

After Prison 51

“Haha, this isn’t an issue of whether we look down on Chevys. Did you even stop to have a good look at where you’re at right now? We recognize almost all the homeowners here, and the cars that they drive are either Porsches, Maseratis, or Ferraris! The value of the cars they own could reach millions!”

Another security guard sneered and chided in agreement with his colleague. “Oh, and there are those who drive a Rolls-Royce too! Honestly, this is the first time we’ve seen someone drive a Chevy and claim to be a homeowner here!”

“What’s the matter? Isn’t he going to leave? Hey, pal, it’s obvious that you drove to the wrong. place!” Another security guard came over and began to urge Severin to leave too.

“He says he owns one of the houses here. Don’t you think that’s hilarious?” The fat security guard from earlier said with a hearty laugh.

“Severin, did you go the wrong way? The houses here are very expensive!” Judith looked at the villas in front of her. They were all huge, detached units. At a glance, it was clear that not many people could afford such houses.

When the two security guards heard Judith’s words, they were even more certain that Severin was merely bragging. The thin security guard who came last earlier said, “Well, there is an easy way to solve this. Anyone who owns a villa here would have a key. Take yours out and show it to us. Then we’ll know if you’re telling the truth.”

“Yeah! Show us your key then? Haha!” The fat man immediately said.

All of a sudden, a Ferrari drove up behind the Chevrolet and began honking at Severin to move. Behind the Ferrari was an Audi A8.

Severin took out the key and showed it to the security guard. “Do you believe it now?”

The fat guard looked at the key and had a contorted expression on his face. “No way. He has a key!” The thin one had a befuddled look on his face too, and the three of them were surprised that Severin was actually able to produce the key.

As soon as Severin took out the key, Judith and Maurice could not help but breathe a sigh of relief from the rear seat.

“What’s the deal with this car? Are you going in or not? If not, then get out of the way! Don’t just block us all from entering!” A stylishly-dressed woman then stepped out of the Ferrari and urged impatiently. Inside her car was another fashionably-dressed woman whose hair was dyed yellow, and that woman seemed to be just as impatient too.

Several people then came down from the Audi behind the Ferrari. They were none other than Easton, Lucy, Quinn, Timothy, and Patrick. Easton was very unhappy after his wedding was ruined, so he decided to bring everyone to get some drinks at a bar. As they were leaving, they met. Patrick’s elder cousin sister and happened to hear that she had bought a villa at Dragon Lake Vista. None of them had ever seen a villa there, so they had the sudden thought to come over and have a look.

After seeing Patrick's cousin get out of the car, they got out as well and wanted to find out what was going on.

The fat security guard could only smile awkwardly and say, "This person said he's the owner here, but I don't remember any of the owners driving a Chevy. And besides, why would anyone drive this car brand when they have a net worth of billions?" Having said that, he paused for a moment and added, "But the thing is, he's got a key!"

"Damn b*stard! Of all the people in the world, it just has to be you, Severin!" Patrick initially wanted to flaunt himself in front of Severin at the wedding, since he had always hated Severin for successfully winning Lucy's heart in the past. Unfortunately, he did not expect Severin to send him flying with a single kick. When he saw Severin in the car and recalled the events earlier, his face immediately turned red with anger.

Meanwhile, Easton was just as infuriated and clenched his fists very tightly when he knew that Severin was the driver. Having bumped into him less than a few hours after the ruined wedding, he felt as if the world was too small a place.

When Severin saw that Easton was there too, he got out of the car and asked, "What's the matter? Are you going to try and beat me up again?"

"I...You..." Easton was so overwhelmed with anger that he felt like strangling Severin to death right then and there. Having witnessed Severin's fighting abilities that day, however, he knew that he would never be a match for Severin. In the end, he could only keep his composure even though he was already teetering on the edge of exploding with rage.

"Don't be impulsive again, Severin!" Judith was worried that her son would offend Easton again. and immediately got out of the car to stop him.

"Is this the hothead you guys were talking about earlier?" The stylishly-dressed woman frowned at Severin and asked the group.

Patrick turned to his cousin, Jada Stone, and said, "Yup. This is the same guy who made a ruckus at Easton's wedding today and demanded that the dowry be returned to him. Doesn't that disgust you?"

"Do you know who he is, Miss Jada?" The security guard asked after hearing their conversation. Does he really own a villa here? He has the key to one of the units."

"Him?" Easton asked with a sneer. "Owning a house here? That's just ridiculous. This guy's poor, and he just came out of prison! How can an ex-convict who was released just a couple of days ago be able to afford a villa here?"

Lucy snickered as well. “Hehe, why would I marry Easton if that dirt-poor loser can afford a villa here? Only the rich have the financial ability to buy a home here! If you ask me, I think his key is probably fake!”

Maurice had gone down the car with Judith earlier, and they felt a little ashamed when they heard the accusation that the key might be a fake. After all, they felt that Severin could not have had the means to afford a villa there when it was probably very expensive even to rent it!

“The keys used here are very unique and cannot be forged. Let me have a look at it!” The fat security guard looked at Severin coldly and seemed rather petulant.

Severin smiled faintly and handed the key over. After scrutinizing it briefly, he frowned and said, “It’s genuine.”

A sudden thought occurred to Jada and she immediately reminded the security guard, “Isn’t there a serial number on the keys? There aren’t a lot of villas here, so it won’t be difficult to find out which unit it is from the serial number! Not that it matters anyway, if it’s fake, no amount of forging can make it genuine. If it turns out that the key is real, then he probably stole it from the real owner!”

Patrick felt that Jada’s words made sense. His eyes immediately lit up and said, “Yeah! This guy must have stolen a key from somewhere and wants to sneak in here to steal stuff. Money is the one thing he lacks now that he’s out of prison. If he could just pull a fast one and steal some valuables, he’d be rich in no time! I was told that some of the homeowners here own artwork that is worth millions!”

After looking carefully at the key, the security guard said, “Eight-o-eight. Isn’t that the largest unit on the mountainside with the best location?”

Jada immediately laughed when she heard that. “Hahaha! He stole the key for sure! That particular unit is most famous for being owned by the Longhorns. It’s just that they don’t live here anymore after moving to the new residential area down south!”

Chapter 53

“Haha, bravo, Severin! I can’t believe you took advantage of Mister Henry’s lunch treat and stole the keys to his villa! You probably know that they don’t live here, so you swiped the keys off him and planned to live here yourself!” Easton laughed even more after hearing this. “I’ve seen many shameless people before, but none as shameless as you!”

Lucy taunted him too. “Being poor drove you nuts! I don’t think it’s too far-fetched that you went and stole a key. I mean, you did ask my family to return the dowry.” She then turned to the three security guards in front of her, “I think you should know that he extorted a hundred and ninety thousand dollars from me today. I bet you would’ve been tricked into letting him in if he came here in a better car, like an Audi or maybe a BMW. Luckily for you guys, he couldn’t bring himself to spend any money and bought such a low-end car!”

Jada agreed too. “She’s right. If you let someone like him in and he ends up stealing stuff from the villas, I don’t think you guys will be able to bear the responsibility!”

The three security guards were frightened to hear that.

On the other hand, Maurice and Judith pulled a long face as they stood at one side. They started doubting Severin and began to wonder if the accusations of him stealing the key were true.

Judith looked at Severin and firmly decided to believe her son. She said to Lucy and the others, Stop making wild accusations! My son would never do such a thing, so don't slander him when you have no proof!"

"Slander?" Lucy grinned coldly. She crossed her hands over her chest and said, "That key is the proof right there! What other proof do you need?"

"I share the same view too," Jada agreed. "This villa is worth nearly eleven million dollars, and it's owned by the Longhorns. No other evidence can be more conclusive than this!" She looked at Severin and the others with contempt.

Diane had been sitting quietly inside the car all that time, but eventually, she could not take the insults anymore and stormed out. She then said to the group of people, "And what if Severin didn't steal it? Do any of you have the balls to bet on that with us?"

Easton remarked straightforwardly, "Oh, Miss Diane, I'm curious where you got the balls to act so tough! No one from your family spoke up for you today. Do you think you're still their beloved little daughter? I have to say, you and Severin are quite a perfect match! It's amazing to think that you'd fall for someone like him. Did you knock your head on something? Because I think something's wrong with your brain!"

"I dare you to repeat that, damn it!" Severin clenched his fists and was ready to charge at Easton when the latter made such uncouth remarks about Diane.

However, Severin's parents held him back as firmly as they could and advised him to avoid being so impulsive.

"Hmph, you're lucky my bodyguards aren't with me right now, or else I would've settled scores with you for this morning's incident. But who cares. I'll get even with you sooner or later!" Easton snorted coldly, and said to the three security guards, "Don't just stand there! Call the police! He should be locked up in prison for stealing that key!"

The father of the three guards said, "Sir, I've just called our head of security, and the management is now calling the Longhorn family to check with them. You can rest assured that he'll be done for as long as we can confirm that he stole the key!"

"Hehe, then we'll be staying around here a little longer then. I can't wait to see this guy get arrested again! Hahaha!" Easton laughed out loud. "Man, this feels good! If we hadn't passed by here, this guy would probably have been waved in already!"

In less than a minute, the head of security rushed over in person.

“Have you called the police, sir? This guy must be arrested for stealing this key. There’s already solid proof that it belongs to the Longhorn family, the fat security guard immediately stepped forward and enquired about the situation, but what happened next left him completely speechless.

The head of security gave him a backhand slap and said, “Enough with your nonsense! Mister Severin here is the new owner of villa eight-o-eight!” He then went to Severin, held the key in the palm of his hand, and handed it respectfully to Severin, “Sir, I’m very sorry that my subordinate here was unaware that you’re the new owner. Your car hasn’t been registered with the system yet too, so that’s part of the reason for this whole misunderstanding!”

“Impossible! You people must’ve been mistaken!” Easton exclaimed in disbelief after hearing that.

Chapter 54

The head of security turned around and said to Easton, “The management has already called the Longhorns, and we’ve confirmed that Mister Severin was given the villa to stay in!”

“Given...”

Easton unconsciously took a few steps back. He started to doubt his existence when he heard that Henry had given such a valuable residential property to Severin.

“That...that can’t be. This expensive villa was given away?” Lucy’s mouth was wide and she open could not bring herself to believe what she heard. The villa was worth more than ten million, and it was a status symbol for anyone who lived there.

“Mister Severin, please forgive us for not knowing that you were keeping a low profile. It was also our fault that we didn’t know the villa was given to you!” One of the three security guards was terrified and hurried over to apologize.

“Hehe, it’s no biggie. You can’t be expected to know everything, right?” Severin chuckled, and said, “Remember to enter my license plate number into your system later. Hopefully, you’ll learn not to look down on Chevy drivers next time!”

“Of course, of course! We assure you that we won’t make the same mistake again in the future, Mister Severin!” The fattest of the three wiped off some cold sweat from his forehead when he saw that Severin did not blame any of them. After all, the homeowners there were not people that they could afford to offend.

Besides, if Henry could gift him a villa worth eleven million, then it was almost certain that there was more to him than meets the eye.

“It was...given to us?!” Judith and Maurice were also stunned. They really could not believe that someone would give such an expensive villa to their son.

“Hmph!” Severin looked at Easton and the others before saying, “You’re right. There are still scores to settle between us, but I’ll let you all off for now because it’s already getting late!”

Severin got into the car as soon as he ended his sentence. The security guards immediately let Severin through and saluted him respectfully.

“What’s with Henry and Severin? I thought you said that Severin just came out of prison?” Jada was also a little confused. She had been rather smug when speaking up for Easton and the others earlier, but at the end of the day, she only made a fool out of herself.

Since that was the first time that she had encountered something like that, she felt very upset as a result.

“Yeah, but why would Mister Henry treat him to lunch today and even give him such an expensive villa? How lucky can he be!” Easton was even more upset. His family did not even have a villa like that, and Severin was living in one.

“Damn him!” Lucy was even more unhappy. She chose Easton because Severin was poor, so of course she did not want to see Severin living a good life.

“Don’t worry, babe. I’ll make him regret it. F*ck him. I’m guessing that the Longhorn family owed him a favor and decided to repay it by giving him that villa. Well, he can enjoy himself for now. There’s plenty of time for me to get even with him in the future!” Easton remarked coldly and had a vicious look on his face!

Chapter 55

Severin soon drove the car to the gate of Villa 808. It was very huge, and there was a garage that was specially located next to the entrance. He parked the car there, got out, and took the key to open the door.

“I...I never dreamed that we’d ever have the chance to live in such a big villa!” Maurice felt emotional when he looked at the big villa in front of him.

Judith frowned. “I don’t think we can’t afford the management fees for such a big place...”

Severin opened the door with a smile. “Leave those stuff to me. I want you to move in here with peace of mind, so don’t worry so much about everything.”

“Come now, dear! Let’s move our belongings in. I believe Severin must’ve done some great things for Henry to give him this villa!” Maurice smiled and said, “It seems that Severin’s medical ability is exceptionally good and he saved Henry’s life successfully. We might not be able to afford a place like this even if we work ourselves to death, but this might just be worth pocket change to Henry!”

“Right, we should move our stuff in first. It’s getting dark already, so we should get everything sorted out and let everyone choose their rooms. Once that’s done, we’ll get some delicious food outside!” Diane smiled too. It was the first time in five years that she had felt genuinely happy. At long last, she no longer had to live in that small and cramped place with her daughter.

“Will I have my room too, Mom?” Selene looked at Diane innocently and asked curiously.

“Yes, of course! A villa as big as this would have lots and lots of rooms, both upstairs and downstairs!” Diane said with a smile. “I’ll bring you up in a moment so you can choose the room you want!”

“Your mother and I are fine with downstairs. You three should take the rooms upstairs!” Maurice chuckled and added, “You know, I kept worrying over what to do if Severin came out of prison with so much debt. He didn't have a house or a wife at the time too, but now, he has a wife and a daughter, and he can even call this huge villa home! It's all still so surreal to me!" !

Judith rolled her eyes. "Look at you, being all beside yourself with joy!"

Maurice laughed. "Haha, shouldn't I be unhappy? Everything changed overnight! We don't need to worry that Severin won't be able to find a wife anymore!"

Judith once again urged Severin. "The Longhorns have shown so much kindness to you, and while you did save the old man's life, it's rare for anyone to just give you a place to stay. Always remember to repay them with the same kindness they've shown you, understand?"

"Yes, Mom. I understand. You should be enjoying yourself a little more, you know!" Severin smiled and added, "By the way, I'll make some medicinal liquid for you tomorrow so you can use it to wash your hair. I guarantee it'll turn black within a week!"

"Look at you bragging. Does something that amazing even exist?" Judith was all smiles, and she seemed to have grown younger by several years since Severin returned. That youthful vigor was something she never had in the past. Severin's return meant that she no longer had to worry about whether or not he was doing all right in prison. 1

"Haha, don't worry, I'm an expert when it comes to medical matters, and I promise I'm not bragging. You'll see for yourself when the time comes!" Severin laughed and changed the topic. By the way, Mom, if I have the time these next few days, I'll ask someone to clean this place up. Then we can invite Aunt Marie and the others over for a meal in another two or three days. We'll treat it as a little housewarming party! And when the time comes, I'll return the money that we owe them!"

"No, no, no, don't bother hiring people! Your dad and I can help clean the yard. It's not like we have anything to do, anyway. With all the free time we have, there's no need to spend all that money on hiring cleaners!" Judith immediately rejected the idea as she did not want to spend any money to clean the place.

Severin let out a sigh. "Okay, Mom." As things stood, his parents still had to slowly adapt to living life like rich people. That was no surprise, given that they spent their entire lives working so hard. It would be very unrealistic for him to suddenly ask them to change their way of thinking when it had been ingrained in them for so long.

"Oh dear, the decorations here are so luxurious!"

"Yeah, these sofas feel brand new!"

"Wow, there's even a bar here! And there's red wine up there too!"

Chapter 56

"This chandelier probably costs hundreds!"

"I think it's more than that. I think it probably costs several thousand!"

As soon as they stepped into the house, the old couple was once again stunned by the sheer luxury within.

Diane smiled and took Selene upstairs, with Severin following behind them.

“The living area up here is just as spacious as the one below. There are rooms on either side of the corridor too! This place does have a lot of rooms,” Severin pointed out.

Diane made an off-handed comment. “It’s good that there are more rooms. Now you can have your own room instead of sleeping on the floor!”

Little did she expect that her comment would prompt Selene to look up and glare suspiciously at her. “Shouldn’t you be sleeping with Dad?”

Diane’s mind went blank for a moment. She looked at Severin before squatting down and saying to her daughter, “Who told you that moms and dads must sleep together?”

In response, Selene asked, “Will I get a little brother if you don’t sleep together?”

Severin immediately smiled. “Don’t worry, Selene. Mom’s just teasing you. We’ll sleep together once in a while!”

“Oh!” Selene replied with a chuckle, almost as if she understood it.

Diane stood back up and rolled her eyes at Severin. “Let’s get back to choosing our rooms!”

Before long, everyone had chosen their rooms, and all three were situated next to each other.” This way,’ Severin thought, ‘I can take care of them since my room is just beside theirs.”

At that moment, Blade had sought out Draco Hall’s Supreme Commander. “My brother, it has shown itself. it has appeared!”

The man, Larry Dune, was sipping leisurely on some tea.

Upon seeing Blade’s flustered look, Larry finally set the teacup in his hand down on the table.” Look at yourself. What’s gotten into you? You’re the second-in-command, for goodness’ sake! What’s gotten you so nervous!”

Blade then said, “Supreme Commander, the ring that you mentioned... It’s here. The Dracodeus. Ring has surfaced!”

“D-D-Dracodeus...the D-D-Dracodeus Ring!”

A look of surprise came over Larry’s expression and he stood up immediately. He frowned and asked, “Are you sure you didn’t mistake something else for it? Did the Dracodeus Ring show up here in our city? If that’s true, wouldn’t that mean that this is the coming of the Dracodeus Temple’s Supreme Leader?”

“Yes. It is the Dracodeus Ring! You showed us that ring before, and I made sure to take a closer look today. This cannot be anything else but the Dracodeus Ring!” Blade said again.

“What kind of person is our supreme leader?” Larry pondered over it and asked further.

“He’s an ordinary but handsome-looking young man in his twenties...” Blade recalled what happened and said, “Perhaps I should tell you everything that happened today affairs in more detail!”

After a while, Larry said, “If Henry showed that high regard for him, then he must’ve known that our supreme leader is no small fry. Do you know where he’s staying? We should bring someone there to meet him!” Having said that, he remarked a little excitedly, “Our supreme leader has come! Do you know what this means, Blade?”

“What...does it mean?” Blade had a puzzled look on his face.

“You’re all brawn and no brains. It means that we won’t need to be afraid of those two opponents in the future. There’s a chance we might become the true ruler of Brookbourn’s underground forces!” Larry said.

Chapter 57

Blade was elated to hear that and immediately said, “Oh yeah! Why didn’t I think of that? Our supreme leader is here, so there’s nothing for us to fear if he’s willing to help us!”

“Correct!” Larry nodded. “I believe, there must be something extraordinarily unique about him, else he wouldn’t have become the leader of the twelve halls!” He then ordered, “Go forth and find out where he lives! It’s too late now, but we can bring our men to visit him tomorrow or the day after! Do be aware that our supreme leader is our divine existence. Mind your words all the time and avoid angering him at all costs!”

Elsewhere, Severin was driving along the road when he spotted a restaurant that was rather tastefully decorated. He decided that they should have dinner there. As soon as they got out of the car and saw the restaurant’s decor from a distance, Judith frowned and whispered to Maurice, “This place looks super expensive...”

Maurice at Severin and Diane who were walking up ahead. “I think it’s for the best if you don’t bring that up. I’m guessing that the clothes Severin bought for us today are just as expensive, otherwise, he would not have only eighty-five thousand dollars left from that hundred-and-ninety thousand that he demanded from the Orwells. The car must be expensive too, and I’m guessing that it’s around ten thousand dollars!”

Judith gasped in surprise and had to stop herself from letting out a terrified cry. She could tell that the clothes were expensive because of how good the quality was, but she did not think much of it then. When she thought about it again, she could already feel a chill down her spine.

When Maurice saw that Judith was about to let out a cry, Maurice hurriedly covered her mouth and then said, “Diane suffered for five years. She deserves to get the good things in life. It’s also Severin’s first time treating her and Selene to a meal. Just close one eye if it’s expensive. Don’t make too big of a fuss when the food arrives, okay? Make sure you stay calm.”

Judith nodded, and Maurice finally let go of her hand.

“Sigh, the gap between the rich and the poor is simply too big. Diane comes from an upper-class family, and I feel like our son just isn’t good enough for her!” Judith lamented. “But that doesn’t. change the fact that she's a good woman. She raised Selene all by herself without telling us, and she even helped us despite having a difficult life. Severin needs to treat her well from now on!"

"I think he's already mature enough to know that this is the path he's chosen." Maurice smiled slightly.

"Grandpa! Grandma! Hurry up!" Selene ran to the door of the restaurant and turned around to urge Maurice and Judith.

"Okay! We'll be right there!" Maurice answered excitedly.

"Selene is such a good girl! She's so adorable!" Judith said with a smile.

When they came to the restaurant, Severin led them to a table by the window and sat down.

"Welcome, sir! Here's the menu!" A waitress came over and handed the menu to Severin.

Severin took a look at the dishes on it, and could not help but frown. The cheapest dishes cost nearly a hundred dollars, while the more expensive ones were in the hundreds. As for the red wine, the price range was about a thousand to four thousand dollars per bottle. Such prices would have scared him five years ago, but he now felt that it was a tiny sum compared to the dizzying number contained in the bank card.

"Order whatever you want, honey!" Severin put the menu on the table and said to Diane.

Judith could tell that the decorations there were quite exquisite. There was a stage with a piano not too far away, and a pianist had been hired to play some music. It was normal, then, for her to worry that the food there was too expensive.

Chapter 58

Judith stretched her neck to glance at the price, and her face sank instantly. Unfortunately, she had been told not to make any remarks about it and so smiled awkwardly while saying to Diane, "Go ahead and order whatever you like, Diane. These few years have been very tough on you, so you don't have to hold back on Severin's first time treating you to a meal!"

Maurice was already mentally prepared for the food prices there. After all, few people patronized that establishment because it was beyond the financial means of ordinary people. Rich business people seemed to be the only customers there.

After seeing the price, however, he still could not help his frown as he picked up the tea on the table and poured himself a cup.

Diane just looked up at the old couple and could feel their uneasiness, so she smiled faintly and said, "I don't feel like eating oily food, Severin. How about we go someplace else?"

At that moment, a rich young man happened to pass by with his group of friends, and his eyes lit up as soon as he saw Diane.

He immediately smiled. "What a marvelous excuse, pretty lady. If you can't afford it, then just say so. Don't make excuses about how you don't want any oily food. They serve imported lobsters here, along with abalone and fish! Everything's delicious, and the soup's not that oily, is it? I don't think the waitress would buy your excuse!"

Diane's face soured when she heard the man's remark and she shot back coldly, "Whether or not I can afford to eat here has nothing to do with you, does it?"

The rich young man stretched out an index finger and put his other hand on the back of the seat next to Diane. He bent down slightly and smiled cheekily as he wagged his finger and said, "Hush now, babe. It has everything to do with me because I've fallen for you at first sight! If you promise to come with me tonight, I'll pay for your meal in return. You can order whatever you like!"

"Haha, that's Norman for you!" A guy behind him burst out laughing.

"You've got a good eye, Norman. Her beauty is on point!" Another chubbier man laughed without caring that Diane and Severin would be unhappy.

"Hehe, you guys can take it easy. I only brought them here to eat because I know I can afford it!" Severin smiled faintly and said politely to those men, "So, I think you should leave as far away as possible now, or else you might find yourself in a position where you can't bear the consequences!"

"Whoa, do you honestly think I won't be able to bear the consequences?" The man whom the others called Norman became even more abrasive when he heard that. "Hahaha! My word is gospel here in these parts! And also, I wasn't talking to you just now. I was asking this beautiful woman right here. It doesn't matter if you disagree! What's important is that she says yes!"

Severin's expression darkened and he shot the man a cold glare. A murderous look had already begun to surface from the depths of his eyes, and he would have smacked the man senseless had it not been for the presence of his parents and daughter there. He did his level best to tell himself that it would be best to ignore a pest like that and then said politely, "Are you going to tell me that my opinion doesn't matter when I'm her man?"

"Oh, I see!" The man straightened his posture and pretended to be surprised, but he then shrugged his shoulders and had a smug expression on his face. "Sorry to break it to you, but I've taken a liking to her. She's still smoking hot even though she's a mother! Mmmh! That's my type!"

He then turned to Diane and said, "Don't worry, love. You can eat all the expensive dishes here. I've got loads of money anyway! I can let your family enjoy the best food in exchange for you letting me enjoy you tonight!"

"Shameless!" Diane gritted her teeth and her face turned blue with anger. She stood up immediately and said, "Let's go someplace else, Severin! I've lost my appetite with the sight of this huge roach here!"

"How dare you f*cking call me a roach! I only offered to treat to you a meal because you struck m fancy. Who do you think you are?" When Norman heard Diane call him a roach, he felt that she had thoroughly embarrassed him in front of his friends and raised his hand to slap her.

Chapter 59

“Ah!” In the blink of an eye, Norman squatted down on the floor after Severin grabbed his arm. Severin’s grasp was like a pair of iron clamps, grasping his wrist firmly and preventing him from moving even an inch.

Severin was already doing his best to bear with the entire situation, but the man did not give it up and continued to overstep his bounds, going so far as to even slap his woman! There was no he could restrain himself from getting angry when things had gotten that far. A man in Severin’s shoes would never another person bully the woman who had suffered five years for his sake.

Severin exerted a bit of force and broke the man’s arm with a crisp snap.

“AGH!” The veins on Norman’s forehead bulged out due to the excruciating pain, and all it took was a little nudge to send him collapsing onto the ground.

“Ah, it hurts!” Beads of cold sweat dripped down Norman’s forehead. He never imagined that Severin would be so strong as to break off his arm with just a simple grip.

“Norman! What happened? Are you all right?”

His friends were terribly frightened, but being the fair-weather friends that they were, no one dared to go forward and fight back. They could only run over and help Norman up.

“It’s broken! My arm...it must be broken! It hurts so badly!”

Norman grimaced in pain. “Hey fatso! Go out and tell my bodyguards to come in. Don’t you f* cking know what to do if this sort of thing happens?”

The fat man immediately realized that Norman’s bodyguards were waiting outside, so he immediately ran out in a panic after being berated.

“You’re all evil! You wanted to slap my mom, so it’s a good thing that my dad fought back!” Selene did not seem afraid at all and even applauded from the sidelines.

“This is bad, Severin! You’ve gotten yourself in trouble again!” Diane’s expression sank as she exclaimed anxiously.

Severin smiled faintly. “You saw what was going on, didn’t you, honey? He would’ve slapped you if I hadn’t done anything! I don’t care if people target me, but I’d rather die than let anyone bully my wife!”

His words left Diane feeling all fuzzy in her heart. The man was relentless and did not know when to give up even after she made it clear that she wanted to go elsewhere. All the signs pointed to the possibility that he would not be letting them leave until he got what he wanted.

Judith and Maurice were just as worried and were at a loss as to what they should do.

All of a sudden, Judith thought of something and said to Severin, “Severin! You need to call Mister Henry and ask him for help! That guy just told his friend to call his bodyguards in. You can’t handle all of them alone!”

Severin shrugged. “Don’t worry, Mom. I can still deal with them. A savant taught me many things in prison, and it’ll be easy-peasy for me to deal with these guys! We can’t keep pestering Mister

Henry to help us with everything, and besides, it's already too late at night! Mister Henry's people won't make it in time even if I called them over!"

After saying that, Severin rubbed his hands and walked to the corridor to wait for the bodyguards.

"Where's that idiot who broke your arm, Mister Norman? I'll beat him to death!" A bald man said angrily as he marched in with three other men.

"There! It's that guy over there! I want you to break his limbs!" Norman gritted his teeth and pointed at Severin with his non-broken hand. He then added, "Also, I want you to take that woman next to him and shove her into my car. I swear I'll get on top of this poor but pretty b*tch today!"

Norman was neither foolish enough nor brave enough to offend those from rich and powerful families. When he saw the way Diane looked at the menu and heard her say that she wanted to go to another restaurant, he felt certain that the entire family was just a bunch of poor people. When it came to poor people, he could bully them as much as he wanted, and it would not be a problem for him to secretly kill her family members some other time.

"Okay, sir! Just leave it to us!" The bald man said while patting his chest. The four of them immediately strode toward Severin, while Diane could only frown and cover Selene's eyes.

"I'm sorry that my son retaliated a little too harshly earlier, but it was your kind sir here who started it first. How about we sit down and talk it over? We'll pay for the medical expenses... Judith immediately began begging for mercy when she saw that.

"Hehe, no can do, old lady. I'm priceless. Can you people even afford my medical expenses? If you can cough up one and a half million, then by all means do it!" Norman laughed condescendingly when he saw Judith's demeanor.

Judith was completely dumbfounded when she heard that sum. It was simply too huge!

The four bodyguards had approached them and were about to attack, but Severin knocked them all down in quick succession before they could do anything. All four of them winced in pain on the ground.

"How is this possible? Aren't you all mercenaries? How useless can you f*cking mercenaries be?" Norman was aghast to see what had happened.

"Sir, he's...he's too skilled! We're no match for him!" the bald man cried out while cowering in pain. Another bodyguard clutched his chest and said, "Sir, I think my ribs are broken! Gah, it hurts!"

"You think you're so great, huh? Well, just wait!" Norman still did not give up and picked up his cell phone to call his mother. He cried out loud and said, "Mom, someone bullied me! Hic, hic! Bring the other bodyguards here now! Make sure that you bring more people here! This guy is really good at fighting, and he even broke my arm!... Yes, yes, bring the head of our family's bodyguards! The new bodyguards around me are a fraud! They're useless!... Yeah, that's where I am right now!" Severin listened to Norman's complaints and found it hilarious. Those bodyguards were trained individuals, not frauds, and they were strong enough to overpower any ordinary person with ease. Unfortunately, they were like ants in the eyes of a person who was taught by the old wacko.

After ending the phone call, Norman glared viciously at Severin and said, "You're done for! It's all over for you!"

"Get up! We're going to stand guard outside so they don't slip away!" Norman gave his men an order and walked out dejectedly.

The waitress from before was terrified by what happened. Meanwhile, another of the service crew was giving their boss a call.

The waitress came over and asked timidly, "S-S-Sir? Would you s-s-still like to order?"

"Why not!" Severin looked at his family and said, "Mom, Dad, please don't be scared. Just sit down and enjoy your food. I'm amazing, after all!"

"O-Okay!" Judith smiled awkwardly but still felt a little worried.

"This one, please. And this. I want the most expensive dishes. Oh, I want to servings of these lobsters too! As for the red wine, I think we'll take two of these for now!" Severin knew that there was no point in asking his parents to order, so he went ahead and casually ordered a variety of dishes. The total cost would probably be several thousand at the least.

"All right, sir. Your food will be ready soon." The waitress glanced at Severin and felt that his temperament was very unique. Judging from how calm he was despite knowing that the other guy had called for more men, it was likely that Severin was no ordinary man!

"We get to eat some big lobsters, Mom! Do lobsters taste good? I've never tried them before!" Selene was almost drooling when she looked at the big lobster on the menu.
