

Arabella 129

Chapter 129

"Romeo" Serena spotted him about to leave and quickly grabbed the hem of his coat. "I like you; I really do. Can you turn around and look at me, please?"

At this moment, Martha coughed from a distance, seemingly hinting at something.

Following Martha's gaze, Serena saw Arabella descend the stairs step by step. She hurriedly let go of Romeo's coat, stammering, "Sis, you mustn't misunderstand."

Crap, would Arabella spill the beans to their parents?

Would they think Serena had ulterior motives and kick her out of the house?

If that were the case, she'd be doomed!

"Carry on," Arabella said nonchalantly as she walked towards the kitchen.

She had been watching the drama unfold from upstairs until she got hungry and didn't feel like watching anymore.

with Arabella's pace, explaining nervously, "Bella, it's not what you think."

then?" Arabella retorted indifferently as she coat, that's all." Romeo hastily took off his suit jacket and tossed it in just been slapped across the face.

actually found the clothing she touched filthy!

hand and asked, "Are you mad? If David Collins and asked, "Which pair surprise. "Romeo, are you broke? You don't even have pants to wear? What are you doing at my house so early in the morning?" David Collins, the youngest son who was rarely home, suddenly understood, "Are you so broke that you need my family to take you in? Should I wire you some money? I to the cloakroom. It the colors were too conspicuous, too trendy—a bit hip-hop, not Romeo's style.

the closet. Just how did you go bankrupt? Tell me, how did I not hear could finish his taunting, Romeo ended heading downstairs, Romeo saw Arabella on the balcony, making a call. Her slender figure was so pleasing to the eye that it was indescribable. Seeing her hang up after a he had changed into new pants. How did he have pants wanted to hug