

The Untouchable Ex-Wife

Chapter 1567

“So, you think that I’ll win this battle, Grandpa?” The corners of Jovan’s lips curved into a devious smile.

“Yeah, you’ll win, but you’ll never win for real without me saying yes.” Timothy’s gaze grew colder. Despite his old age, he could still be intimidating if he wanted to.

Jovan sat up straight and said icily, “You know that I’ve always lost to Stefan, so I’ll give it my all this time. I’ll let everyone in Beach City know that I’m stronger than him so I don’t have to keep living in his shadow. As for you...” He sized Timothy up and sighed. “You’ll leave this world one day, and when that happens, Stefan can no longer use your power to intimidate me.”

“Well, you don’t have to wait until I’m dead to defeat him. I’ve been thinking about it for a long time, and I realize that Stef may not care about money and fame now. So, I’ve decided on something, and I hope you can accept it...” Timothy said mysteriously.

“What did you come up with?” Jovan frowned and asked curiously.

“First, promise me not to harm Stefan and have any ulterior motives toward Renee no matter what. Even if you have full control of Hunt Enterprise, Stefan and his descendants will have one-third of the dividend of the company...”

“One-third of the dividend?” Hearing that, Jovan burst into laughter. “What a nice long-term plan you have for your grandson! So, I’ve got to work hard every day while he relaxes and enjoys the dividend?”

“Well, you can see it that way but isn’t that what you want?” Timothy continued, “You want to win and prove that you’re stronger than Stef. When you have full control of the company in the future, you’ll have a lot of chances to do that. Plus, he’ll just get a mere one-third of the dividend; it’s a great compromise. After all, the dividend he has now is more than four-thirds.” Even if Timothy was old, he had a clear mind. He struggled to sit up, then opened a drawer and fished out a contract to hand to Jovan. “Take a look at this contract-I’ve listed all my requests here. If you agree to them, I can announce you as the new head of the company early next month. Your power over Hunt Enterprise will surpass Stefs.”

Timothy had come up with that decision after a fierce internal struggle. He knew that his son and grandsons would be forever inferior to Jovan’s family for many years to come if he handed over the power to Jovan, but people couldn’t be greedy. Since Stefan had a family, he had to give his business up. If he chose the comfort of his family, he would lose control over the company. It would be best if Stefan could lead a peaceful and ordinary life with his family without any worries. Hence, Timothy felt that he had to get rid of Stefan for the sake of the company and to avoid any future worries.