

The Princess and the Pauper (Arabella)

Chapter 880

Chapter 880

"I know, it's just a suspicion of mine. Don't worry just yet; Arabella genily said, "I've already sent people to look for her. We haven't found her yet, but we could try contacting her parents first."

Perhaps her parents knew what was going on.

"Well, what are we waiting for? Let's head to Lidaria now."

Clark was genuinely anxious to find the girl. The thought of Carol possibly being poisoned, relying on a different poison to delay its effects, made his heart ache as if he were suffocating.

Just then, Jack knocked on the door, "Boss, there's news. Mr. and Mrs. Earwood have run out of money. They're teaching foreign language to a family in Lidaria. I've sent the address to your phone."

"Good, Arabella calmly ordered, "Prepare the private jet. Clark and I are going over."

Clark was surprised, "You have a private jet?"

Upon hearing this, Jack interjected, "Boss, you can't leave the country! Have you forgotten about those factions from before?"

Arabella's stern gaze silenced him, and Jack quickly changed his approach, "I think it's best for you to stay within the country.

There's a lot that needs your attention."

Clark sensed something was off, "What do you mean by 'those factions'? Why can't Bella leave the country? Is she in danger if she does?"

Jack was caught off guard, and after a pause, he bluffed, "What I meant was, remember when the boss went to Carol's house and some people got away? What if they bring reinforcements and set a trap for the boss in Lidaria? The boss doesn't have any support there, and it's too dangerous."

"Shut up." Arabella was annoyed by his rambling.

"Boss."

Arabella raised her stern gaze again, and Jack had no choice but to silently retreat.

"Bella, send me the address. I can go alone,' Clark was aware of the danger, "You should stay safe here. If anything happens to you, I will never forgive myself"

"Jack is just a worrier. Ignore him. Let's go back to Reflections Villa and pack some light luggage. We might be gone for a couple of days."

Despite having a change of clothes on her private jet, Clark didn't.

"Bella, listen to me,' Clark was truly reluctant to let her take this risk, especially since he had finally found such a caring sister.

"Clark, there's no room for negotiation in this."

Arabella thought to herself that she could protect Clark if she went with him.

If Clark went alone, that's when the real danger would arise.

She would have to rescue him if he was captured, which would be even more troublesome.

Seeing his sister's resolution, Clark hesitated, "Bella."

"Let's go back to Reflections Villa first' Arabella didn't want to discuss it any further.

Seeing his sister's stubborn face, Clark finally relented, "Promise me, Bella. If there's any danger and I tell you to run, you have to listen."

"Alright."

Even if she had to run, she would take Clark with her.

"No going back on your word; Clark added.

"Of course, no going back."

On their way back to Reflections Villa, Clark received a few WhatsApp messages. It was Serena.

[Clark, I've decided. Let's head to Iridia this weekend. We can check in at the famous scenic spots and visit Disneyland.]

Pretending to be understanding, Serena added, [Bella probably didn't have many opportunities to go to places like that growing up. It could leave her with some nice memories.]