

The Alpha: Claiming His Enemy's Daughter Novel Online Free

Chapter 601

601 THE NEWBORN AND THE PUNISHMENT

"That slut gave birth to a bastard!" Maria roared angrily. She was so mad, she was having a hard time to breath. She wanted to rip that woman's face with both of her hands. She wanted that swindler to die! 1

She had dedicated his time and energy to help her throughout the pregnancy and even risked everything to offend the luna of the pack, but for what?! She actually conceived someone else's baby and wanted to pass it as the alpha's! How vicious and stupid this woman was to think she could do it!

"You must kill that woman and hang her head on the spike! Hang here there!" Maria stood up, her eyes blazed with rage.

Yet, her rage was nothing compared to what Redmond felt at this moment when he heard how this old hag cursed at Sofia and his son!

His blood boiled and he was seeing red.

Anger ghosted under his skin, as his body trembled. He was about to shift again and shred Maria to pieces for saying something like that!

However, Jace saw it first and he jumped between him and Maria, just in case Redmond got his anger out of control.

"SHUT UP!" Jace roared, his voice demanded their attention, slightly distracted them from the hatred that was so thick in the air. "Sofia had deceived us by trying to pass the baby as the alpha's firstborn! She has committed a grief crime for doing so!"

"Yes! That's why she needed to be killed!"

"Hang her head!"

"Lash her to death!"

"Maim her limbs!" 2

All of them shouted angrily, suggesting the cruelest punishment possible that they could think of. Of course, they had a lot. The slavery taught them how to be cruel and they had gone through the same thing in the past, watching their fellow pack member died in the most horrendous way.

Hearing how they wanted to kill her, Sofia hugged her crying son tightly, she was so afraid as she cried as well. She didn't mean it in this way. She didn't mean to deceive them, she wanted the baby to be the alpha's too.

But right now, the alpha was not here and the only person, who stood by her was only the father of her child. Redmond had his back faced her, those broad shoulders were so tensed and she could feel the anger that rolled off his body. Weirdly, she found a little bit comfort in it.

At the very least, Redmond was not going to back down, he promised to make sure she would be alive. The alpha had spared her life too if she was willing to cooperate.

And now, the baby had been proven was not his, Sofia was left with the only option she had to keep her head intact.

"ENOUGH!" Jace snarled at all of them, forced them to shut their mouth, as he glared toward all the people in the room.

Ardand and the healers had scurried away, as they were too afraid to say anything related to this problem. Compared to the warrior, they were not very vocal to show their disappointment and anger.

"This situation has been informed to the alpha and we will wait what punishment she will receive!" Jace growled at them all, but this answered didn't satisfy them.

"We need to kill her, beta!"

"There is no need to wait for the alpha! We know the rule! The alpha will kill that woman eventually!"

"Kill her!"

"Kill her!"

"We must uphold justice!"

This was a nightmare, this was the most horrendous situation Sofia had ever experienced, this was even worst than when the pack was being attacked by the people from the Blue Moon pack and the royal warrior.

Surrounding by people, who wanted to kill you was horrifying, Sofia couldn't help it, but wet herself. She didn't even realize it...

"Do you want to go against the alpha's decision again!?" Jace barked at them viciously. "At first you tried to say how the alpha is so heartless to leave a woman, who was pregnant with his child alone! Have it crossed your mind the alpha wanted to make sure the baby was his before he claimed anything?! But you bunch of idiot jumped right away into a conclusion and claimed the baby as the alpha's!" 1

Maria and Kaz lowered their head, they were the loudest people, who wanted to kill Sofia, but now they didn't even dare to see the beta when his angry glared fell on the two of them.

"And you two! You rallied the people behind you and claimed her as the alpha's mistress when the alpha didn't say anything about it! You are so lucky to have your head still intact after countless time disregarding the alpha's decision and humiliated our luna!" Jace walked toward the warriors. "Now you want to disregard the alpha again!? By deliver the punishment without his permission?!" 1

Silent fell so hard inside the room, as they stopped screaming cruel thing how to kill Sofia.

"If you feel disappointed, that's what you got when you don't think with your head and only listened some rubbish! You listened to Kaz that the baby is the alpha's, even though he had never put his claim on the baby, neither to this woman!"

Kaz was shaking, he felt his chest tightened when he heard the truth in Jace's voice. The alpha had never said the baby was his, he had never regarded Sofia as well. Not even once he acknowledged Sofia. Kaz should have seen that. Cane was not so heartless to neglect his own flesh and blood...

"And now you want to go ahead and disregard the alpha again?! If you listened to Kaz more than our alpha, why don't you go ahead and make him your alpha instead?!" 2

Jace's last statement sent them to their knees, as they were trembling in fear. They wouldn't be so brazen enough to do such a thing, the thought would never cross their mind at all, because it was too harebrained.

"We will not dare to do such thing, beta!"

"We will not dare!"

Kaz and Maria pressed their forehead against the floor and they looked so pitiful when fear washed over them, as the flashes of what they had done appeared before their eyes.

Now they could see how wrong they were, the memories of what they had done scared them to death. The audacity they had was appalling.

"SCRAM ALL OF YOU! Before there is any word from the alpha, no one of you will do anything to her and the baby or else, I will count that as a betrayal and death is the only thing that suit a traitor!" Jace was enraged, his voice made them scrambled on their feet and immediately left the house. 1

"Nice speech," Redmond said sarcastically. "It will be great if you grace me with your presence earlier before they started whining."

"I didn't think the situation would be that bad, I was writing a report first."

"Yeah. Can't you see? I almost killed all of your warrior and they begged for my mercy?" Redmon didn't stop with his sarcasm.

There was only the three of them inside the bedroom with the crying baby and Jace's people were outside of the house, guarding this place, just in case the other warrior tried to barge in, which highly not likely after how Jace grinded them with his harsh words.

Jace rolled his eyes dramatically. "A 'thank you' will be nice for saving your ass, though."

"What should I thank for? Your people created their own illusion and now they are angry because reality kicked them in the ass. What delusion people you have in your pack, Jace." 3

Jace closed his eyes, he tried not to be provoked by Redmond's annoying words and changed the subject.

"You will go with them to the Riverside pack and wait there until further instruction from the alpha. A carriage will be here later at night."

"Okay," Redmond said without feeling enthusiastic at all and then glanced at the baby in Sofia's arms. "Can you do something to stop the baby from crying? How could that little thing have a loud voice?" He frowned. 3

"You are the father, why don't you carry your baby and calm him down?" .1

Redmond was deep in thought. "I have never carried a baby before. That thing is too fragile."

"That thing' is your baby, Redmond." Jace shook his head. In the end, he called someone to get a healer to take care of the baby. 1

"The baby must be hungry," Nea said, she was the healer, who had cleaned the baby before. "You need to feed him first, Sofia."

Sofia was too exhausted, she didn't know what to do. "I- I can't hold the baby."

"Let me help you," Nea said and brought the baby closer to her, as she pulled down the collar of her dress. "Let the baby latch on your breast."

Redmond was flabbergasted, he had never seen a baby being fed before, but it was Jace, who dragged him out of the bedroom.

"What are you staring at?"

"What?!" Redmond protested, he wanted to say he was the father, so what the problem with him watching his son was eating, but then the complaint died down in his throat.

It didn't take long before the baby stopped crying and fell asleep. Half an hour later, Nea came out and informed them that the mother and the baby had fallen asleep.

"But, I need help to clean her up, because I think... uhm. She wetted herself," she said sheepishly.

The Alpha: Claiming His Enemy's Daughter Novel Online Free

Chapter 602

602 THE NEWBORN AND THE PUNISHMENT (2)

"I can't believe it... the baby is not alphaCane's..." Nala said breathlessly, as Lou thrust her from behind very slowly. This merchant was so annoying, even when they were making love, he could find a way to annoy her to no end.

When Nala begged him to go faster, he would go even slower, which made her so mad, but she needed to keep her anger in check, just in case this eccentric merchant would kick her out and stopped taking care of her. It could happen, since he was very unpredictable. Nala couldn't read this man at all.

The more she tried to study him, the more confused she was.

But when Nala asked him to slow down a bit because she couldn't take it, he went even faster and then pulled out from her and finished it himself, which left her hanging with sexual frustration. It happened often, but sometime, when he was normal enough, the sex with him was not that bad. No, it was actually great, because he could be a considerate partner...

However, the problem was; this merchant was so rare to appear normal.

"Hm... that damned alpha..." Lou whispered to Nala's ear, he was vexed by the news. Cane must have planned all of this, that was why he didn't care about that pregnant woman, who claimed the baby was his.

He had never paid attention to the woman, who conceived his firstborn, instead of being happy, he actually neglected her. But then, knowing that alpha, Lou had this feeling that everything had been predetermined.

Cane rarely did something out of impulse or had no meaning at all, there must be more into it.

"Lou, faster please..." Nala whimpered, this man drove her crazy, but then she freaked out and growled in anger when Lou actually pulled out from her and finished it himself. "You bastard!" Nala was very frustrated with him at this point.

"What?" Lou smirked, he tilted his head, as he cleaned himself. "I don't want you to get pregnant. I do you a favor, you should thank me."

"If you don't want me to get pregnant, you shouldn't have fucked me in the first place! More so, I drink my tea! I don't want to get pregnant with your child too!" 2

"Ouch! That hurt my ego. Many women begged for my offsprings, for you not to bear my child, there must be something wrong with your head." Lou stared at Nala innocently and she hated it when he acted all naïve. It didn't suit him at all. "And for reminder, it was you, who were the one offered yourself to me, remember? If you don't like it, you can go. I have never told you to stay." 3

With that statement, Nala clamped her mouth. This merchant must know she had nowhere else to go, that's why he could say something like that so easily, knowing she wouldn't go anywhere.

"Sometime, you need to take care of yourself, you know." Lou winked at her and then drank his alcohol. It was almost midnight.

Meanwhile, Nala sat on the bed, her body was so hot, she felt very uncomfortable with this built up tension, but she was no longer in the mood to do anything about it and this feeling was so suck!

"Oh, I see you heal well. The medicine worked."

"Yes, thank you," Nala said with hard edge on her voice. She was grateful for Lou's attention about her scars, but this merchant so weird. She had never met someone like him before.

Yet, there was time when her heart was so warm when he paid attention to small thing she said, which was something no one had ever done to her before, such as; when she said she felt like she wanted to eat a certain meal because Sabian brought her the same thing again and again, and the next time, the meal was exactly how she wanted.

Lou was also generous with his gift, as he adorned her with rare diamond whenever he was in a good mood and she said the right thing that cheer him up.

"Hellooooo." Lou waved his hand in front of Nala's face, because she didn't respond when he spoke with her. "Did the tension is too much for you to shut down your brain?"

"Wh-what?" Nala was thinking about another thing, she missed the question. "What did you say?"

Lou frowned, he approached her on the bed again and pulled away the blanket that covered her nakedness. "I told you we are going to leave to the Riverside pack tonight, two hours from now. You need to pack your thing."

"Oh..." Nala didn't hear that, but then her eyes widened when Lou caressed her inner thigh. "What are you doing?"

"Sexual tension is not good for your brain, you become stupid. I will give you a hand here... or a finger." Lou was so casually when he talked about it and inserted one finger against her opening, which made Nala gasped.

"N-no need." Nala tried to push him away, but she couldn't help it, because it felt good. "You are going to back away."

"Promise, I will be good." Lou inserted one more finger, which sent Nala to edge and he kept his words to be good until she got her release. "You are a handful..." he complained. 2

"Do you think by staring at the baby he will miraculously get up and walk by himself to the carriage?!" Jace was so stressful with this warrior. He had been waiting out there for a few minutes, while Redmond supposed to go inside and get the baby, but he had not yet come out. 1

When Jace found him, he was staring at the baby that stared back at him with his sweet smile.( 1

"We don't have time for this, Redmond! You delay our departure!" Jace was so upset now. Redmond had carried Sofia to the carriage and they were ready to leave to the Riverside pack, but here he was, staring at his newborn.

"I told you I don't know how to hold a baby!" Redmond protested. He had told Jace countless times he didn't know how, but the beta thought it was very ridiculous for him to not know how to hold a baby.

"Damn it, Redmond, You are the father, at least, give it a try!" Jace pushed him away and carried the baby himself. During their slavery, there were so many women gave birth to the child they didn't want it. Some of them graceful enough to take care of the baby, even though the baby was a constant reminder of the nightmare they had to go through, while the other was not so kind with that baby...

Therefore, it was common thing for the men in the Howling Wolf pack to know how to hold a baby, based on that, Jace could do it with ease when he carried the baby in his arms.

"What are you staring at? Do you want to stay here?" Jace walked out of the bedroom.

"How can you hold the baby easily?"

Redmond followed behind him, amazed by Jace's skills.

The beta rolled his eyes, because it sounded ridiculous. "Instinct."

"Do you think I don't have instinct?"

Redmond frowned, but they were already in front of the carriage and Jace gave the baby to Sofia, who was laying down on the bed, her face was still pale, but she looked better than before after resting for a while and eating.

"Nah, you are only a little bit dull sometime."

Redmond and Jace turned their head to the source of the voice and found Lou was approaching them. He raised his hand in greeting, while behind him, a woman followed. She was Nala and Jace almost forgot about her existence, since he almost had never seen her after the attack. He thought, she had fled somewhere.

But now, seeing her with Lou, he remembered unimportant report that mentioned she was with the merchant.

"What are you doing here, Lou?" Jacenarrowed his eyes, especially when he saw there was a carriage behind the merchant.

"Going somewhere?"

"I am going to Riverside pack. I will checkon the tunnel." Lou shrugged his shoulders nonchalantly.

"You should have gone two days ago,"Redmond pointed it out."Why are you still here?"

"You are so rude," Lou said with a frown. "Iam tired, okay. I need to rest too after working so hard to keep this pack away from the monsters that lurked in the mountain. They are being so mean and active because winter will come soon."

"And now you chose to go to the Riversidepack at the same time with me?" Redmond scoffed. "Do you think I will believe you if you said this is a coincident." 1

"I never said this is a coincidence. I did go at this time on purpose."

Jace held Redmond's shoulder and pushed him back. He knew, they would only waste their time to bicker over nothing."Go now, Red, you need to reach the Riverside pack as soon as possible."

"I heard the baby is not the alpha, so it's true?" Nala chimed in, she stood next to Lou and the merchant clicked his tongue because he didn't like it when a woman got into his business. "So, where are you going? Shouldn't the alpha punish that woman?" Nala ignored the heated glare that burned her cheek from Lou.

"That's none of your business, go and fuck around with someone else if you have free time!" Redmond growled. He had enough for people wanting to kill Sofia.

The Alpha: Claiming His Enemy's Daughter Novel Online Free Chapter 603

603 REDMOND JUNIOR 1

It was a long and tiring day and Redmond didn't have any patience left to deal with Nala's nonsense. This was the kindest words he could think of among the other obscenities and insults that swarmed in his mind right now.

Especially to this woman without status. Without her father, she was nothing and the king as her backup, she was literally nothing.

"I wonder, why do you keep her alive when her father was someone, who wanted to kill your alpha and created trouble for your pack?" Redmond threw a nasty look at Nala, which made her flinch. This warrior had a sharp tongue when she didn't attack him at all. "Seriously, I wonder how your alpha gave out punishment. For a daughter of a traitor to be alive and still talking, it's way too merciful."

It was not that Cane didn't punish Nala, he simply didn't care about this woman to the point, her existence was forgotten. More so, she was only a pawn and had no value whatsoever. There was no information that Cane could dig from her neither she was important enough to be used, she had no connection to anyone powerful, which meant she couldn't be utilized for any plan in Cane's mind, based on that, her existence was not a concern. 1

"Nah, you know the alpha is very twisted, he even mated with his enemy's daughter," Lou remarked the fact that Cane not only didn't punish Iris for her father's sin, but he adored her now.

However, when the merchant said that, he pulled Nala behind him, but he squeezed her wrist tightly, until she grimaced in pain to warn her to stop spouting nonsense. She had caused unnecessary trouble.

Yet, Lou was curious why this warrior was so livid when Nala suggested that? It did look like he was ready to snarl and kill someone for hinting to kill that swindler.

Interesting...

Redmond flared up and Jace held his shoulder to keep him from shifting into his beast. "What now? You fuck her? You two like a pathetic lover!" It was so clear with the gesture that Lou showed to him.

"What now? You fuck her? So, you are angry because she insulted your baby's mamma?" Lou mimicked what Redmond said. He tasted the water and the reaction from the warrior brought a small smile on the corner of his lips, but he tightened his grip even more when Nala was about to speak, too shocked with what he was hinting at Redmond.

Nala gritted her teeth and sucked in cold breathe, she felt her wrist would snap if Lou put more pressure. How could this man be so strong? He was not a shifter!

But with the pain, Nala couldn't speak anything, she had to endure it until the conversation was finished.

"Enough!" Jace roared. He could sense the merchant was trying to feel the situation and he would be damned if he got something from this exchange. "Go to the carriage now, Redmond! You will go to escort her to the Riverside pack!"

"Don't you dare to give me an order!" Redmond snarled at Jace, but he went to the carriage and start riding away with a few warriors that Jace had prepared to go with him.

Some of the warriors, who were there and didn't know any detail about the whole situation, were confused why the beta told them to go to the Riverside pack. What about the punishment? Why the alpha let go of someone, who had fooled him? But, actually, it was them, who were fooled, because Cane had never once showed any indication he accepted Sofia and her baby...

"What? I can't go to the Riverside pack now?" Lou asked Jace innocently after the small entourage that took Sofia away was out of their sight. "I have work to do, you know. I am busy. More so, I can go with them, since we have the same destination. The more the merrier, don't you think?"

Jace was speechless. It was so tiring to deal with Redmond and Lou at the same time. "I thought you are tired, you should have gone to the Riverside pack two days ago when you finished your job here." He reminded Lou of the same thing again.

"What? I can't take my rest? I am ready to go now." Lou frowned, he was unhappy. 1

"Take one more day to rest, to make sure you are ready to work again. I don't want to overwork you." Jace wanted to delay this merchant, at the very least, he shouldn't tail Redmond's entourage.

Yet, the beta should have learned by now that he couldn't do that to Lou.

"Don't you dare to give me an order, beta Jace." Once again, Lou mimicked Redmond's reaction and then turned around with Nala close to him. He literally tossed her inside the carriage and slammed the door, as he told Sabian to start moving.

Jace watched how that red carriage took the merchant away from the pack.

"Should we stop him?" One of the warriors approached Jace. He watched the entire exchange and thought they should stop the merchant if the beta told him not to leave.

Jace scrunched his brows, shaking his head. "No. Let him go." 2

Having worked with him during his stay in this pack, as he put the magical device to prevent the monsters from coming to their pack, Jace learned Lou's character well and it was safe to say that it would be a futile attempt if he were trying to stop him from leaving.

More so, the alpha wanted the tunnel to be done before winter came.

Right after the red carriage left and Jace was about to go back to the pack and write his report to Cane, Kaz approached him, he was panting and looking around, as if he were searching for something.

"Beta Jace, I heard you will take the slut to the Riverside pack? Why would you do that?" Kaz asked incredulously. The news about Sofia was leaving to the Riverside pack was too sudden, more so, it was in the middle of the night, most of the people were sleeping peacefully at their houses without realizing the slut had gotten away and now she was gone. "Where is she now? Is she still inside the house?" 2

Jace's eyes hardened when he stared at this old steward. Good thing he was going to retire soon.

He had known Kaz for so long, but he had change so much and he was no longer the person he once respected. He disliked the people, who questioned their alpha's order and blatantly disrespecting him.

"Go back to the pack house, Kaz," Jace said, trying to keep his calm.

"Beta, where is that slut!? Why the alpha let her go? Will she get the punishment?" Kaz couldn't stop rambling. He rushed here immediately, as soon as he heard the news. He couldn't sleep, he couldn't drink, he couldn't eat because of this heavy feeling in his chest.

"You have crossed the line again, Kaz. Whatever the alpha did, he didn't have any obligation to explain things to you." Jace stared at him sharply, Kaz flinched slightly. He was muddleheaded with so much grievances. The more he thought about his action, the harder it became.

"Th-that's not what I meant..." Kaz stuttered.

"Do your job well and teach Carla all the things she needs to know, you still have five more months before you retired. At the very least, you need to respect the alpha's last order for you." It was so rare for Jace to talk so sternly at Kaz, therefore the old steward was slightly taken aback and couldn't utter a single word, especially when Jace reminded him of Cane's last order, the words stung really bad.

However, when Jace was about to leave, Kaz gathered his courage and asked sheepishly.

"Beta Jace, may I know when the alpha and the luna will return?" His voice was so small, like a whisper. 1

"I don't have any idea," Jace answered truthfully and then walked away.

Meanwhile, on the way to the Riverside pack, Redmond stayed with Sofia in the carriage, as he frowned watching the baby latched onto her breast. She was feeding their son.

"He just ate two hours ago, why he keep seating? Is that normal? It's time to sleep, right?" Redmond couldn't understand this little thing. His body was so small, but he ate too much. He was only a few hours old by now.

"Babies don't follow such routine," Sofia said. She stared at her baby softly. She couldn't believe he came from her. He looked so pure and unreal. This blissful feeling was hard to describe.

"So, when he will sleep? Will he keep seating every hour?" Redmond was so curious, it sounded so dumb for him to not know anything about it.

Sofia closed her eyes and gathered all of her patience, Redmond had been asking her these silly questions for hours now, since they left the Howling Wolf pack. He had been grumbling because Lou followed them and he couldn't shake him off.

"I don't know and yes, Nea said he will be hungry all the time." Sofia tried to be calm, because the baby could feel her agitation and now, he scrunched his brows, uncomfortable.

"You need to feed Redmond Junior with meat, drinking milk will not make him full. " 2

"Pardon me?"

"What?"

"What silly name you called my son with?"

"What? Redmond Junior. We need to call him with something, right?"

The baby started crying and Sofia had enough. "Get out!"

The Alpha: Claiming His Enemy's Daughter Novel Online Free

Chapter 604

604 HARMLESS PERSON

Shiver ran down Nala's spine when the merchant showed such strong hostility toward her. This was the first time, he glared at her very viciously, as if he was going to strangle her to death. 1

Nala feared for her life when she was in the hand of the king, but this was different kind of fear when the easy going Lou looked so menacing like this. She didn't dare to raise her head, neither she had the courage to breathe a little bit louder. She wanted to disappear and make him stop staring at her, it was very suffocating.

While Lou said nothing, the silence was heavy.

"Lou, I am sorry..." Nala said in small voice. She was so scared out of her wits right now. All the possibility came to her mind and she couldn't help, but thinking the worst and the worst thing possible that could happen was; this merchant killed her, because that's how it looked like.

"Next time," Lou finally talked, but his voice sounded like a growl. "Next time if you were going to butt in on a conversation, remember that I am going to toss you out on the street or feed you to the monster. Understood?"

Nala nodded vigorously. "Y-yes, understood."

Next time.

She could breathe in relief right now because it meant Lou gave her another chance and she would make sure she didn't blurt out anything without his permission.

"Sit outside, I don't want to see your face!" Lou growled and slid down to sleep on his bed inside the carriage, while Nala clambered out to sit next Sabian, as the old man controlled the horses.

She tightened her cloak around her body because it was a cold night.

Sabian glanced at her, felt a little bit pity because Lou was so harsh, but then he understood his master better. When he was in a fault mood, it would be better if you stayed away from him, because he could do something irrational. 1

"Here, drink this. You will feel a little bit warm," Sabian said, giving Nala his waterskin that filled with alcohol.

Nala accepted it and he was right, it made her body felt a little bit warmer, but her heart was still so cold, she was still shaking in fear.

Meanwhile, the other carriage ahead of them was as quiet as the night, since the baby had fallen asleep.

Redmond was kicked out of the carriage by Sofia because his question agitated her, but once there was no sound from inside, he went to check on the woman and the baby and found out the two of them had fallen asleep.

With a frown, Redmond stared at the baby, he pursed his tiny lips and clutched onto Sofia's front dress.

The red hair warrior kept staring at the little one with complicated gaze and then raised his hand to nudge his cheek with his finger. It felt so soft and squishy, but it made him deepened his frown.

The softness of his cheek was so strange and he was not familiar with it.

"So, this is the thing inside her stomach..." Redmond murmured to himself and then immediately scurried away when the baby creased his soft brows, he was afraid this little thing cried again, so he stopped bothering him and stayed beside the coachman. "Ride the carriage slowly, I will get a headache if the baby woke up," he warned the warrior beside him, looked unhappy.

"I still can't believe it, the baby is not the alpha," the warrior started talking, because the night was so long and he needed to voice out his grievance, unfortunately, there was only Redmond there. "We are really waiting for the new member of the Northern family."

Redmond scrunched his nose, the topic irked him. "Ck. You believe your alpha unconditionally, but when he didn't even want to claim the baby and the woman as his, you made assumption and foolishly believed your own imagination. If there was someone at fault it would be you and your stupidity."

The warrior glared at him. "It's easy for you to talk like that because you don't care."

Redmond shrugged his shoulder. "You are right, I don't care. Your alpha doesn't care, then why do you care?" he scoffed.

"Because this is my pack and the bloodline of the alpha is very important."

"So, are you going to accept all those pregnant women knocking on your door one day and claiming that they are pregnant with the alpha's child?" Redmond looked at the warrior beside him disdainfully.

"We assumed that woman was pregnant with the alpha's child because Kaz believed that!" he retorted a little bit angrily, but Redmond had none of it.

It was such ridiculous excuse.

"How stupid. If you believed the old maid and the old steward's words more than you believed your alpha, you should make them your alpha and luna, they make a great couple actually." 4

As much as Cane didn't want for Iris to meet with alpha Nolan, he couldn't prevent them to not meet with each other for too long, especially when this alpha had actively sought her out.

On the third day he was in the Diadem pack, he 'happened' to bump onto Iris and her warriors as she was on her way to see Zale because Zephyr said he was sick after training under the rain yesterday.

Yes, the rainy season had started.

The young shifter would get sick easily because their healing ability had not yet fully developed, especially for a young one like Zale, who used to be underfed and now he trained himself excessively because he wanted to prove himself to Iris.

However, on her way to see him, she bumped onto alpha Nolan.

"Auburn hair and blue eyes, " Alpha Nolan remarked. "You must be Iris, the luna of the Howling Wolf pack, Cane's current mate, right?"

The unnecessary word of 'current' didn't go unnoticed by Iris. If he meant 'current', it meant there was a previous luna before her, which was very true, since it was his daughter.

"It's a pleasure to meet you, alpha Nolan," Iris said politely, while the seven warriors behind her tensed up. They knew the story about this man more than Iris did and the complication of his appearance here.

There was no explanation to why the alpha didn't allow their luna to meet with him and Iris also was well aware of that.

But to think they would bump onto each other right now felt very suspicious to say this was only a coincidence. More so, the alpha was away to take care of something with Ethan.

"You look well." Alpha Nolan stared at Iris closely. This was the first time they met each other and from what he heard the new mate of Cane was a runt and she was deaf.

But, when he arrived here, he heard she was able to hear now and performed healing ability. This was why she was called to the Red Claw pack to meet with the Serafim there.

It would be such a blow for the Holy Kingdom if this runt was able to cure the curse on the baby, while the Serafim couldn't.

"Thank you for your concern and medicine, I am feeling better now." Iris tried to keep her composure, despite the tension in the air. She handled it well enough.

"Did you drink the medicine?" Alpha Nolan raised his brows. Amusement danced behind his eyes when he heard that. "I don't know that Cane could be very careless to actually give you the medicine. An alpha shouldn't have done that and he should be more careful."

Iris pressed her lips lightly, she knew this alpha was trying to drag Cane down in front of her and his people.

They received the medicine from alpha Nolan and Cane checked it with Grace, just in case this alpha was up to something and had a hidden intention to harm his mate, but even after the healer confirmed the herbs were alright, Cane still tossed it to the fireplace.

However, there was no way Iris would tell alpha Nolan about that.

"We have our healer to check on the medicine." She was not lying when she told him this. "More so, Cane will not be so rude to throw your genuine gesture." Well, Cane was indeed very rude in this case.

Iris defended her mate for being called reckless. They just met for a few minutes, but he already pissed her off.

"After all, you were his destined mate's father."

Iris knew this was what Alpha Nolan wanted to talk about and it would be better if she just ripped the bandage off and started the topic, since it was inevitable.

Hearing this, alpha Nolan's eyes glinted with amusement. He didn't think the rumored runt could be this standoffish in front of him. Wasn't she supposed to be a docile one? She looked so small for shifter, she stood at least a head and half shorter than the seven warriors behind her, but you couldn't overlook her presence.

Her auburn hair and her blue eyes were very distinguished, but there was more than that.

"This is very presumptuous to think that way." Alpha Nolan smiled, he looked polite and respectful. "But, I wonder one thing, have you ever met with the Serafim from the Holy Kingdom?"

Iris shook her head and told him, she only knew her name.

"Both of you look so similar, especially with your blue eyes. I wonder if your mother was from Andelus continent." His eyes scrutinized her carefully.

The Alpha: Claiming His Enemy's Daughter Novel Online Free

Chapter 605

605 LEANE'S FATHER

Her origin was a question now ever since they discovered the complicated fate between the lycan and how he recognized the first Serafim's life essence inside of Iris, which they strongly believed that was the reason why Lu chose Cane to be his new vessel after Haco. 1

Her father was alpha Gerald and everyone knew about his bloodline, since he was the. alpha by birth, but then there were not many people had knowledge about her mother and as long as they know alpha Gerald took fancy of her, impregnated her and then she died because of illness when Iris was one year old.

People didn't pay enough attention to her mother or her origin because even though she was a luna, she was not alpha Gerald's destined mate, neither her personality made her stood out among the other women alpha Gerald had at that time.

Just like Iris, her mother was so timid and didn't speak if it was not necessary.

Therefore, there was not many people knew about where she came from and why Iris had her auburn hair and blue eyes. What Iris learned about it was because she got it from her maternal grandmother, yet, no one had ever seen any shifter with the same color of hair and eyes like her. It was very particular.

"I wonder about the same thing," Iris replied casually. "My mother died when I was so young and I don't even remember her face. People said she was beautiful and kind."

Alpha Nolan nodded. "I have never met your mother, but seeing you, I am sure you took after your mother, because Gerald was not a kind person when he was alive." He glanced at the seven warriors behind them. "They can vouch for that."

Iris could feel it when this alpha subtly nudged the sensitive topic between her and the people in the Howling Wolf pack.

This was not the first time and obviously enough, it wouldn't be the last.

"I am glad Cane killed him. He deserved that," Iris responded nonchalantly, which took alpha Nolan by surprised.

Even though she didn't like her own father, but for someone so timid like her to admit that openly, it still looked out of character of her, but then upon closer look, alpha Nolan could see he had underestimated this young luna.

"You are so cold for someone, who is talking about the death of their parent." His voice was even, but there was something he tried to hinting.

Iris gave alpha Nolan her sweetest smile, knowing what game he was playing. "He has never been a parent for me. He never saw me as a daughter, so it will only fair if I have never seen him as a father either." Iris tilted her head. "After all, most of the father will cherish their son more than their daughter, right? They saw their son as someone, who will carry their bloodline, while the daughter will only be seen if they held some value."

Iris sighed dramatically.

"Some of them even sold their daughter away, as if they were only a mere commodity. Those people are truly the lowest creature, same like my father."

4

Iris didn't even hold back when she badmouthed her own father and all of them knew what she was trying to say, because it was well known how alpha Nolan treated the mate bond between Leane and Cane as a bargaining chip to get as many magic stones as he could.

The seven warriors tried to hide their smile of how smooth Iris handled the situation with alpha Nolan, they worried for nothing. Their luna was still as sweet as ever, but surely, being with their alpha taught her a thing or two of how sharp your tongue could be.

On the other hand, alpha Nolan didn't look bothered at all. He had so many experiences under his belt to react negatively to such comment, all he did was smiling at Iris, but you wouldn't be able to read what was in his mind.

Instead of reacting to Iris's statement, he focused on the original topic.

"You must see the Serafim and you will be able to tell how familiar the two of you are." Alpha Nolan continued the topic as if there was nothing happened. "Someone might mistake you two as siblings."

"When the time comes, I will see her sooner or later, after all, that's what your purpose to come here, right alpha Nolan." Iris was a little bit wonder, how similar the two of them until alpha Nolan said something like that.

"That's right." Alpha Nolan agreed. "You can go now if you like, you look healthy enough for a long journey, we don't need to wait for Cane to give you permission to leave." The way he talked about it, as if Iris's every movement was controlled by Cane and it painted him in a bad light.

"Oh, Cane didn't forbid me to go, I only don't want to go if he didn't come."

This alpha from the Winter Moon pack was old, but shifters were built differently, even when they aged, they would still look intimidating and the way he carried himself would make you think not to mess up with him, he appeared to be kind and an easy person to talk to, but Iris remembered what Cane had taught her.

'People like Alan and king Aeon are people, who are easier to read and handle than the people, who appeared so calm and collected, because you will have a hard time to read their true intention.'

And alpha Nolan belonged to the latter.

'Every man in high position has their own ambition and will scheme their way to achieve it, while men in lower rank will trick and cheat to raise in rank. You can't believe them.'

In another words, Cane taught Iris not to believe anyone so easily, even he himself had his own plot and scheme under his sleeves.

"Since you look so well now and we apparently meet here by accident, why don't we have a walk, while we are talking to know each other more?" Alpha Nolan suggested. He looked harmless and talked to Iris in fatherly tone.

Zephyr was about to chi me in and politely reject the offer, but Iris had answered him first.

"It will be my pleasure," Iris said, smiling sweetly.

If it was in the past, she would have been flustered and didn't have any idea what to do, but being with Cane for a year taught her a lot of things. More so, she was not as clueless and defenseless woman as before.

She could protect herself and kill this alpha if she felt she was in danger. This ability really boosted her confidence and as someone, who used to be threatened in her entire life, this was very liberating to be able to stand head to head with your interlocutors or someone, who had every intention to intimidate you.

Alpha Nolan approached Iris and both of them walked together around the pack house. She told him that she was going to see Zale and Lil Thing and this interested the alpha more.

There was nothing to hide about her healing ability, since the Serafim had heard that and alpha Nolan also had seen Lil Thing before.

However, Eron didn't go with them, as he went away to report this to Cane.

"This is interesting to know that you are more powerful than the current Serafim, Luna Iris," alpha Nolan said casually, as if he was not hinting at anything.

"You make another presumption, alpha Nolan. It will consider an insult for the Holy Kingdom if someone misinterpreted it," Iris replied solemnly. "We all know how words can be twisted when there are so many lips talked about it."

The six warriors behind Iris looked at each other, as they shared a secret smile among them to hear how their luna could talk smoothly with a seasonal alpha like Nolan. Indeed, their alpha's influence had rubbed on her eventually.

Iris was right, the word could be twisted and the last thing they wanted was to be on bad terms with the Holy Kingdom. This was Cane's main concern too when he said he didn't want her to cure the baby. Iris was still conflicted about that decision...

"My apologize again, luna Iris." Alpha Nolan was so polite, it was almost thrilling to see a person like him didn't look down on her like the other alphas used to do. "You are right. Words can be sharper than claws and destructive enough more than a cursed beast."

Iris pretended not to hear the last statement about the cursed beast, because right now the lycan was feared by all the people more than the monsters after the death of the king.

But, in twisted way, she couldn't imagine people feared Lu, who always seemed moody and clingy whenever he took over Cane's consciousness. It didn't make sense in a way. 1

Thankfully, alpha Nolan didn't try to be a nuisance anymore, as he watched closely how Iris healed Zale with her white lights.

"I just learned this," Iris replied to alpha Nolan when he asked, since when she learned healing power. Before, he could only purify the black magic, but now Haco taught her how to improvise her power whenever he was not so sleepy and senile.

But their conversation didn't last for long because not long after Cane came and the room was very suffocating with two alphas gave off the feeling of domination.

"Alpha Nolan, may I know what are you doing here?"

The Alpha: Claiming His Enemy's Daughter Novel
Online Free
Chapter 606

606 HIDDEN INTENTION AND SCHEMES

"Alpha Nolan, may I know what are you doing here?" Cane asked darkly, his black eyes fixed on the man in front of him. ①

"I only want to greet your new mate, Cane, You don't need to be so hostile. It's not like I am going to harm her with a lot of warriors that you put around her." Alpha Nolan shrugged his shoulders nonchalantly. "She said she will show me the bear and I am so interested to see the creature."

"I will show it to you," Cane said curtly.

Seeing this, alpha Nolan chuckled lightly. "Luna Iris, you should get used to the alpha's overprotective nature. He did the same thing to my daughter too. He was even willing to give up hundred of magic stone for Leana to stay in his pack." He clapped back with the way Iris talked to him earlier.

What alpha Nolan was trying to hint was so clear as day, he compared Iris and Leana.

No, he wanted to say the treatment Iris received was still not on par with the way Cane treated his daughter. He tried to subtly create a discord between them, to see how this couple would react. 2

"Are you trying to remind me of how you tried to sell your own daughter for a couple of hundred magic stone? Because that's the attitude you showed my father when you suggested the price for Leane to stay in the pack," Cane replied. He looked so calm, that kind of calm before storm and this room was too small to be able to withstand it.

Cane stretched out his hand and pulled Iris to his side, while the warriors looked so tensed outside of the room, they were ready to jump and secure Iris and Zale if things went south, because they believed their alpha would be able to handle alpha Nolan.

But surprisingly, the young boy didn't show any sign of fear at all, he stared at the two alphas back and forth. He felt a little bit better, but he still looked pale, yet his eyes shone brightly when he watched the tension situation before him and this didn't go unnoticed by Cane.

Strangely, this young boy had a gut bigger than some full fledged warriors.

"Oh, you misunderstood me, Cane." Alpha Nolan still conveniently forgot how to address Cane properly, "I thought that was a decent amount for a betrothal gift for my dearest daughter. I have never thought you will see it as me selling Leana away to you."

Iris could sense how tensed up Cane was. It was not like him to be so riled up, he had been very adamant for her not to meet with alpha Nolan and here they were, cramped in a small room with a subtle of hostility and bitterness in the air.

"Stay away from her, Nolan," Cane warned him sternly. Since alpha Nolan refused to address him with his title, Cane didn't see the need to be polite with him when he didn't receive the same respect.

After saying that, Cane positioned Iris in front of him because he didn't want her out of his sight, but before he could leave, alpha Nolan reminded him again.

"I can see how the luna is already healthy now, don't you think this is the right time to leave to the Red Claw pack? I don't like to receive letter after letter about when we are planning to go. Alpha Colter can be so whinny." Alpha Nolan nodded at Iris. "She is healthy enough to perform healing power on that boy. I think if you don't want to leave, I can take her just fine with me. After all, the Serafim asked for her, you don't need to come with us."

Cane pushed Iris lightly outside of the room and the other warriors immediately surrounded her to walk her away from this brewing storm between the alphas.

"She is my mate, I decided where she will be." The merchant would arrive and Cane needed to deal with them first before they marched to the Red Claw pack. "She is not going anywhere without me."

Alpha Nolan smirked, "There," He clicked his tongue. "You show your weakness, Cane. You did the same mistake again when you show how much you are being affectionate with your mate. You put the target on her head. Both of us know the basic rule of this world, when your enemies couldn't take you down, they will start looking for your weakness and you flaunt her around." 1

Alpha Nolan shook his head.

"You and your father are the same; naïve and stupidly in love. That's the reason why the Howling Wolf pack fell from its grace a decade ago." Alpha Nolan approached Cane. "Don't start to complain about me not helping you in the past, because it's your pack and she was your mate, if you failed to protect them, then it's your fault to begin with. Keep showing your affection toward her and you will see how she died because of it." 1

His words really hit the nail on the head.

Men from the Howling Wolf pack were different, as they still held their old tradition faithfully to be only with their destined mate and most of them performed fidelity. They were also more affectionate with their mate.

Therefore, this was a glaring difference of behavior, which most of the shifters saw it as weakness.

"Cane, this is a fatherly advice for you,"

Alpha Nolan softened his voice when Cane didn't say anything. He looked affected so much by what he was saying earlier.

The death of Leane still left a huge hole in his heart, especially when he was reminded that was his fault when he already felt that was indeed his mistake for not being able to protect her and their son.

"Take more mistress, so your enemy will not focus on the woman you really favor, it will keep her safer, especially when she can't protect herself. We are going out to battle the royal and the dark sorcerer after all. If you really care about her, you will know what to do."

Alpha Nolan's eyes glinted with victory when he saw the way Cane was deep in thought. He patted his shoulder and then left the room, but once Alpha Nolan disappeared, Cane's eyes hardened, there was a flicker of wickedness in his black eyes, as a vicious smirk appeared on the corner of his lips.

Iris couldn't protect herself? 1

A year ago, Cane would believe that, but right now, he knew his sweet mate could end their lives if she wanted to. For the better or worse, she had the lycan wrapped around her slender fingers, not to mention how she could strangle your wolf spirit by only thinking about it. That was what Iris told him about how she helped them during the attack from the Silver Warrior.

Cane was still trying to figure out what Nolan's true intention was, but he was sure with one thing; he wanted to so w discord 1between him and Iris, but what for?

"Alpha, you don't think to take a mistress, right?" Zale suddenly opened his mouth, he didn't look happy and he didn't even bother to hide it, how pissed he was to think his luna would be cheated on.

Cane almost forgot about this little boy inside the room, until he spoke with his hoarse voice.

"What if I do?" Cane usually didn't engage in this kind of conversation, but this young boy was very interesting. He was not afraid to die, he didn't even give a shit that he was the alpha. He was so brave, but borderline dumb.

His bravery could get him into trouble if he didn't know how to read the situation and Cane didn't want such person to be around his mate, yet still, he praised this young boy's gut.

A low growl vibrated from the young shifter, as his eyes turned menacing, such eyes shouldn't belong to a boy around his age.

"Are you going to kill me now?" Cane raised his brows. It was interesting to know what kind of answer he would give him.

"I will not be able to kill you now, but I will find a way to do it if you really take a mistress." Zale openly showed his 1hostility.

"Very loyal, huh?"

"Luna Iris saved my life and gave my little sister a proper burial, I will dedicate my life for her. My life belongs to her."

"I don't think she wants such burden."

Zale gritted his teeth. "I will not be a burden for her!"

"Listen Zale," Cane called his name, instead of degrading him with the fact how young he was, which showed, he talked to him equally. "I praise you for your bravery, but if you don't know when to shut up and read the situation, you will bring my mate into unnecessary trouble if I let you stay with her. So, its either you learn how to control your anger, or I can kick you out from her side."

"I will not go anywhere!"

"Control your anger, Zale. If you let people see through you, you are done." This young boy had potential, he was so loyal to Iris somehow, but his attitude was even worse than Redmond. "Come to me when I am free, I will teach you a thing or two." 3

After saying that, Cane left the room, leaving Zale dumbfounded with his parting words. He didn't think the alpha will spare his time for him. What he was going to teach him?

The Alpha: Claiming His Enemy's Daughter Novel Online Free

Chapter 607

607 THE ENRAGED OF THE YOUNG WARRIOR

By the time Cane approached Iris, she was with Lil Thing, thankfully alpha Nolan heed his warning and left her alone, at least for now, because it was easy to see that he would try again to find a way to talk with his mate. 1

"Is the bear dead?" Cane stared at the sleeping bear, this creature only lived to sleep, eat and play. Of course, he could tell the bear was sleeping, but one could wish, right?

"Cane, you are so mean," Iris complained, as she rubbed the spot where fur started to grow on Lil Thing's wounds. "Lil Thing has helped us a lot, be nice to it, okay."

The seven warriors watched the interaction between them and they couldn't help, but bewildered to see their alpha was actually being scolded.

On the other hand, Cane said nothing, he stared at the bear for a while and grabbed Iris's elbow to help her stand up. "Walk with me," he said.

Iris followed him to walk toward the training ground, they needed to cross this area to reach the pack house, because currently they were in the warrior's quarter.

The growling sounds and the barking of people could be heard in the distance, as almost all the warriors were fighting against each other, either in their beast form or in their human skin.

Most of them was the warrior from the Howling Wolf pack, Bloody Wolf pack and Diadem pack, but there were some warriors that Iris just saw for the first time, they must be the warriors from the Winter Moon pack, joining in the training.

Among these people and beasts, Iris could find Joel, he was fighting against a man bigger than him in their human skin. A crease appeared between Iris's brows, as she halted her steps to watch. The look of worried on her face.

Noticing Iris stopped walking, Cane followed her line of sight and immediately knew what made her anxious.

"He has recovered well. He will be able to handle him." Cane put his hand on Iris's back to ease her tense.

"It's not fair. The man is obviously older and stronger than him. He just recovered, he shouldn't have strained himself." Iris was upset because the match was not fair.

"Strength is important, but it's not the only aspect to win a fight." Cane glanced at Iris, who gave him a disapproving look. "Watch and you will understand."

Iris wanted Cane to stop the fight, but they already started it. Somehow, she saw Joel as a little brother and became so attached with him. She didn't want anything bad happened to that sweet young soldier. No, she didn't want anything bad happened to the people she cared.

"Don't do anything," Cane warned Iris, as if he could read what was in her mind right now.

"I will not," Iris replied defensively, but both of them knew that was questionable, since she was still weighing her decision if that burly man really did hurt Joel.

Not too far from them, Joel fought the man bravely, there was not an ounce of fear in his clear eyes, as he focused on his opponent. He looked calm and collected, as he dodged the attack. He didn't fight back and the only time he did, he almost got his opponent and clawed the area around his neck.

The man was stronger than Joel, but the young warrior was way more agile than him. He moved and dodged with ease and attacked at the right time with wonderful precision.

Iris gasped and clutched her chest when Joel missed his opponent's attack by a hair. The young warrior's face was almost clawed and surely it would leave damage on him. It seemed, his opponent had become frustrated and now he was mad, his attack became even more lethal and it didn't feel like a training anymore.

"You need to ask someone to stop this," Iris said. "It is very obvious he is going to kill him." She tugged Cane's front clothes to get his attention, while Ethan, as the judge, didn't do anything. The gamma's eyes fixed on them, but he didn't seem like he was going to stop this anytime soon.

"Just watch, Iris," Cane replied simply, as he rubbed her back, yet it didn't help.

Iris looked around her, all the warriors had stopped with their training and watched the battle between the youngest warrior and the warrior from the Winter Moon pack, gradually, their focus were solely on them.

Iris's seven personal warriors watched with seriousness on their expression, but neither of them tried to stop the fight.

This was very new for Iris to watch the warriors were training, but most of the time they were very civil and there was no hostility, neither killing intent involved, not like this one.

"Cane..." Iris whimpered, she screeched when a harsh punch landed on Joel's face and he stumbled back, but quickly regained his footing and dodged the next attack.

"Don't do anything, Iris." Cane put his hand around her waist right now and squeezed it as a warning for her not to do anything and as a result, the alpha got a glaring look from his mate, for a second, Cane even thought Iris would attack him instead for stopping her. 1

But then a second later, there was this long and painful roar that split the heavy atmosphere and the tension in the air, as the man dropped to his knees, holding his neck that was bleeding profusely.

Somehow, when Iris threw Cane a dagger look, Joel managed to get to his neck and harm him, which the end of the fight.

Grace immediately came to check on the wounded warrior, as people from the Howling Wolf pack cheered for Joel.

Kian and Asher exclaimed their excitement, while Dyne and Eron teased the young warrior, even though because of the distance, Joel must not hear them.

Only then, Iris sighed in relief, she didn't realize how tense she was until now.

"He is young, but he is a good warrior," Cane simply said, but when it came from him, it was a rare praise that would make Joel had a hard time to sleep because of how happy he was to be praised by the alpha, only if he heard this. "Let's go."

Cane took Iris's hand and continued to walk toward the pack house.

But before she left the area, Iris could see Joel walked toward his opponent and hatred glinted in his clear eyes, it was a shocking sight to see because a moment ago, when he was in a fight, he looked so calm and collected, as if there was nothing could disturb him.

But right now, he showed so much hostility that Iris didn't think he could have.

From the distance, she read what the young warrior said;

'Don't you dare to badmouth my luna again, or next time, I will slit your throat.'

1

Iris was taken aback, because someone as sweet as Joel could say something very vicious like that. Based on that simple statement, she could figure out what happened. This warrior from the Winter Moon pack must have talked bad about her and this triggered Joel.

This was not something new for Iris and she was already used to it, but still, having someone stood up for her and was angry on her behalf was a very pleasant feeling.

A small smile appeared on the corner of Iris's lips, while her heart became so warm. She felt like she wanted to cry and think how silly she was to cry over something like this.

Iris shook her head and followed Cane.

"What did he say to you?"

"Nothing important," Iris replied in small voice. She shook her head and Cane stopped walking, he pinched her chin and lifted her head to look at him in the eyes.

"What is it, Iris?" Cane asked calmly.

Iris knew she was not a good liar, especially in front of her mate, thus she told him the conversation between alpha Nolan and her. The alpha didn't really attack her or openly show his ill intention, but a few remarks from him was enough as the evidence that he wanted to so w discord between her and Cane, for what purpose? They still needed to figure it out.

"What do you think about that?"

"Nothing."

"Iris."

Iris sighed deeply. "I feel so bad to think I am only a replacement for you and you are with me because of the mate bond between us and whatever thing that bound us together." Iris didn't blatantly talk about Lu, but Cane understood. "With Leane it's love, but with me, it's more like an obligation." 1

Iris felt bad to think that way, but the more she felt bad about it, the worse her feeling became.

"Don't be silly, you are not an obligation." Cane leaned over and captured her lips gently, while the seven warriors suddenly took extreme interest in the nature around them.

The next day, the news about Sofia arrived and this caused an uproar among the warriors and people there, as it turned out the woman didn't give birth to alpha Cane's child. The child didn't have the golden eyes that represented the bloodline of the royal.

All the warriors were so angry with how they were deceived.

Meanwhile, Cane set his plan in motion, as he sent a warning letter to alpha Gallot, demanded his explanation, since he was the one, who sent Sofia to his pack.

But, as a reply, there was a letter from the palace.

King Alan demanded Cane and Lou's presence in the capital city.

The Alpha: Claiming His Enemy's Daughter Novel Online Free

Chapter 608

608 THE CHANGE IN THE SITUATION

"Beta Jace!" Maria rushed toward Jace when she saw him. She has been so depressed because of the revelation and only now she came out of her bedroom. She looked haggard.

Jace stopped walking and turned around to face her.

"What is it, Maria?" He was going to take care of something, he didn't have a lot of time to deal with her if she was going to pester him about Sofia's punishment like Kaz did.

There was a deep crease between Jace's brows, he was being impatient.

"Uhm... I only want to ask something." She looked uncomfortable when she mentioned this. She averted her eyes and stared at her fingers.

There you go.

Jace thought her question would be the same like Kaz, after all they were on the same page regarding Sofia a few days ago.

"I don't know when the alpha will deliver the punishment for her, okay, so you can stop asking me about it." Jace really didn't have time for that.

"No, no, that's not what I want to ask!" Maria said hastily. She grabbed Jace's sleeve to prevent him from leaving. "I only want to know... uhm, when the alpha and the luna will return?"

Jace rolled his eyes. He knew why Maria asked this question. The old woman must be very guilty toward their luna and to make it up for her, she wanted to start treating Iris nicely. Kaz had asked the same question too.

The beta wanted to rub it on her face for not treating Iris the way she deserved in the first place, but he didn't have a heart to do it when he saw how she looked extremely remorseful. It was Maria's luck to talk about it with Jace, if it was Hanna or Redmond, both of them would have eaten her alive with their harsh words. 1

"I don't know, Maria. There are a lot of things to be taken care of out there. A year or two, maybe..."

Maria grimaced when she heard that. A year or two was so long...

"If you happened to send a message to the alpha, can you include this to the luna too?" Maria fished out something from her pocket and it was three red leaves. "It's a good herb for body. The luna used to be very sick, right? Can you give it to her?"

Jace wanted to say that Grace was there and with how overprotective Cane was with his mate, there was no way he would let anything bad happen to her. More so, Jace was sure Iris was in her best condition right now.

However, he still accepted it.

"Okay. Anything else?" Jace took the threeleaves. He was not sure what were they, but Grace must be able to tell.

"No. No." Maria shook her head. "Only tell them to take a good care of themselves. I pray for them."

Maria still felt a little bit awkward to wish a good thing for Iris alone, thus she generalized her pray.

Jace nodded and then left, but Maria didn't feel better. She felt devastated because she couldn't make up for her mistake when the person that she had been wronged was not [even there.

This was a gruesome feeling.

Meanwhile, in the Diandem pack, the rumor about Sofia spread like wildfire.

"That slut was not pregnant with the alpha's child!"

"We shouldn't have believed it when she appeared and claimed herself to be pregnant with alpha Cane's firstborn!"

"Kaz and Maria made it seem real!"

"I can't believe it we have been deceived all this time!"

"I feel so bad to even be happy for the alpha when he didn't even want to claim the baby as his in the first place, until it was proven!"

"I know, right? The alpha didn't want to claim the baby and the woman, but it was Kaz and Maria, who treated that slut as if she was the alpha's mistress!"

"We shouldn't have jumped into a conclusion so fast."

The uproar of the news about Sofia's baby spread among the warriors, not only the Howling Wolf pack, who talked about it, but the other warriors from different packs also had something to say related this matter.

One could only imagine what kind of chaos that was brewing in the Howling Wolf pack. The anger from the people there and how they wanted to shred Sofia to pieces to even dare enough to fool them.

Thankfully, she was no longer in the pack, because it was really not safe to be surrounded by wolves that salivated to eat you alive. The only thing that held them back was the fact the alpha had not yet given them the order for the execution and now the said woman had been secured to different pack with the baby too.

"People is talking about Sofia and the baby," Aliana said, she let Iris knew what was going on with their surroundings, just like what Hanna always did, as both of them kept Iris on the loop and updated her with the latest news and situation.

Aliana was struggling with her hair. Even now, she still couldn't get a grip of how to style her thick and curly hair, while Iris stared at her through the mirror.

"You don't seem surprise." Iris observed Aliana's expression, she talked about it lightly. Albeit Aliana had never stated she believed Sofia, but there was no trace of surprise whatsoever on her face.

Aliana glanced and then grinned at Iris through the mirror too. "Ethan told me." Which meant, she had known about it beforehand and who was the father of the baby. "I hope the baby doesn't have red hair, it will be the easiest thing to tell who is the father."

Iris chuckled. She missed Redmond nagging and wanted to know how he handled the baby. Maybe this time she could annoy him, like he used to do it with her. 1

"Now people already knew about it, I am sure they will start to come around and see how wrong they have been, especially how they wronged you." Aliana gave up. She pulled up Iris's hair and tied it, as an accessory, she put a blue ribbon on it to match her eyes. This has been Iris's style lately.

"They despised Sofia now, but it doesn't mean they will like me all of sudden, Aliana," Iris replied. "I am fine with how things are now." She had Zale, Joel, Zephyr and a few people that she knew cared for her genuinely and that was enough for her.

"Things will get better." Aliana clapped her hands, done with Iris's hair.

"I hope."

Yet, the truth was; things didn't get any better, because a message came from the palace, where King Alan demanded Cane and Lou's presence.

The problem was; because the capital city had been attacked by a monster lately and it was further proven that the magical device the merchant had built didn't work, the king would punish the merchant and Cane was summoned because Lou was currently working for him.

The king wanted to know if there was a conspiracy behind it, especially when the previous king died in the Howling Wolf pack. The investigation about it would be held.

"This is ridiculous!" Ethan growled. He slammed his hand against the table out of anger. "That brain-damaged king accused us of what? Conspired with Lou and killed the previous king?! While the real culprit is them!"

Half a year ago, Cane was summoned to the palace because Ethan attacked Alan, who was the crown prince at that time, but now the alpha was summoned again because Lou couldn't do his job right.

"Like father like son. Why would they like to summon you to come to the palace?" Ethan grumbled.

Currently, the two of them were in the study room and Cane had been very quiet ever since he received the message, the gamma wished Iris was there, so she could ask him what was going on inside of that brilliant head of his alpha and what kind of plot he was currently brewing now.

"Cane, what are you going to do with this?" This must be the third time for Ethan to ask the same question. "My dearest and lovely alpha, at least tell me what are you going to do!"

Yes, Cane explained a little bit more to him lately, but it didn't mean there would be time when he fell back to his old habit.

Cane finally gave the gamma his attention, but the corner of his lips curled in disgust with the way Ethan addressed him.

"Where are you going now?" Ethan was dumbstruck when Cane was about to leave the room without giving him any explanation. He didn't even say a word to him, as he left him in his dissatisfaction. "Ugh! Sometime I hope this is the lycan! At least, I know what he is going to do!"

If it was left to Lu, the lycan would surely raise a war with the royal and annihilate all of them. 1

Meanwhile, the alpha went to his bedroom to look for his mate. He thought, he wouldn't find her there, since she loved to roam around and currently it became a habit of her to rebel against him.

But, Cane found his sweet mate was reading near the window, her brows creased and her eyes fixed on the book she was reading. She looked very serious, until she didn't realize Cane approached her and looked over her shoulder to see what she was reading.

"Do you want to try that position?"

The Alpha: Claiming His Enemy's Daughter Novel

Online Free

Chapter 609

609 MAPLE LEAVES

Somehow, recently Iris had been desired for her mate more, she wanted his attention and to touch him ever so often, but unfortunately, Cane was always busy.

1

The alpha would come back late at night and left before she woke up, there were only a few interactions between them during the day and Iris tried to focus on something else, but Cane's absence frustrated her.

And this afternoon, she didn't wish to do anything. She only wanted to be alone, since she was too tired to go out. Her mood has been low lately.

Thinking Cane must be busy right now, or so she thought, she held herself back from looking for him.

A few days ago, Iris overheard one of the mistresses of alpha Adrian spoke about how she could get pregnant. No, she actually read their conversation from afar.

The gist of it was; their position when they did the deed could raise a possibility to get pregnant.

If it was not because of how embarrassed it would be, Iris would have approached them and asked them to elaborate further, but her timid self was still there and to think she would ask such thing only made her face turned into crimson color, which confused Aliana.

She thought, her luna was sick or something to see how red her face was.

Therefore, the only solution Iris had in her hand right now was these books that she bought from the book store a few nights ago during the festivity.

Who would have thought, Cane would come and catch her red handed with the book in her hand...

"Ah!" Iris screamed, she jumped out of her skin to hear Cane's voice. She immediately threw the book away, as if that thing had burned her hand. 1

She swore, she loved to hear his voice and his voice was still her number one favorite, and how she had been craving his presence, but right now she didn't want him to be here.

"Where are you going?" Cane easily caught her body, as he sneaked his arm around her waist and held her tightly, he pulled her closer until her back was against his chest. His arm was very secure and Iris couldn't retaliate.

Of course, Iris's first instinct was to flee from him, from this room and dig a hole to bury herself. It was simply very embarrassing!

"Let's read the book together," Cane said against her neck, as his lips barely touched her skin, sending goosebumps to her stomach. 1

"N-no... I-I am done..." Iris stuttered. Her body felt very hot. She wished to be anywhere, but here. "L- let me go..." she whimpered. She was so close to cry.

"You are done reading that book?" Cane reached out his other hand to get the book, but Iris kicked it away. "I don't know that you are very feisty, Iris," Cane chuckled to see how red his mate became. "If you have done reading it, why don't you tell me what is it about?"

Heaven!

Did he try to kill her?! Because sure enough, Iris felt like she was going to die!

She struggled to get away from him, but if Cane determined for her to be in his arms, there was nothing she could do to change that.

"Let me go..." Iris whimpered.

"And where do you want to go exactly?" Cane started to kiss her nape and nibbled there lightly, which made Iris less determined to get away from him.

He missed her. He knew that he had been very busy lately with the merchant was already here and alpha Nolan kept nagging him to go to the Red Claw pack, especially now when he was summoned to the palace.

Even blind people could see it was a trap and it was still questionable, whether he could go out of there with his life or not once he stepped in the capital city.

Yet, he dismissed everything and went to find his mate. A lot of things jumbled up in his mind and he wanted a few moment alone with his mate to clear his head, only to get this pleasant surprise.

"I..." Iris bit her lip when she felt Cane's hand brushed her ribs close enough to touch her breast. He was teasing her! "I want to check on Zale..."

"Hm... what do you want to check?"

"His training with Zephyr..." Iris gasped when Cane cupped her right breast and caressed it, her body felt very hot and she couldn't think clearly. This was what she wanted, she would love to this moment and it would be perfect without the incident of the book.

"You know nothing about training, Iris," Cane pointed it out.

Iris let out a whimper out of frustration. Could he not embarrassed her more than this?

"I know! I know a few things...!" Iris screeched. She became very defensive now her bluff was being exposed.

However, Cane flipped her body swiftly, so she was laying down on her back, while he hovered above her. In this position, the alpha took the liberty to watch how miserable his mate was, she looked like she wanted to cry, but he had not yet done with her.

"I will show you something interesting. Do you want to see?" Cane caressed her cheek and felt how hot her skin was. She looked so beautiful and red was really her color, it reminded him of maple leaves.

She was beautiful and brave, but also reckless and her random thought was what made her so attractive, some time, he simply couldn't understand what was in her mind.

"No, I don't want to see..." Iris pouted her lips, she was unhappy to be pinned down on the sofa, or maybe that was how she wanted to be seen, since Cane could smell her arousal, more so, she was not a good liar.

Despite what she said, Cane showed it to her anyway.

He raised his hand and from his fingertips, there was this dark wisp. The same wisp that Iris noticed the first time when they were in the palace. Her eyes widened, she was not sure whether this was a good sign or not.

"Cane...?" She blinked her eyes when the dark wisp fluttered in the air. "You... that dark wisp, are you controlling it?" she asked in whispery tone, as if afraid someone would hear her, despite the fact they were only alone in this room.

"I am trying," Cane murmured. "Some time, it is hard to control. After all, it is the lycan's." Cane flicked his fingers and the dark wisp followed his instruction, it swirled and then fluttered in the air, as though it was a living creature, while Cane watched his mate, whose face filled with astonishment.

And then with another flick from his finger, he made the dark wisp to pick the book from the floor and put it in his hand, only then the spell was broken and Iris freaked out again to see that damned book. 1

Cane was very cunning, she knew that, but how could he do this to her?!

Moreover, it was not the first time and sure enough, wouldn't be the last.

"Now, tell me which one do you want to try?" Cane lazily opened the book, propped his body with his elbows, so he wouldn't crush his delicate mate under his weight.

"Cane!" Iris was speechless. She wanted him to stop, but Cane didn't look bother at all.

"What is wrong to desire your mate, Iris?" Cane's voice was so calm, he treated this as something normal. He didn't tease her and talk casually. "I will like to do it if there is something you wanted to try."

"That's... that's not my book..." Iris made a desperate attempt to be innocent. "I found it... somewhere." 2

"Okay." Cane nodded, he kissed her nose and her forehead. "So, which one do you want to try?" Cane casually flipped the book, which showed provocative position during love making.

"Don't even think to try this." Cane's voice slightly darker when he saw the image of three people. He stared at his mate sternly, who shook her head vigorously. "I don't share, Iris. You are mine and I don't share what is mine. Understood?" 2

Cane's voice was demanding, he was very serious with this and Iris nodded. No matter how wild and lewd her thought lately, it never crossed her mind to do it with other people than him, neither to add one more person.

The thought of it alone made her stomach churned.

After getting the assurance he wanted, Cane started to flip the pages casually. His demeanor changed in an instant, as he looked calm and collected.

"Do you want to try this one?" Cane asked and Iris shook her head. "This one?" Iris shook her head again, but the alpha was extremely patient with his timid mate. "This one?" 1

The image showed another provocative position and this time, Iris didn't shake her head, she bit her lip and averted her gaze. It seemed, he got what she wanted.

"Okay, this one then..." Cane said softly, as he put away the book and kissed the hollow on her collarbone. "You don't need to be embarrassed to tell me what you wanted, Iris. It's normal and there is nothing to be embarrassed about. You need to tell me what you like and dislike, so I will not hurt you."

"You do not hurt me," Iris retorted sheepishly, her heart skipped a beat when Cane lifted her dress.

"At least, I want it to be more pleasurable for you." Cane captured her lips and swallowed her soft whimper.

The Alpha: Claiming His Enemy's Daughter Novel Online Free

Chapter 610

610 CLINGY IRIS

Iris softly mewled in Cane's arms, her body felt very sore, but delightful, she could feel all the traces that her mate left on her body, imprinted on her skin and engraved in her heart, as she was contented and pleased. 1

Her eyelids were so heavy and she flinched when Cane pulled out of her, as something warm trickled down her thighs.

"Don't go..." Iris whimpered when Cane moved away from her, but she didn't open her eyes, she reached out her arms and hugged his neck again, while the alpha softly chuckled against her neck. "Don't go..."

"We need to clean you up, okay?" Cane whispered to her ear and nibbled on her earlobe, which made her squirmed and shook her head. "I will prepare the bath."

"No." Iris frowned like a stubborn child, she opened her eyes lazily and pouted her lips. "I will come with you."

"You need to get up if you want to come with me." Cane kissed her nose, eyes and forehead. He couldn't get enough of her. He realized that he had been neglectful of her, since the merchant arrived and he had a hard time to come into an agreement with them and get what he wanted, while at the same time, he had to deal with alpha Nolan too.

The alpha would have found a way to meet with Iris again if he didn't put more guards around his mate and gave a strict order to the warriors not to let him come closer to her again.

"Okay." She agreed, but didn't make any attempts to move, instead she closed her eyes, was about to fall asleep. Right now, she was very clingy.

"Iris?"

"Hm?"

"You smell so good." Cane buried his face against the crook of her neck. She smelled so sweet and addictive, as if she was a drug and he was addicted to it.

Iris moaned when she felt Cane's tongue licked her collarbones, she was full of anticipation if they were going into it again, though her body couldn't keep up with the desire, but if she could, she wanted this more.

She felt delightfully satisfied when there was nothing between them, when his skin met hers and she could feel the rhythm of his heartbeat, as her own matched it. This was the most vulnerable moment, where they showed their raw feelings and tried to understand each other in different way.

"We need to take a bath," Cane growled, because he remembered he had a meeting with the merchant to talk about grains.

"Are you going to meet the merchant?" Iris asked lazily, didn't want to wake up at all.

"Hm."

In the end, Cane carried her to the bathroom and let her sit down, while he prepared for the bath. His mate looked so tired and sleepy, she even almost fell asleep and stumbled.

"I am sleepy," Iris yawned when Cane put her into the tub with warm water before he sat down behind her.

"I can see that." Cane pulled Iris close to him and let her lean against his chest, as he washed her body with soap. Her perky nipples were so red and sensitive when he touched them. "Sleep, I will take care of you."

Iris yawned, she snuggled against him to find a comfortable position, but somehow, she turned her body and kissed him instead. She was sleepy and clumsy, the kiss merely nibbled on his lips, which made Cane chuckle.

"Be good and don't move around." Cane steadied her body again and cleaned her up, but when Iris was about to touch him, he caught her hand and pushed it away, but he rewarded her with a kiss when she opened her eyes and felt hurt to be rejected. "You are too tired, Iris, you can't take it."

Iris pouted her lips and wrapped her arms around his waist instead and kissed his chest.

"Be good." Cane patted her head.

Iris knew Cane was right that she wouldn't be able to take it if they were going to do it again, but somehow, she wanted it more. She blamed her desire on the book that she read. She shouldn't have read that book too often, because she started to imagine a lot of dirty things with her mate, which she would never admit it.

The thoughts were too embarrassing, dirty and lewd, which surprised her, because she didn't think she would have such kind of wild imagination.

"What happened?" Cane asked when Iris's body became tensed.

"Cramp..." Iris whimpered against his chest and Cane caressed her back to soothe it.

Even without doing anything they spent almost an hour to take a bath and once they were done, the water had turned cold and the sky had become dark.

Cane tucked Iris in, at the same time, he heard his gamma's voice, reminding him that they needed to go to meet with the merchant.

"I will ask Aliana to bring your dinner, okay?" Cane leaned over to kiss her nose, but Iris pointed her lips too, wanted to be kissed there, which Cane happily obliged, yet she pointed her forehead, her chubby cheeks and her chin. "I will kiss every inch of your body all over again when I return okay?" Cane chuckled to discover this side of his mate. This woman was always surprised him with her endearing quirk.

Cane had kissed her during their passionate moment and he didn't mind to do it all over again if it could make her happy, but he needed to go now.

"Okay," Iris said sheepishly, it was her bold attempt to make Cane stay with her a little bit longer, because she still missed him even after a handful of climax, he gave her.

"Sleep, Iris." Cane kissed both of her eyes and then her nose again, as he ruffled her hair and then walked away from the room that filled with the smell of sex. 1

Aliana almost had a hard attack when she stepped in with dinner later, she opened all the window and let refreshing night wind to wash away this suffocating scent. 1

"Are they going to kill me?" Aliana grumbled, as she picked all of their clothes on the floor and found the book, her eyes widened in disbelief to see such thing. "What? Who bought this?"

She couldn't imagine the alpha bought such book and showed it to his mate, but then she couldn't even imagine the sweet and innocent luna to be the one, who bought it. She was too timid for something so bold, especially when Aliana saw the content. 1

"Damn... who bought this book?" She was dying with curiosity, more so when Iris barely woke up when she ate her dinner, which made her unable to tease her and figure out about that mysterious book.

On the other hand, Cane the meeting didn't go well, the merchant gave unreasonable prices for the grain, knowing their predicament and the shifted of power in this pack and the whole pack in the southern kingdom. They really took advantage of him.

Even after late at night, the merchants were still persistence with their price.

"Are they crazy?!" Ethan was exasperated, his face was so red because of how angry he was. "They took advantage of our situation!"

It was not that they couldn't afford to buy it, but the price simply ridiculous. It almost like they were being robbed under the broad daylight and they had to be grateful for that.

Now the merchants gave Cane ten days to give them the answer, whether he wanted to buy the grain from them or they would sell it to the royal, once they did that, the pack in the south wouldn't have enough grain for the upcoming winter, not to mention there was some pack that went through famine at this moment, so they needed it more even before the winter came.

"Cane, what are you going to do?" Ethan walked beside Cane, after their unsatisfying meeting, they crossed the garden to reach the pack house, since the merchant stayed in the town. Dealing with the merchant was another level of headache.

"Is there news from Lou?" Cane asked about

Lou instead.

"Oh, I forgot. He sent a letter that arrived this evening." Ethan pulled out the letter that the merchant had sent them. "He asked you to think of the solution, since you will come with him to the capital city. He said; it will be a trap, but you can't ignore the summons from the king, unless you want to openly oppose him."

Cane was silent for a moment. "Tell him to come to catch up with Redmond and his entourage. I will meet with him here."

Redmond and a few warriors had left the Riverside pack and marched to Diadem pack a day earlier, but with their speed, especially because there was Sofia and the baby, Lou would be able to catch up with them within a day or two.

Ethan narrowed his eyes. He felt there was something fishy about it and couldn't help, but blurted it out. "You want to use Lou to deal with the merchant?"

Cane didn't give an answer for that question, but knowing the alpha, Ethan knew he was right. "Brilliant!" Ethan almost jumped in joy and hugged Cane because with Lou dealt with his fellow merchant, he didn't need to get unnecessary headache to face them. "I am really proud to have you as my alpha! I really do love you, Cane! I am willing to die for you!"

Ethan was about to hug him, but stopped because Cane gave him a stern glare.