

Arabella 1673

Chapter 1673

The male driver was still uneasy, "If I die, how will I know you've transferred the remaining to my account?"

"You're putting your life on the line for me, do you really think I'd be so heartless, so utterly despicable as to shortchange you that 900 grands? Isn't your life worth more than that? I promised you the money, and you'll get it, just do as I say."

The male driver seemed to waver.

"Your illness is a millstone around your family's neck. Do you really want them to live in debt and struggle after you're gone? I'll be eternally grateful for you taking care of my problem. I swear on my heart, the 900 grand is yours!"

Finally, she convinced the driver, and he agreed to the deal.

sat at the front table. He never imagined that the gentle and understanding woman he met for the first time ex-wife was hit by a truck and landed in the ICU, he hadn't even known Maureen. So, his meeting Maureen, getting to know sister." Celeste stood up in disbelief, trembling as she pointed at Maureen across the table, "My sister didn't it wasn't me. This audio is fabricated by someone else to slander me." As Maureen spoke, realization dawned on her, and she looked in disbelief towards Dennis and Carol on the stage, "It on stage lit up, showing all the evidence of irrefutable proof, Rudolf was overwhelmed with grief and anger. He rushed down the stage and slapped had once adored and grief, rushed forward, grabbing an empty bowl and a dish from the

Rudolf staggered back.

"What are you doing?" Katherine and her brother Meredith were terrified. Katherine tried to intervene, while Meredith hid to the side, fearing he'd be caught in the crossfire.

"You heartless wretch, I'll kill you." Celeste clutched Maureen's hair, tearing out clumps of the carefully styled locks, "If it wasn't for you, our car wouldn't have been hit, my sister wouldn't have been crippled, and my brother-in-law wouldn't have rushed to the ICU in a panic, neglecting the kids for a moment. It's all because of you."

Alger Temple was also enraged. If not for all this, their only daughter Crystal would still be alive!

Simona's family charged forward, raining blows and kicks on Maureen. Maureen's family tried to pull them off, and chaos erupted throughout the venue.

Just then, the giant screen lit up again. The secret of Maureen's discontent with the driver's family pestering her for years, and her hidden dealings with a hitman, was exposed for all to see.