townsend has no right to interfere in our duel. Anyway, you were already on the losing end. If we continue to fight, it will only end in your defeat. I only want Tyler and my son. Give them to me, and I will spare your life."

Rohan was gasping for breath, and he was visibly shaken.

Townsend watched Rohan's pathetic state and said

Townsend watched Rohan's pathetic state and said mockingly, "You seem to be in a bad shape. How does it feel to have your life force drained?"

Rohan grimaced and said, "Liam is a monster. I can't win against him! But..."

He then smirked at Liam and said scornfully, "Liam, you're too naive. Did you really think this is a duel? I'm simply toying with you. Did you really believe I'd hand those two over to you obediently? Well, let me tell you. Your fate was sealed the moment you entered the Duncan family's territory. Be prepared to meet your end today! And those women who tagged along with you won't escape, either!"

Liam remained calm in the face of Rohan's threats. He had already anticipated such a situation.

That was why he had retained his ace up his sleeve even when Rohan had previously pushed him to the edge.

Abruptly, a surge of crimson light engulfed Liam's form, unveiling his scarlet battle armor.

He had abstained from deploying the crimson armor until this moment, precisely for such a scenario.

Townsend and Rohan were taken aback by Liam's trump card.

Nevertheless, Rohan simply sneered, gesturing for his men to charge up the platform to halt Liam's progress while he and Townsend retreated.

Liam furrowed his brow at the advancing Duncan family elites, fully ready to confront those who posed an obstacle to him.

With seemingly effortless movements, Liam unleashed a series of strikes with his palms, and in the ensuing instant, the bones of those elites were shattered.

Liam displayed no mercy, swiftly traversing the stage and decisively striking down his enemies.

He then dashed towards the guards stationed to watch over Asher.

Although these guards were formidable, they were weak compared to Liam, who easily defeated them as he hurriedly got a hold of Asher.

Once Liam had secured Asher, he shouted hurriedly to Julie and Shayla, "Let's go!"

As Liam and his companions prepared to depart from the Duncan estate, Rohan and Townsend appeared disinterested in hindering their exit.

Instead, they smirked coldly and watched as they escaped with mockery.

Liam detected a sense of foreboding but couldn't dwell on it. His primary concern was leading his people to safety, away from the clutches of the Duncan family.

However, just as they were about to reach the exit, Rohan suddenly pulled out a remote control.

With a sinister grin, he said, "Liam, we've known each other for many years, and I believe it's time I gave you a surprise!"

As Rohan taunted, he pressed the button on the remote control and watched Liam's gaze turn desperate.
