

Chapter 933 Please Come With Us

When Asher heard what the police said, he immediately spread his arms in front of Liam and protested, "Dad isn't a bad person! You can't take him away from me!"

The police, unmoved by Asher being a child, responded sternly, "Move! Getting in the way of an investigation could get you detained, too!"

At the harsh words, Asher started crying and turned to Liam, seeking comfort in his embrace.

Liam held Asher close, trying to calm his fears.

With a stern look, Liam was seething with anger.

He was sure that Benedict was behind the police's actions.

Usually, such tactics wouldn't bother him, but they had frightened Asher, and that he couldn't tolerate.

Holding back his rage, Liam gently set Asher down and instructed, "Asher, go to Mom. Dad has something to take care of. Be a good boy."

Asher looked worried but went over to Julie.

After Asher had left, Liam faced the officers and inquired, "I'm accused of assault? Who did I assault?"

One officer sneered and showed a photo of Kendrick, accusing, "Stop playing dumb! Didn't you assault this man?"

Liam, unfazed, admitted, "Yes, I hit him, but in self-defense."

The officer scoffed. "Self-defense? You look fine now. But he is seriously injured! You call that self-defense? Enough! You're coming with us!"

He then reached for his handcuffs to detain Liam.

Upon seeing this, Liam pushed the handcuffs away. He thought about resisting the arrest. But then, thinking of his current identity, he decided against it.

As a Five-Star General, he knew it wouldn't be wise to confront the officers.

Containing his fury, Liam demanded, "Aren't there procedures for this? You want to arrest me just like this? Call your supervisor. I want him to see how you handle this!"

As he finished, the district bureau chief, Baldwin, arrived.

Baldwin had been sent by Benedict to ensure Liam's arrest. Not wanting to upset Benedict, he took charge of the situation himself.

Baldwin entered the room with a sneer of contempt.

"Think you can intimidate the officers? I'm Baldwin, the head of this bureau. Let's hear your grievances! But for someone accused of causing deliberate harm, detention is the least of your worries. My team doesn't make mistakes in its procedures!"

Liam's gaze darkened as Baldwin spoke.

It was clear to him that Baldwin was the one accepting bribes.

In a calm, low voice, Liam questioned, "Where were you when Kendrick destroyed our factory? Why was there no action from you then? And now you stand before me claiming justice? Salem is worse off because of officers like you!"

Baldwin's sneer didn't waver as he replied, "We address all unlawful acts. Rest assured, Liam, your concerns will be investigated. But you must come with us now!"

Baldwin's words might have sounded righteous, but his intentions were far from it.

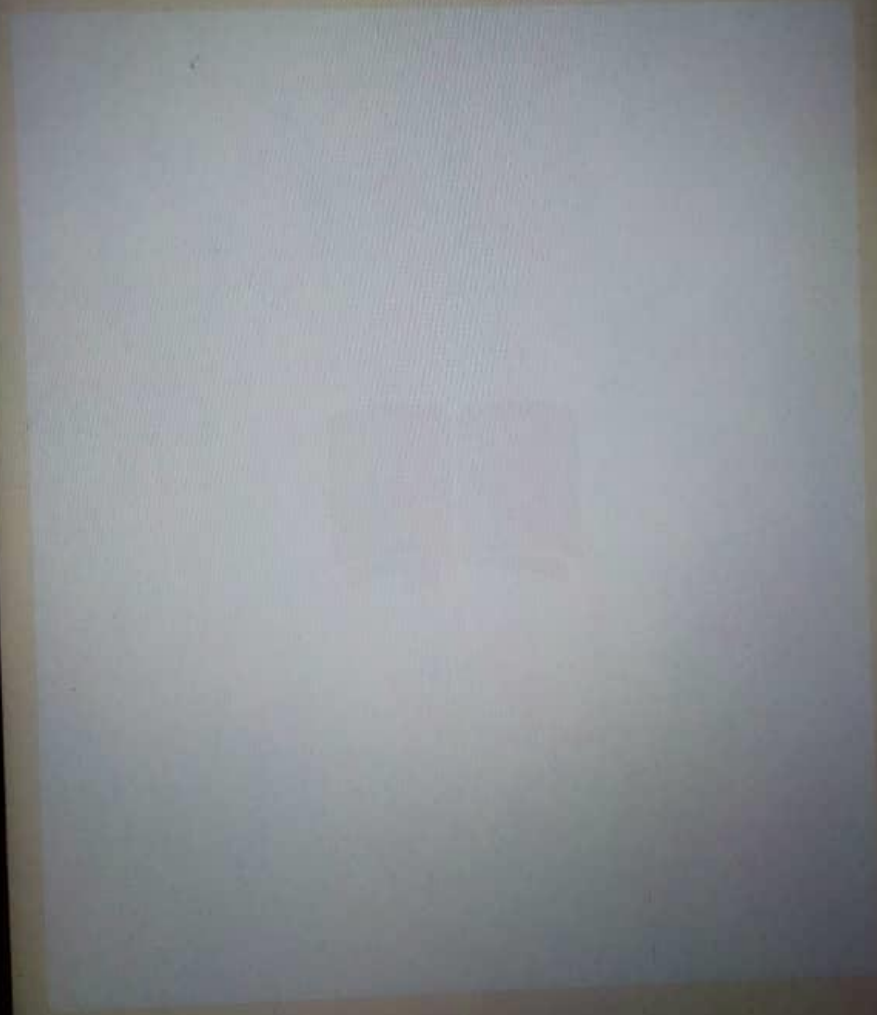

He knew that taking Liam to the station would strip him of his power.

For Baldwin, this was a thrilling opportunity to curry favor with Benedict.

He saw this as his chance to secure a position at the
