

Chapter 902 See Watkins Again

It had been a passionate night, Julie and Liam's fervor carrying them until exhaustion claimed them. Quietly slipping from the embrace of the bathroom, they found solace in slumber.

In the dead of night, Asher roused them from their rest.

With an innocent gaze, Asher queried, "Dad, why didn't you and mom wear clothes to sleep? You'll catch a cold!"

Those words froze Liam and Julie, a hint of embarrassment tingling within them.

Yet, within that moment, warmth enveloped them, too.

Suddenly, Julie spoke softly. "Liam, shall we apply for a marriage certificate?"

Liam paused for a while before responding, "Okay. Once I've reorganized the Salem forces, I'll hold a grand wedding ceremony, announcing to all of Salem that you're the happiest woman!"

Liam left the sentiment hanging. Post-wedding, he would pass the reins of Salem, including the Kingland Group, to Julie.

To him, the group was his, yet now, insignificance cloaked it.

Liam knew he couldn't keep an eye on Kingland Group all the time.

The next morning, the family rose early.

After yesterday, Julie's face regained its natural rosy hue.

As he gazed at Julie, her makeup-free face slightly aged from five years prior, Liam appeared earnest and concerned. "Julie, the past five years have been difficult for you while I was away. Henceforth, take care to present yourself. I understand the value women place on feeling beautiful."

Julie was deeply moved, tears welling up in her eyes.

Witnessing her heartfelt reaction, Liam, to soothe her emotions, playfully remarked, "After all, you are the wife of the general. How can you not dress up well?"

Julie chuckled, adopting a flirtatious tone. "Liam, do you think I'm getting old? If you're asking me to dress up, you must find fault with me."

Liam smiled and swiftly reassured her, "Impossible! Julie, you're the epitome of beauty in my heart. I consider myself incredibly fortunate to have you."

Liam's words brought relief to Julie.

In truth, her earlier response stemmed from acknowledging the challenges she had faced over the years. Witnessing the scene with Sonia yesterday also stirred a hint of jealousy within Julie.

Reflecting on this, Julie resolved to take better care of her appearance, determined that she must present herself well in the future.

Everyone would envy the beauty of the general's wife!

After Liam and Julie chatted and laughed for a while, Julie prepared to head to the Pearl Company.

Liam bid her goodbye, and they went their separate ways.

Liam made his way to the Kingland Group, driving towards the familiar towering building.

Gazing at the edifice, a sigh escaped Liam, a mix of emotions flooding his being.

Kingland Group had been run by him a long time ago. It held immense significance for Liam.

The memory of his grandfather's trial resurfaced within him.

Unfortunately, this had all become a part of history for Liam.

Tears clouded Liam's eyes. He raised a hand to brush them away, whispering softly, "Grandpa..."

Recalling his grandfather's visage, Liam felt a stabbing pain in his heart. Clenching his fists, a flash of anger darted through his eyes.

"Just wait and see! I, Liam, am here for revenge!" he muttered to himself.

After composing himself, Liam steeled his resolve to enter the Kingland Group.

Yet, as he approached, a sudden halt seized him.

Chapter 902 See Watkins Ag

 +120 Points at most

A commotion echoed from the group's gate, causing Liam to furrow his brow and pivot on his heel.

Someone seemed oddly familiar to Liam.

Liam recognized the man. It was actually Watkins!

Bountiful Free Coins are waiting for you, don't miss out!

GO NOW