

Chapter 310

Chapter 310 Landing

Ross looked much calmer than I expected.

She still held Robin's arm and even smiled a little, "Honey, don't try to steal her from me.

Olive is my friend. As far as I know, she already has a boyfriend."

"But she lives alone." Robin shrugged and said very casually, "Don't be jealous, honey. I found something more interesting."

Then, he looked at me, "Are you going back to rest? Let's go together."

I was tempted to say no, but the reality was that I wanted to go back to my cabin right away.

Moreover, I noticed the subtle chemistry between them. Whether it was Ross's attitude towards Robin or Robin's attitude towards

Ross and me, it was beyond the traditional model of intimacy. They might have an open relationship!

But I dared not ask more, because the topic would be too offensive.

More importantly, I didn't like this frivolous man at all

When it came to being handsome and playful, Aaron could be regarded as the top of the pyramid among such men. But although Aaron was playful, he looked noble enough not to appear obscene, lowly, or disgusting. And, even though he had been a playboy, he had never embarrassed any of his women in front of others.

I even felt guilty for comparing him with this man in front of me.

Robin didn't deserve to be compared with Aaron at all!

So, I pretended to be calm, restrained myself, and followed Ross and her boyfriend on the way back to the cabin.

"You haven't told me what more interesting things you found," Ross remembered the topic just now.

"Don't worry. You'll know right away."

I didn't want to hear Robin's voice even a little bit more. So when I saw my cabin, I immediately said, "Here am I."

"Do you see it?" Robin laughed loudly.

He pointed at me, and laughed hysterically,

"She's the person who pounded the wall last night to make us quiet down."

I froze in place.

What did he just say?

My eyes swept over Ross and Robin, and the embarrassment spread from the soles of my feet like ice and snow, freezing my whole body solidly.

So, the passenger in the next cabin was Ross?

Last night, they had been so passionate that they made love until dawn.

Now, not only did I feel embarrassed, even Ross froze.

"I'm very sorry...I'm going back to rest." I didn't want to stay in front of these two people for another second, so I almost rushed into the cabin and closed the door.

What the hell?!

Why did such an embarrassing thing happen to me?

I lay on the bed, covered my head with a pillow, and moaned in pain.

The more embarrassing thing was yet to come. A few hours later, the familiar sound came again from the cabin next door.

'Sam! Easy...don't be like this ...'

"Don't you just like me like this, baby? Isn't my big dick making you feel good?"

I heard Sam's vulgar words. I fell into a silent meltdown. There was even a moment when I wanted to rush to the next door and punch him hard in the jaw!

He did it on purpose!

He was having sex with Ross at this time and saying those words on purpose. He just wanted me to hear it. This was his way of showing off

He was a total jerk!

Thinking of this, I felt sorry for Ross. She shouldn't be hanging out with this bastard at all. Someone like her deserved a better man.

The noise continued, and I couldn't fall asleep, so I flicked through messages on my phone.

Aaron didn't message me today. He probably had gone back. I wondered whether he had returned to the United States or Germany.

I opened the messenger and sent Cinder a message.

Me: Are you free? I have a lot of things I want to confide in you.

Moments later, Cinder sends me a FaceTime invite.

I wanted to connect at first. But thinking of the situation next door, I had to choose to refuse.

Me: FaceTime is not convenient now. At this moment, a man and a woman living in the cabin next to me are having sex.

Soon, Cinder sent another FaceTime invite.

Although she didn't say a word, I could probably guess why she sent the invitation again.

I quickly found my earphones in the bag.

After I put them on, I accepted the invitation. Cinder's face quickly appeared on the screen.

"What's going on? Any gossip? Tell me."

Cinder stared at the camera with great interest.

I cooperatively pointed the phone at the wall.

"Hey, Olive baby, besides the sex noises, why do I hear the sound of waves?" Cinder asked in a puzzled tone, "Where are you now?"

"Drake Passage. I'm on my way to meet my parents." I got my phone back and took a seat away from Ross and Robin's cabin.

"The South Pole?! God, you're getting wilder every time. Wait. Didn't you go back to the United States to spend Christmas with Nick? In just one week, how many things happened that I don't know! 1

I guessed that Cinder would have such a reaction.

So, in the next hour, I told her everything that had happened during that time. Of course, I skipped over the fact that I had been alone with Aaron, and even that he had followed me to Argentina.

Even so, the rich twists and turns during this period were enough to make Cinder widen her eyes in shock for a long time.

After she digested the information, regret followed.

"I shouldn't have gone to see Elliott! As soon as he saw me, he hugged me and cried, and then he was sticking to me for 24 hours a day like an octopus." Cinder sighed repeatedly, "I missed

so many big events

"I'm not sure whether you are showing off or regretting," I complained.

'Of course, I'm regretting! Do you know how I spent Christmas this year? On the bed! I specially arranged a very atmospheric environment in advance, but he was so horny that he didn't even let me eat Christmas dinner. He threw me directly onto the bed!"

I was not surprised.

If Cinder had gotten a chance to get her hands on the phone, she wouldn't have ignored me and Nick for so many days. She hadn't even sent us a message.

"Honey, I support you in going to the South Pole to talk to your parents, but I have a question." Cinder's expression became serious, "Are you sure you can let Aaron go after you untie the knot in your mind?"

I fell silent.

"I always feel that he is still in your heart, and this has nothing to do with your family."

"I don't know. But no matter what, this trip is not meaningless." I pointed the camera out of the window, "Did you see it? It's comparable to the scene of a disaster movie."

A huge wave just hit the glass, and Cinder screamed.

Thanks to a chat with Cinder, I felt so much better. After reluctantly hanging up, the noise next door finally stopped.

I fell into a drowsy sleep.

When I woke up, I seemed to be back in bed at home. It was so quiet that no sound could be heard. There was no shaking or bumping on the ground.

I heard Captain Rothwell's voice on the radio,

"Dear ladies and gentlemen, we have successfully crossed the deepest strait in the world and officially entered the Arctic Circle. Next, the Explorer will make the first landing of this trip on the South Pole peninsula.

Please be prepared."