

Arabella 1659

Chapter 1659

"No problem!!" Candice's voice rang with excitement, "Bella, we're gonna treat you to dinner, all of us. Seriously, can't thank you enough for today."

After she hung up, some members of the Light Fleet were all over her, dying to know what Arabella had said on the phone. Candice just told them she had left.

"I wanted to pick her brain about racing."

"I wanted to grab a selfie with her."

"I wonder if she'd join Light Fleet."

"I wanted to be her friend."

"Shouldn't we be sharing the good news with Ms. Almond right away?"

"Yeah, let's shoot Ms. Almond a video call, tell her we won!"

Steward couldn't remember the last time he'd seen Sean take a hit like this, especially not from a girl like Arabella.

orders to dump the girl at that Hill and strip her waiting at the starting line for Arabella red sports car returning, not even the hum of the red car had taken a different path down the hill, it hadn't he pondered this, one of his men came

"What did you say?"

"She took another road."

world spun. Sean had been defeated by her, and his mood was bound to be foul. If would be directed squarely

This was bad.

car rolled back to the cheer or even breathe too loudly,

that they could just vanish into thin

of the car with a poker face that betrayed no another road." Steward approached tentatively didn't bring her back? Do I have to chase

Steward wanted to say that even Sean himself couldn't make it catching her – hadn't he just lost to her? But all he could muster was a meek, "I'll get my men on it right away."

As Sean strode towards the building, Steward blurted out, "Oh, Sean."

Sean's icy gaze was piercing.

Steward shivered, "Her driving skills are so good."

Before he could finish, Sean's eyes grew even colder.

"I mean, if Ms. Almond values her skills, should we really bring her back?"

Sean's voice was chilling, "What do you think?"

Steward wanted to say that he had no clue what Sean was thinking, but it then occurred to him that they had lost their lead on the Demon Ring because of that girl last night, and now she had beaten them on their own Kowloon Bay track. If he didn't bring her in to let Sean give vent to his anger, he'd be the one in the crosshairs.

But what if Sean wanted to pursue her later? If they did make a spectacle of her and it was found out by Ms. Almond, would it leave a bad impression on her and create a rift between them?

He sighed internally. Best to capture her first and figure out the rest later.