Jill's calm words were different from the threats and promises she had made at the door.

She even chuckled softly. "It's like what you said at the Smiths' house back then. You wish you could return your body to me... I don't want your bones or blood. I just want you to make peace with me." Tanya looked at her. She was a little puzzled and confused.

When Tanya returned to the Smiths, Joel and Nora were already waiting for her on the sofa. When they saw her, they immediately asked nervously, "What did you talk about? Did she threaten you again?"

"No."

Tanya sat on the sofa and repeated Jill's words.

She did not hide anything because of Jill's words. She knew that things were not as simple as she had thought.

After hearing her words, Nora asked, "Did you reject her?"

Based on Tanya's personality, she would definitely reject her.

She was never one to be afraid of threats.

Tanya shook her head. "Not yet. I said that I wanted to think about it. I wanted to ask Joel for his opinion, and she agreed."

Nora was stunned. "Why would you suddenly say that?"

Tanya hesitated for a moment. "I don't know if I'm being paranoid. I keep feeling that something is wrong."

Nora and Joel looked at her. Nora sensed something and asked, “What’s wrong?”

Tanya sat on the sofa and continued, “Ever since I was young, Jill loved Hillary the most. I remember one time when Hillary was sick, she stayed at the hospital all night. Later, even when she fell ill herself, she still went to see Hillary.”

“She definitely has a deep mother-daughter relationship with Hillary. I even felt jealous back then...”

Tanya frowned. “I was really stunned when she suddenly came to say those words to me very calmly today. I never expected that she would give up on Hillary!”

How could a woman who loved her daughter more than her own life give up on her in just two days?

OV

What Jill had said today made sense. It was the obvious choice for an absolute selfish person. However, when this matter was placed on Jill, who was an extremely biased mother, there was something strange about it.

At the very least, Tanya would not believe it!

Joel frowned. “Perhaps Hillary would be safer in prison if you reconcile with Jill?”

Tanya was puzzled. “Perhaps?”

But she still felt that something was wrong.

Nora suddenly said, “Promise her and see what she plans to do next!”

Tanya: “?”

Joel glanced at Nora and said, “Yes, do according to what Nora says.”

Tanya nodded. "Alright, I'll call her back."

She took out her phone in front of Nora and Joel and called Jill. The other party picked up quickly. Jill's voice had a hint of nervousness that could not be detected. "Have you thought it through? How was your discussion with Mr. Smith?"

Nora glanced at Tanya, and Tanya understood what she meant. She replied unhappily, "We've discussed it. Joel agreed. From now on, tell everyone that we've reconciled, alright? The Smiths don't want a troublesome person like you to keep bothering them forever."

Jill agreed. "Okay, that's it. I'm hanging up."

After hanging up, Tanya looked at Nora and spread her hands.

Nora frowned.

The reason she had asked Tanya to suddenly agree to Jill's request was that she remembered what Brenda had said that afternoon.

She had to pay attention to the abnormality around her.

But why would Jill be trying to make peace?

Nora said calmly, "Wait a while more. I think she will definitely call again."

Half an hour later, just as Nora was suspecting that her judgment was wrong, Jill called.

Nora immediately sat up straight and motioned for Tanya to answer the call.

Jill's faint cries could be heard over the phone. "Tanya, your Uncle Jones didn't believe that we had reconciled. He even beat me up..."

Tanya's expression did not change at all. "So?"

Jill answered carefully, "So, can you help me explain to him?"

Tanya did not speak, but she let out a mocking laugh.

After a moment of silence, Jill said, “I know you might not want to come over. It’s okay. I have another way to show the public that we have indeed reconciled.”

Tanya: “What way?”

Jill said, “Do you remember your uncle’s cousin? He just graduated this year and is looking for a job. Can you arrange something for him in the Smiths’ company? That way, everyone will know that we’ve reconciled. You don’t have to say anything... This is just a small matter for the Smiths, right? Of course, you don’t have to arrange any key positions for him. He just has to be at the headquarters... At the headquarters, it would show that I helped him find a job.”

Nora: “??!”

This request was too mundane!

She grimaced and nodded at Tanya. Tanya said, “Joel agreed. I hope you can keep your word in the future and stop pestering me.”

Jill said, “Okay, I’ll send your cousin’s resume to you later.”

After Jill sent the resume, Nora immediately asked for a copy and checked this person’s past.

She suspected that this cousin might not be as ordinary as Jill wants them to believe.

However, she did not expect that after investigating this person, she would not find any problems.

She hesitated.

Was Jill really just looking for a job for a cousin?

In the prison.

Visiting hours.

Jill stood in the visitation room. When she saw Hillary limping over, her heart instantly ached. Her eyes turned red as she held Hillary's hand. "Hillary, I've succeeded! Can that person really save you?"

Hillary nodded and said impatiently, "What else? We're already in this situation. Is there anyone else who can save us?"

Jill hurriedly said, "Don't get angry. I just feel that it's a little hard to believe... Besides, your cousin is also confused about his new work arrangement..."

Hillary said irritably, "Just do what I tell you to do! Why are you asking so many questions?! And make him obedient too!"

"Okay, okay..."

The visit ended, and next on the schedule was recreation time.

Hillary supported her tired body and walked to the side.

When no one was paying attention, she suddenly said, "My mother has arranged for someone to enter the Smiths. Shouldn't you fulfill your promise and save me from here?"

As she spoke, she slowly looked up at another person in a prison uniform.

This person was an acquaintance.

Without even raising his head, he placed a drug into Hillary's hand. "Eat this and you can leave."

Eat it?

Hillary bit her lip and stared at the white pill. "What medicine is this?"

"You don't need to know. Just know that if you eat it, you can go out."
The person walked away after repeating himself, leaving Hillary standing there staring at the medicine in her hand.

Should she eat it or not?

She suddenly clenched her fists and looked at the back of the person in the distance.

Thinking about how she had met this person and the changes around her during this period of time... Hillary suddenly steeled her heart and took the medicine while no one was paying attention.

She did not know what this pill would do for her.

"What? Hillary suddenly fell ill?"

At the Smiths, when Tanya received the call, she was a little stunned. It was a call from the court. After all, Hillary had stolen her daughter. Now that she had been released to the hospital for treatment, the court had to inform Tanya of her whereabouts.

Tanya frowned. "What illness is it?"

The voice on the phone replied in a monotonous voice, "Ms. Tanya, Hillary's condition is still being examined at the hospital, but it's quite serious. She seems to have had a heart attack and has been in a coma."

"Okay, I understand."

After hanging up, Tanya looked at Nora hesitantly and said, "Hillary has always been in good health. Why would she suddenly have a heart attack?"

Nora frowned. She suddenly said, "Why don't we go to the hospital to take a look?"

Tanya subconsciously asked, "You suspect that she's faking it?"

The only people who could come out of prison were the patients.

Nora nodded and looked at the time. She happened to be free now, so she simply stood up. "Let's go. I'll accompany you."

When still in prison, Hillary had already seen a doctor. The doctor was helpless and had sent her to the city's Hospital Finest.

Tanya drove and brought Nora to the hospital. The two of them walked upstairs slowly.

Nora dragged her feet as if she could not walk. Her eyes were slightly lowered, and she exuded a domineering aura.

Tanya's mouth twitched as she watched from the side. She felt that this person really knew how to put on a show. She was clearly sleepy, but she could still make the biggest pose in the world.

Everyone around looked over. Tanya could only grab her hand and pull her to walk faster toward the ward the court staff had told her about.

As soon as they arrived, they saw Jill standing outside the ward, pacing back and forth anxiously. She seemed to have heard footsteps and turned to see them. She immediately rushed over and pointed at Tanya as she scolded, "What are you doing here? Isn't it enough that you caused my daughter to end up like this?! Do you have to see her die before you can be at ease?!"

Tanya: "...". She frowned and felt that the Jill she had seen two days ago was not the same person as the Jill from today. Or rather, the Jill today was the Jill she was familiar with. The one from two days ago was so calm that it was terrifying.

Nora looked at Tanya's thoughtful expression. Now was not the time to quarrel with Jill. She interrupted Jill's next question and asked, "How is she?"

Nora was the eldest daughter of the Smiths and was also Justin Hunt's girlfriend.

Jill was a little worried as she said unhappily, “She’s not dead yet! However, the doctor hasn’t been able to find any problems until now. She’s still in a coma!”

At this point, she looked at the two staff members guarding Hillary at the entrance of the operating theater with resentment. “It must be because you found a bad doctor for her! Seeing that my daughter is down and out, you didn’t treat her properly, did you!” The two staff members were about to speak when Jill suddenly thought of something. She looked at Nora suddenly. “By the way, aren’t you Anti? You’re the world’s number one surgeon. You’re also known as the master surgeon. Quickly go and see my daughter!” Nora: “..”

She stared at Jill and then at the two people at the door. She raised her eyebrows slightly. “Okay.”

She also wanted to see what Hillary was up to!

As she thought this, Jill said to the two guards, “This is Doctor Anti. Can you let her in to see my daughter?”

The two of them looked at each other. It was now a critical period for Hillary to seek treatment. They had found two specialists in the hospital, but they could not see any problems. They had called Jill over because Hillary still had the right to seek treatment.

Now, Nora was considered someone hired by Jill, so they said, “Then come out as soon as possible.”

“No problem.”

Nora waved at the two of them and then nodded slightly at Tanya. She gave her a reassuring look before entering the operating theater.

Hillary had probably been here for three to four hours. At this moment, she was lying on the operating table with all kinds of testing equipment around her.

Nora looked at the data displayed on the device first.

Her heart was beating normally.

Blood pressure was normal.

All the statistics were up to standard. Even the blood test report was at the side, eliminating hypoglycemia. However, Nora observed that her brain waves were indeed abnormal.

This meant that... Hillary was not pretending to be ill?

Then why was she unconscious? There were only nurses in the operating theater now. The other doctors had already gone out to discuss this case. Nora went to the other side and prepared to take her pulse.

She placed her fingers on Hillary's wrist and closed her eyes.

A minute later, she opened her eyes and retracted her fingers. She frowned at her.

At this moment, the door to the operating theater suddenly opened and a tall figure walked in.

She looked up and saw a female doctor wearing surgical clothes. Behind her were a few nurses. As the group of people entered, they saw Nora. The female doctor frowned and reprimanded, "Who are you? The operating theater is not a place you can enter as you please! Please leave!"

Nora narrowed her eyes.

Just as she was about to speak, the staff guarding the door whispered, "This is the doctor hired by the inmate's mother."

After saying that, the staff introduced her to Nora. "This is Doctor Elaine Miller, our lead doctor. She is also the most skilled person in our department!" When Elaine heard this, she immediately rebuked the two of them. "Nonsense! The person lying on the hospital bed is a criminal. Before we figure it out, how can we let the doctors outside see her? Even Dr. Larson is helpless when it comes to her condition. Her family can't be thinking that any random doctor can treat her, right?"

Nora was originally prepared to leave after she came in.

After all, she was not kind enough to really treat Hillary. She had only come in to confirm if Hillary was really sick.

Now that she had confirmed it, she was about to leave. However, she was unhappy when she heard this.

The staff also mumbled, “She’s not a random doctor.”

Elaine sneered. “Dr. Larson is the best doctor in the domestic and foreign departments. Is she better than him?”

Elaine was famous for being a demoness in the hospital.

However, her medical skills were good, and no one dared to provoke her.

The staff member who had been scolded for no reason could not help but retort, “Yes, she is.”

Elaine was stunned and then sneered. “Oh? Then tell me, who is she? If she’s better than Dr. Larson, why haven’t I heard of this person in all my years in the medical world?”

The staff coughed and looked at Nora.

Perhaps it was because she had joined Morris’s investigation team and became an external employee, Morris had specially sent her a document to prove her identity... Therefore, Nora had a good impression of these staff members.

After all, they were considered her colleagues.

Seeing her colleague in such a difficult position, how could Nora just leave?

She raised her eyebrows at Elaine and suddenly said, “Hello, I’m Doctor Anti. If you haven’t heard of me, I’m probably too unremarkable, I guess.”

Elaine was obviously stunned when she heard this.

The nurses behind Elaine immediately covered their mouths and looked at her in shock. They exclaimed, “Anti?”

“Oh my god, I’m seeing Anti!”

“Anti is the best international doctor. If Dr. Larson is the best in the country, then Anti is the best in the world. She’s even better than Dr. Larson!”

“She’s my idol!”

As the nurses were whispering, Nora realized that Elaine had an intense frown on her face. She seemed to be a little stunned when she heard this name. She felt awkward after being slapped in the face like that but calmed down quickly. Elaine did not continue talking about this matter. Instead, she looked at the staff and continued to reprimand them. “Even if Jill has found the best surgeon, you shouldn’t have just let her in!”

With that, she glared at the two of them. “The criminal’s condition is still unclear. What if she’s pretending to be sick and intends to escape? Once the two of you were deceived, she might have run away before I came here!”

The two staff members lowered their heads and pursed their lips.

It was obvious disdain.

Elaine’s words were righteous, but she had not said anything earlier. Now that she brought up this topic, it was obvious that she was embarrassed and angry.

However, the two staff members did not reveal their thoughts. Instead, they looked at each other and coughed. “Yes, we were wrong.”

Elaine looked at Nora and said to the two of them again, “Now, please get rid of everyone unrelated to the case! I want to see the patient!”

“Yes!”

The two staff members looked at Nora.

Nora raised her eyebrows and did not make things difficult for them. She left the operating theater.

When she came out, Tanya stepped forward and asked, “How is it?”

Nora thought of Hillary’s pulse earlier and said softly, “She’s really unconscious, but we still have to investigate the specific reason.”

As long as it was not an act and she didn’t plan to escape, everything else should be fine.

Tanya nodded.

At this moment, Jill came over. “Miracle doctor, how’s my daughter?” When Nora heard this, she said, “Oh, they have another famous doctor in the hospital. She seems to be diagnosing her!” Jill was taken aback. “What do you mean?” Nora thought about it and replied, “Elaine.”

Elaine...

Jill was suddenly enlightened. “Oh!”

Before Nora could say anything, Jill said, “She’s the most famous doctor in New York. She’s different from ordinary doctors. She’s the only alternative medicine doctor in the industry!”

“Alternative medicine?”

Nora was a little surprised.

In this day and age, there were fewer and fewer young doctors who majored in traditional alternative medicine. Furthermore, most of the doctors who could be the best in traditional alternative medicine were old.

Traditional alternative medicine emphasized reading, hearing, and cutting. One needed to accumulate experience based on medical cases.

However, Elaine was clearly only in her twenties...

At this moment, the door to the operating theater was suddenly pushed open and Elaine walked out.

Behind her, a few nurses said, "Doctor Elaine is really impressive! We didn't find any problems, but the moment she arrived, we found out!"

"That's right. We have also heard of how magical alternative medicine is, but we never believed it. We felt that it's no different from witchcraft. I didn't expect to actually witness the power of alternative medicine today!"

As the group of people flattered her, Jill went up to her. "Doctor Elaine, what's wrong with my daughter?"

Elaine said, "I checked her pulse and found that she's indeed in a coma, not pretending. The specific reason still needs to be confirmed with blood tests, but I already have a general idea."

The nurses around them immediately nodded.

However, Elaine suddenly looked at Nora and said, "Sometimes, modern medicine is indeed very useless. In her situation, all her vital signs are normal. From the perspective of modern medicine, there are no problems at all. Most ordinary people would have symptoms such as spleen and stomach dysfunction, kidney deficiency, and other symptoms, but they can't be detected if they don't reach a certain level. Once they reach a level that can be detected using modern medicine, it means that the illness is already very serious. This can highlight the importance of alternative medicine. It also requires alternative medicine to nurse a person's body! The mystery of alternative medicine is definitely not something modern medicine can compare to!"

Nora: "??!"

Tanya whispered into her ear, "Nora, why do I feel like she's implying you're inferior to her?"

Nora: "...Be more confident. Get rid of your feelings."

Tanya: "..."

The corners of her mouth twitched as she could not help but purse her lips. "She's good at alternative medicine, but you're good at modern medicine. What's there for her to be arrogant about?!"

Nora chuckled and did not answer. However, Tanya's voice was not low, and Elaine immediately heard her. She frowned and looked over. She simply walked in front of Nora. "Anti, honest words are unpleasant to the ear. There are some things I have to say!"

"Do you really think that just because you're the best doctor, your medical skills are amazing? Alternative medicine is the most profound! Furthermore, your mother, Yvette, was an outstanding talent in the alternative medicine world. You didn't inherit her skills and instead went overseas to learn modern medicine! No matter how good your modern medicine is, I still look down on you! It's because you have abandoned the essence of the ancestors! In my opinion, only the best alternative medicine practitioner can truly be considered a medical expert! You're only holding a scalpel. No matter how good you are, it's just familiarity making perfect!"

When she said this, Nora instantly narrowed her eyes. "I only know how to hold a scalpel?"

The entire corridor fell silent.

The other nurses looked at each other.

Elaine was the best in alternative medicine in the country, while Nora was the best in international modern medicine. When these two people met, they did not know who to help at that moment.

However, Elaine was not afraid of her. She said, “What? Do you think I’m wrong? Or do you think modern medicine is better than alternative medicine?”

Many people felt that alternative medicine was unreliable, especially in Western countries. Some even thought that it was a scam.

Elaine’s words had clearly set a trap for Nora.

If she said modern medicine was good, she would offend most of the alternative medicine doctors in the capital. And in New York, there were many prestigious alternative medicine doctors!

If they all came together to suppress her, they could definitely make Nora’s life a living hell.

However, if she said alternative medicine was good, Nora would be showing weakness and ruin her own prestige.

Nora looked at her and did not understand why this person was targeting her. However, the corners of her lips curled up slightly and she said, “Be it modern or alternative medicine, in my opinion, they’re just ways to treat illnesses and save people! It doesn’t matter they’re noble or cheap. They can’t be compared!”

Everyone nodded in agreement.

Elaine’s expression darkened. She seemed to be a little unhappy that she could not trick Nora. She sneered and said, “Then why did Miss Smith choose modern medicine instead of alternative medicine? According to what I know, your mother was an outstanding talent in the alternative medicine world back then! Why didn't you inherit her mantle? Instead of studying alternative medicine, you chose modern medicine. Doesn't this explain Miss Smith's thoughts?"

Nora: "?"

She raised her eyebrows slightly. "Miss Smith, you're not telling me it's just your hobby, are you? You have a mother who's famous for her alternative medicine skills, but you like modern medicine. Doesn't this show your attitude?"

Tsk.

Nora pursed her lips. Was this Elaine planning to pin her on the saying that modern medicine was better than alternative medicine?

She was really persistent.

She suddenly smiled and said, "How do you know that I didn't learn alternative medicine?"

Elaine was stunned by her light tone. However, she continued mocking, "Oh, did you learn alternative medicine? Then why haven't I ever heard your name in the alternative medicine world?"

After saying that, she did not wait for Nora to speak again and looked at her phone. "Alright, I don't have time to debate with Miss Smith here today. After all, I still have a case to settle. I'm not as free as Miss Smith."

Nora: "??!"

Before she could say anything, Tanya said, "Eh? Isn't it Doctor Elaine who suddenly walked over to talk to Nora? We didn't stop you from leaving either! You make it sound like our Nora is pestering you. Isn't that a little strange?"

Elaine: "..."

She glared at Tanya and left.

After she left, Nora and Tanya looked at each other and were about to leave too. However, just as they turned around, they heard Jill's angry voice. "Tanya, did you do this on purpose?"

Nora turned back to look at Tanya, only to see her stunned. She looked at Jill in confusion.

Jill's fingers were about to poke her nose. "Doctor Elaine is Hillary's attending doctor. You offended her with your words here. You must be trying to get her to take revenge on Hillary!"

Tanya's expression instantly darkened.

A strange feeling surged in Nora's heart.

She also had two children, but regardless of whether it was Pete or Cherry, she doted on them. She was afraid that she would neglect one of them and make the other unhappy.

Pete and born sensitive, while Cherry was born to be more carefree. However, she had not overlooked Cherry and wronged her. After all, her family background was good. Why did Jill have to do this?

Jill did not have any motherly feelings for Tanya, right?

Otherwise, how could she have done this?!

Jill was also a little unhappy that Nora had offended Elaine. However, she did not dare to get angry at Nora. She threw her temper at Tanya. "How old are you already? You don't even know how to act! Is this the time for you to shoot your mouth off? Even if you're criticized by others, so what if you suffer a little? Why do you have to fight for the upper hand? Do you think your younger sister isn't dying quickly enough?"

Tanya suddenly roared angrily, "My younger sister?"

She looked at Jill. "How dare you say that the person lying inside is my younger sister? Isn't she supposed to be my elder sister?!"

Jill immediately choked.

She gulped and Tanya said again, “What I told you back then was only a superficial reconciliation. Don’t think that we have really reconciled. However, you’re right about one thing!” Jill was taken aback. “What?”

Tanya narrowed her eyes and sneered. “I really think that the person lying inside isn’t dying fast enough! She has already been arrested. Even if she doesn’t have a future, she can’t make up for the crime of stealing my child! I really hope that she dies from this illness!” Jill was furious. She stretched out her hand and was about to hit Tanya. “You evil girl!”

Unfortunately, before she could do anything, Nora had already moved in front of Tanya and grabbed Jill’s wrist. She looked at Jill coldly and said, “Mrs. Jones, Tanya is my sister-in-law now. Before you hit her, did you ask for the Smiths’ opinion? Or do the Joneses no longer care about the Smiths’ opinion?”

Her words made Jill choke.

Nora whispered again, “Of course. Karl Moore is still in New York. If you have any objections to his daughter, why don’t you talk to him?”

Nora touched her chin and suddenly approached her. She said again, “By the way, do you know what Karl Moore is doing now?”

Jill was stunned.

She only knew that Karl Moore was from the underworld, but she really did not know what he was doing Now that Nora said this, her heart sank. “What?”

Nora only smiled and did not say anything.

However, this made Jill even more afraid. She swallowed her saliva and saw Nora suddenly reach out her hand. She raised her thumb and index finger and aimed them at Jill’s head.

“Bang!”.

Jill was shocked and subconsciously took a step back. Then, she saw Nora's lips curl up slightly.

Strange evilness appeared on her obedient face.

She had originally thought that Hillary's illness this time could be considered a blessing in disguise. After all, she could stay in the ward and avoid prison.

However, no one expected that two days later, news would suddenly spread that Hillary had died in the ward.

Upon hearing the news, the police quickly surrounded the Smiths.

"Hillary is dead."

Tanya looked at Nora as she spoke.

She stared at her in shock and disbelief. Nora frowned. "What's going on?" "I don't know."

Tanya pointed at her phone. "I was just informed that she's brain dead. The doctors just took her off the ventilator."

She subconsciously clenched her fists and took a deep breath. "This might be her retribution!"

Nora felt that this matter was a little strange.

Two days ago, she had gone to see Hillary and checked her pulse. Hillary was indeed in a coma and she might have been able to find out the specific reason with a blood test. At that time, she was worried that Hillary would pretend to be sick and escape from the prison. After confirming that she was really sick, she had felt relieved.

Later on, Elaine took over Hillary. Furthermore, because of her special status, Nora did not pay attention to her anymore.

But why was she dead?

She frowned as the butler walked in and said, “Miss Nora, someone from the police station is here. They said...”

He gulped. “They said that further investigation has revealed that Hillary’s death was a murder . As for the murderer, they have sufficient evidence and have come to arrest the culprit.”

Murderer...

Nora frowned. “What’s going on?”

How could the Smiths be related to the murderer?

The butler did not understand either. At this moment, the police rushed in and said, “We already have evidence of your murder. Please surrender immediately!”

Nora: “...”

She thought about it carefully. Two days ago, she had only seen Hillary in the operating theater. At that time, there were surveillance cameras in the operating theater, so these people could not have framed her. The police officers walked towards her. Nora sighed slightly. Why was she fated with prison...

The last time Old Maddy fell sick, it was the same. This time, it was the same...

She had originally planned to follow the clues and find out who the mysterious person was that had come to New York. However, she did not expect that things would turn out this way.

As she sighed, the police officer walked past and behind her. He took out handcuffs and handcuffed Tanya!

Nora: “!!”

Were the policeman’s words directed at Tanya?

But how was that possible?!

Tanya looked surprised as she looked at the police officer in confusion. “What are you doing? Why did you arrest me?”

The police officer said, “You’re suspected of murdering Hillary. We have both material evidence and witnesses, so we’re arresting you now! Please don’t resist.”

Tanya was stunned. “What? How could I have killed someone?!”

Nora also made a prompt decision to block the police’s path. She asked in a deep and calm voice, “What’s going on? Do you have an arrest warrant? What’s the evidence? Also, please show your police badge. Do you really think you can come in and arrest anyone you want?”

The police officer did not expect Nora to be so domineering. He first took out his police badge and showed it to her before showing his arrest warrant.

The arrest warrant was real. Nora could not stop them. After all, if she really stopped them and escaped, it would mean that they had fled for their crimes and would be confirmed as guilty. Nora looked at Tanya and said calmly, “You go first. I’ll contact the lawyer immediately and prepare to bail you out.”

Tanya took a deep breath and nodded. “Okay.”

When Tanya was brought out by the police, Jill arrived as well. When she saw Tanya, her eyes were red and she looked like she had gone mad. “Tanya! You killed Hillary! I knew it. You always wanted her dead! You vicious person! You murderer! I should have strangled you to death when you were young! I should have thrown you to death! A person like you shouldn't have appeared in this world!"

She rushed toward Tanya in anger, but the police stopped her.

Jill was stopped by someone. Her hands and feet tried to claw out to her, but she could not touch Tanya.

She continued to curse. "You killed my daughter. I don't want to live anymore, but before I die, I will take you with me! I will make you pay!"

The police formed a protective circle around Tanya.

She looked at Jill in shock.

The person in front of her had already gone mad. It was obvious that she had decided to go all out. It was courage that allowed her to risk her life for her daughter.

This was not about gaining benefits, but true selfless motherly love!

But if she loved her daughter so much, why was she always so cold to Tanya? Tanya looked at Hillary in confusion and muttered, "Am I not your daughter?"

"No! I don't have a daughter like you! You're a murderer! You'll die a horrible death. I'll curse you to go to the deepest pits of hell after you die!"

"..."

These extreme evil thoughts and curses made Tanya slowly retract her gaze.

She did not say anything else and followed the police into the car.

At the hospital's mortuary.

Elaine was wandering around Hillary's corpse. She frowned and inspected the marks on the corpse. She said, "There are scratches on the victim's body. Her fingernails were torn off, which means that she went through an intense struggle when she was alive. We have detected an unknown drug composition in her body. Our initial estimate is that its poison. We're pretty certain that she died from the poison."

After the examination, the nurse beside Elaine could not help but say, "Doctor Elaine, could her death be related to her previous unconsciousness? Could it be that she was poisoned in the prison and had fallen sick because of it? We just didn't notice."

These words made Elaine clench her fists tightly. She looked at the nurse with a sharp gaze. "What nonsense are you talking about? We indeed could not find out the reason for her coma, but we did not find anything in her blood, either... It was clearly after Tanya saw her that she died from the poisoning!"

The young nurse said, "But..."

"But what?" Elaine glared at her. "Are you a doctor or am I? Even if a forensic doctor comes to investigate, this would be the only judgment!"

The young nurse gritted her teeth. She knew that this matter had to be resolved like this.

Otherwise, it would mean that Elaine's medical skills were bad and she could not treat Hillary well.

However...

She couldn't help but say, "There's Doctor Anti too!"

What if the international expert could tell the real cause?

However, as soon as she said this, Elaine smiled. "She's already dead. Do you think just any random doctor can look at her body? With me around, even a forensic doctor won't be able to touch her!"

With that, she said, "Don't worry. Unless someone from the special department comes, no one can overthrow my judgment!"

The nurse was stunned. “Special department?”

The young nurse did not know about them, so she asked hesitantly, “What’s that?” Elaine said, “It’s a department above the normal police service. If they take over the case, all of us have to listen to them... Forget it. You won’t understand even if I tell you this. Anyway, after this case is successfully closed, I’ll have enough experience accumulated to apply for a position in the special department.” If she could join the special department, it would be an honor for her!

Moreover, Captain Ford from the special department... had an honorable status and was admired by everyone. At the thought of this, Elaine’s face turned a little red as she became excited.

She signed her diagnosis and autopsy report and handed them to the nurse. Then, she looked at the nurse and said, “The cause of death has been determined, let’s cremate the corpse now.”

The nurse was stunned. “So fast?”

“Yes, it’s summer now. Corpses rot if they’re left out for too long. Even if there’s a freezer, there’s no need to keep her body.” The nurse courteously replied, “Then I’ll contact the victim’s family.”

“Okay.”

After saying that, Elaine looked at her. “Contact her now.”

The nurse did not expect her to be so anxious. He asked, “Ah?... Ah, okay.”

When Tanya was taken away, she only said one sentence to Nora. “Take good care of Mia.”

After she was taken away, Nora went upstairs first.

It was the weekend today, so the children did not go to school. They were playing inside and seemed to have heard the noise downstairs. Therefore, when Nora entered, she saw Mia anxiously wearing her shoes. She asked in a small voice, “Why was my mommy arrested?”

Pete said, “Don’t worry. They must have caught the wrong person.”

Cherry held her phone. As they were in the midst of an intense team battle, she looked at Mia and then downstairs.

She hesitated for 0.01 seconds before throwing her phone down and putting on her shoes. “Let’s go downstairs and ask Mom!”

Nora pushed the door open and entered.

When she saw the three children, she said, “Mia, your mommy has something on and needs to go to the police station. Don’t worry.”

Mia asked hesitantly, “Is she really okay?”

Nora got down on her knees and ruffled through her hair. “She’s really fine. Your mommy is such a good person, and the police officers specialize in catching bad people. Why would they catch your mommy?”

Mia tilted her head and thought about it carefully. “Yes, Aunt Nora is right. Then, when will Mommy be back?”

Nora coaxed her patiently. Her voice was very soft. Although it was deep, it was very gentle. After saying that, she looked at Cherry and saw that the little fellow’s big eyes were darting around. She pouted and then silently said to Nora, “Mommy, you’re lying.”

Nora: “...”

She knew that this brat was smart and could tell that things were not so simple.

However, Cherry cooperated and persuaded Mia. The little fellow looked up and said confidently, “Mia, don’t be afraid. Even if something really happens to your mommy, my mommy won’t just sit there and do nothing! Besides, your daddy is very powerful too! If they can’t do it, then look for my daddy!”

Mia tilted her head. “What if your daddy can’t do it, either?”

“Then find my auntie and grandma!” Cherry patted her chest. “Don’t worry. My auntie and grandma are the best!”

Mia was really deceived by her confidence. She nodded. “Okay.”

Nora said, “You guys have fun here. I’ll get the nanny to watch over you all. You all have to stay at home obediently today, okay?”

Mia: “Okay!”

Cherry said, “Don’t worry, Mommy! I’ll take good care of Mia and Pete!”

Pete: “...”

When Nora saw that Mia had calmed down, she went out and picked up her phone to call Joel. However, the moment she went out, she felt a tiny tug on her pants.

She lowered her head and met Pete’s stern but serious face.

He thought for a moment and said, “Mommy, I just saw that God-mom was taken away by them in handcuffs.”

Nora: “?”

Was her son so observant?!

It was too difficult to lie to him.

She lowered her head and was about to say something when she heard Pete’s clear analysis. “You should contact Uncle and Dad immediately and get a lawyer to bail God-mom out. If they came here for an arrest, they must have had an arrest warrant. That means they have solid evidence, but God-mom definitely didn't do anything bad. You should look at the evidence. If I'm not wrong, the evidence must have been tampered with."

"..." Hearing his logical analysis, Nora felt for the first time that her son was indeed very smart.

Although he did not like to talk much and spent all his time doing Mathematical Olympiad questions, he was indeed worthy of being a child of the Hunts. Even when faced with dire situations, he could maintain his composure and think clearly.

She touched Pete's head. "Okay, I'll do all of that. But Mia is in a bad mood, so can please take good care of her?". Pete looked at Nora helplessly. "Mommy, I'm not a three-year-old child anymore." These words to coax a child were useless on him.

However, Nora said seriously, "Pete, Mommy isn't coaxing you. I'm telling the truth. Cherry has a rough personality and a big heart. I'm worried about letting her take care of people. But if it's Pete, Mommy would be relieved!"

These words made Pete's face turn red. He nodded and even spoke up for his sister. "Sister is also very good."

Nora: "..."

This fellow was really adorable!

Nora left the house and called Joel. Joel already knew about the situation when the police came in to arrest him. He said, "I'm bringing my lawyer over. I'll probably arrive with them."

Nora nodded. "Sure."

Nora and Joel were not allowed to see Tanya before the case was processed. Only the lawyers were allowed to discuss these matters.

After more than half an hour, the lawyer walked out with a frown. "The matter has been clarified! They do indeed have the evidence to back Ms.

Turner's arrest! Hillary's death was caused by the toxins in her body. During the time she was detained, only Miss Tanya had seen her! She injected something in Hillary's infusion drug. All of this had been recorded by the surveillance cameras. We're at a great disadvantage right now!"

When they heard this, Nora and Joel were stunned.

Tanya had met Hillary in private? And she had injected something into her IV tube? How was that possible?!

Although Tanya hated Hillary, she would not do something like that because she still had Mia to take care of. She could not do anything illegal. Joel was the first to speak. "Impossible."

Nora nodded as well. "Although Hillary is unconscious, she will still go to jail even if she wakes up. She has already received the punishment she deserves. Tanya would not harm her again!"

The lawyer sighed. "But Ms. Tanya once told Jill that she would never forgive Hillary. She even wanted Hillary to die." Nora: "..."

She had indeed said this when Jill questioned her in the hospital. Moreover, there was a nurse beside her at that time.

The lawyer said, "Someone has evidence to prove this. Therefore, Ms. Tanya has a motive for the crime. In addition to the surveillance video and the toxins collected from the body... there is both human and material evidence. Furthermore, Ms. Tanya has already confirmed the evidence from the surveillance cameras..."

These words stunned Nora and Joel. The two of them looked at the lawyer in disbelief and questioned at the same time, "How is this possible?"

The lawyer frowned as well. "I can't get bail now, but I've requested to meet Ms. Tanya. The two of you can follow me."

Joel and Nora nodded.

Soon, the formalities were completed. Nora followed behind Joel and the lawyer and slowly entered the interrogation room.

Tanya sat there inside the interrogation room, looking a little flustered and helpless. She clenched her fists tightly and turned her head away the moment they entered.

After the others had left, Nora remained silent. Joel, on the other hand, said slowly, “Tanya, you didn’t really go to see Hillary, right? There must be something wrong with their surveillance cameras. Why are you admitting to it? Did they torture you?” When Tanya heard this, the panic in her eyes gradually calmed down. She looked a little depressed and shook her head. “No. The police work according to the law. They can’t torture me. You’re thinking too much.”

Joel stared at her. “Then why did you admit to it? And what’s with the surveillance cameras?”

When he asked this, Nora had already started playing the video on her phone.

In the video, Tanya could be clearly seen entering the ward and taking out something to push into the IV line. Nora stared at that face. After knowing Tanya for so many years, she could almost confirm...

Tanya suddenly looked up and said slowly, “I didn’t want to kill her!”

Her words confirmed everything the lawyer had said!

Nora put her phone away.

She thought that it was all a lie, but she did not expect it to be true!

If the video was real, they could not do anything

When Joel heard this, he was extremely surprised. He, who could remain calm in the face of death, asked anxiously, now that it concerned Tanya, “You... You really went to see her? What did you inject her with?”

Tanya lowered her head and took a deep breath before saying, "It's called Benzoplatin. This thing can make her feel pain even in a coma."

The interrogation room fell silent.

Tanya held her head and said in pain, "I didn't want to kill her. I just wanted her to feel pain... Joel, do you know? I interacted with Mia a lot before I realized that there are some scars on Mia's private parts... They are all old scars. I asked Mia about it, and she told me... that it was her mother, when she was young. Because she was insensible, she cried and made you frown, so Hillary used a cigarette butt to burn her privates!"

Tanya's words were still trembling.

A day ago, she had given Mia a bath...

Chapter 429 – The Plan of Saving Nora

Actually, she should not look at a child's private parts when she grows older.

As a father, Joel had not seen it since Mia was three years old.

But Tanya loved Mia too much. When she saw the small mole on Mia's shoulder, she wanted to check her entire body.

She did not expect to find such a big scar...

It had been a long time ago, and the scar was very big. It was obvious how much Mia had suffered back then!!

She had asked Mia about it, who had said in fear, "Mommy, I'll be serious and obedient in the future. Don't punish me like this."

At that moment, Tanya felt like she had lost her mind!

No wonder. No wonder her daughter, who had been pampered by Joel since she was young, was so careful. She did not have any arrogant habits at all.

No wonder Mia was so afraid of Hillary...

So that was the reason!!

Tanya was trembling with anger. She held back her rationality and coaxed Mia to sleep before sitting there in a daze for the entire night.

She knew that even if she revealed this matter, Hillary would already be dead because this matter could not be changed to a death sentence... The one who would be affected the most was Mia.

Mia would be pitied because of this.

She did not want her daughter to be pitied.

However, she could not vent her frustration and anger at all. It was only in the morning that she made up her mind.

Even if she had to be a bad person or a murderer this time, she would not let Hillary off so easily! Because seeing her child in pain was the most intolerable thing for a mother! Therefore, she had searched for drugs that could make one's nerves feel extremely painful and had secretly gone to the hospital to inject them into Hillary's IV bottle.

Hearing Tanya's words, Joel stood up suddenly.

The man, who was more than 1.8 meters tall, was trembling like a sieve. He looked at Tanya in disbelief. "How... how is this possible..."

His daughter had actually suffered like this under his watch?!

He clenched his fists tightly, his eyes filled with tears. "It's... my fault."

Tanya shook her head. "You're a father, and she's a girl. How could you have known? If it weren't for the coincidence, I wouldn't have looked so carefully at my daughter... She's already five years old... Hillary took advantage of this!"

She suddenly looked up with red eyes and said in a trembling voice. "So, I don't regret it. Even if I kill her, I'm willing to face the consequences! But what about my Mia?"

Towards the end, she looked a little lost.

Almost as soon as she said this, Joel held her hand and suddenly said, "Tanya, what does this have to do with you? I was the one who gave you the medicine!"

Tanya was stunned. "When did you give it to me..."

At this point, she suddenly understood.

Joel was trying to take the blame!

Her eyes were red as large tears rolled down her cheeks. She lowered her head and wiped her tears. "Stop fooling around..."

However, Joel said firmly, "I'm useless. I couldn't protect my wife or my daughter... Back then, I broke up with you because of a small misunderstanding. Now that something like this has happened to my daughter, it's my fault. It's all my fault... I want to tear Hillary to pieces!"

Tanya grabbed his hand. "This isn't your fault. It's my fault. I didn't say anything and hid everything... I blamed myself for believing Jill's words back then and going overseas. When I found out I was pregnant, I forced myself to give birth, but I didn't have the ability to protect the child..."

As she spoke, her voice was choked with tears. "That's why I can't let my daughter live under her shadow forever. I want my daughter to know that people who've done bad things to her will pay the price!"

Large tears rolled down her cheeks again.

However, Joel seemed determined. He suddenly stood up. "Tanya, you don't have to hide it for my sake. I know you love me, but there's really no need for you to be so silly... Besides, you couldn't have bought that medicine by yourself!"

Tanya bit her lip.

Yes, ordinary people could not buy that drug, but what about the future mistress of the Smiths?

She had used Joel's name to buy that medicine!

She cried and said, "I've already admitted my crime! Mia can't live without her father! Joel, if you still have any feelings for me, don't be a jerk at this time!"

Joel did not stay silent and only said, "Mia is a girl. She needs her mother more."

Nora watched as the two of them argued. She was still digesting the news she had just received.

She didn't expect Mia to be treated this way. Not to mention Tanya, even she couldn't accept it. If such a thing happened to Cherry...

Not to mention inserting a drug, she would immediately shoot Hillary into meat paste with a gun!

While she was also feeling angry, these two people were going back and forth. They were both going to shoulder the lawsuit. Nora could only abandon all her senses.

Now, Tanya and Joel were angered by Mia's matter. The two of them had no rationality to speak of, so they did not notice that there was a problem with Tanya's story. She interrupted the two of them. "Erm, don't fight over it. That medicine is not fatal."

When she said this, Tanya and Joel's voices paused.

The lawyer sighed. "Yes, this thing is poison, but it won't kill her. However, the coroner's conclusion is that Hillary's body was originally weak. She died because she was injected with this thing!"

Tanya smiled bitterly. “Of course, I knew it wouldn’t kill her... Although I lost my rationality back then, I knew that Mia still needed me! I couldn’t let a scumbag ruin my life! That was why I researched online for medicines that could cause pain but would not kill... I didn’t expect her to die.”

No matter how angry Tanya was, she would never leave Mia alone again. However, she could not swallow her anger. Therefore, she chose to compromise.

She had punished Hillary in a safe way.

She never expected that the medicine, that only worked on the nerves and did not harm the human body, would actually take Hillary’s life!

When the lawyer heard this, he asked, “When you searched on the Internet, what were the keywords?”

Tanya replied, “Painful but not fatal.” The lawyer heaved a sigh of relief. “That’s good! We can use this for a counterattack! It can prove that you didn’t intend to commit murder! It was accidental murder! In addition to the fact that you have a child... I think the judge will show mercy!” Joel hurriedly asked, “How benevolent can the judge be?”

The lawyer looked at Joel. “Mr. Smith, if you were the one who had done it, then it would have been intentional murder. Therefore, only Ms. Tanya would be able to use this counterattack. And because it wasn’t intentional, and because Hillary’s actions were too hateful, the judge will pity Ms. Tanya. I’m confident that Ms. Tanya will only be sentenced to three years at most!”

When Tanya heard this, she looked at Joel. “Wait for me. I’ll see you in three years.”

Joel pursed his lips and suddenly said, “I’ll give you a grand wedding in three years.”

Tanya’s eyes turned red. “Forget it. If you marry a woman who has been in prison, you will be laughed at.”

“I’m not afraid of being laughed at. I just feel very useless.” Joel clenched his fists. “Tanya, I’m sorry.”

It was the end of visiting hours. Nora and Joel stood up and left with their lawyers.

As soon as they left the room, Joel looked at the lawyer. “If I had attempted murder on purpose to avenge my daughter, how long would I be sentenced to?”

The lawyer was stunned, but when he saw that Joel was serious, he calculated in his heart and said, “10 years.”

Joel smiled. “Okay, that’s the plan.”

The lawyer was stunned. “Mr. Smith, it’s 10 years! It’ll only be three years for Ms. Tanya!”

Joel lowered his eyes. “Do as I say.”

He would rather be in prison for 10 years than letting Tanya suffer for another three years.

The lawyer instantly became bitter and vengeful. He simply looked at Nora. “Miss Smith, please persuade Mr. Smith!”

Nora was deep in thought and did not hear him at all. She only reacted when the lawyer tugged at her sleeve. “What?”

The lawyer could only repeat Joel’s decision.

However, Joel, who was beside her, gradually sensed Nora’s abnormality. He frowned and suddenly asked, “Nora, do you find something odd?”

Nora nodded. "I've been thinking about it. Could Hillary really die if injected with 5 milliliters of Benzoplatin? According to what I know, Benzoplatin only affects the nerves and makes people feel pain, but it's harmless to the body."

Joel did not know medicine, so he did not suspect anything when he heard about this medicine.

However, after Nora said that, he suddenly frowned. "You mean..."

Nora shook her head. "I'm not sure either, but I still think we should go and see the corpse."

Joel nodded immediately.

He looked at the lawyer.

The lawyer also understood something. He hurriedly went to look for someone and asked to see the corpse.

When the staff member heard this request, he did not reject it. He picked up his phone and called the morgue. However, when the call connected, he was stunned. "What? She's already been sent to the crematorium?"

When he said this, the three people present were all stunned!

Nora and Joel exclaimed at the same time, "Oh no!"

Before coming to the police station, neither of them had expected the corpse to be dealt with so quickly, so they did not think of protecting it at all.

After all, she was already dead!

They were no professional criminals, after all. They had overlooked this!!

Joel rushed to the phone and asked, "When did you send it out?"

The person was stunned. "Half an hour ago..."

After Tanya admitted to it, this case was basically set in stone. Therefore, the handling of the corpses was also within the rules! Joel and Nora looked at each other. Without a word, they rushed out the door. Nora jumped into the driver's seat and said to Joel, "Sit tight!"

As soon as she said that, the car rushed out!

Joel was already making a call, but the vehicle carrying the corpse had already arrived at the crematorium. The corpse had been sent in and the door was closed!

When burning corpses at high temperatures, once they entered the furnace, they could not be taken out again!

Because it was impossible to stop halfway.

So... it was too late!

They were a step too late!!

If the corpse was cremated, there was no chance of turning the situation around!

Screeeeech!

The car stopped at the entrance of the crematorium. Almost the moment the car stopped, Nora and Joel jumped out.

The guard was stunned. He went forward and asked, "Hey, what are you guys doing? You..."

Before he could finish speaking, Joel had already pushed him away. Nora turned sideways and slithered in. The security guard was a little surprised by the two of them. After being stunned for a moment, he chased after them. "Stop right there! This is not a place where you can just barge in!

Unfortunately, the two of them had already run toward the entrance of the crematorium!

At the entrance, a few cars were parked orderly. Elaine sat in the front passenger seat of the car and leisurely stared at the venue, which had already closed the door.

When she saw her, Nora rushed forward and stared at her. “Where’s the corpse?”

Elaine raised her eyebrows. “What corpse?”

Nora replied, “Hillary Jones’ corpse!”

Elaine smiled. “Why should I tell you where her body is? Who do you think you are?”

As soon as she finished speaking, Joel had already opened the door to the front passenger seat. Nora grabbed Elaine’s arm and pulled her out of the car.

The two moved like flowing water, stunning Elaine. When she came back to her senses, she was already standing in front of Joel and Nora! Nora grabbed her wrist tightly and asked, “Tell me, where is Hillary Jones’ corpse?”

Elaine tried her best to shake off her grip and said angrily, “Why should I tell you? Let go of me right now! Otherwise, you’ll be breaking the law!”

At this moment, the guard at the door rushed over and blocked their way. The guard asked, “What’s going on?”

Elaine shouted, “Call for help immediately. Someone is breaking the law here!”

When the guard heard that, he hurriedly found a few people and surrounded Nora and Joel. Someone had already taken out a weapon and aimed it at them.

Joel took a deep breath. “I suspect that the cause of the deceased’s death has not been investigated clearly, so we need to stop the cremation immediately! Send the corpse out right now!”

As soon as she said this, those people looked at Elaine.

Elaine smiled. “Mr. Smith, what’s wrong? The Smith family is so powerful. Are you planning to tamper with the corpse? My colleagues and I have already determined the cause of death and signed it. Moreover, Ms. Tanya has already confessed! Why can’t you let Ms. Jones rest in peace? If you take her out halfway through the cremation... that’s impossible!”

Joel stared at her. “Are you guys stopping or not?”

The Smith family members were around, and some people had even followed them in.

If this group of people did not stop, he would cause a riot here!

The Smiths were not easy to bully!

Elaine was shocked by his gaze. She sneered and said, “What? Is the Smith family planning to attack us? Let me tell you, everyone around here is my colleague. We’re not afraid of you at all! Everything has to be done according to the rules! Without orders, we can’t stop the cremation!”

Orders...

By the time the lawyer applied for an order to stop the cremation, her body would probably already be burnt to ashes!

This Elaine was clearly making things difficult for them on purpose. Or rather, she wanted to close this case completely.

Elaine lowered her head and played with her nails. She spoke first. “Mr. Smith, you’re just a wealthy man. No matter how powerful you are in the business industry, you’re just the husband of a criminal in my eyes! You want me to stop the cremation and I have to do as you say? Do you really think you’re some big shot?”

She looked at Joel. “Let me tell you, unless someone from the special department is standing in front of me right now, I’m not changing my mind!” Joel’s expression turned cold as he looked at the burning room. He was about to order his subordinates to attack when Nora’s cold voice suddenly sounded. “Then I order you to stop the cremation immediately!”

As soon as she said this, Nora took out the documents Morris had given her from her pocket and handed them to Elaine. “The special department’s external forensic doctor, Nora Smith, requests that you immediately stop the cremation!”

Everyone around fell silent.

Elaine swallowed her saliva. Nora had already looked at the few staff members following behind her. She waved the documents in front of them and roared, “Special Case Departments! Priority is above all departments! I order you all to stop immediately!”

“...Yes.”

Someone said, turning around to press the button.

However, Elaine stopped the other party and stared at Nora. “I need to determine the authenticity of this document. What if it’s fake?”

The staff was stunned and said, “This... It can’t be fake, right?”

Elaine explained slowly, “You can fake any certificate these days. I think this certificate might be fake! We still have to be careful when handling matters!”

The staff could only nod. “Please let us determine its authenticity.”

Nora took back the documents and said righteously, “I’m on a special mission! Please cooperate with me immediately. If the evidence is destroyed, would you bear the responsibility?! Don't you know what's important? Stop immediately!"

The staff looked at Elaine. "Elaine Miller..."

Elaine narrowed her eyes. Her gaze suddenly landed behind Nora. She smirked. "Yes, I suddenly feel that what Miss Smith said is right. Then, let's stop for now!"

The staff member heaved a sigh of relief and ran to the switch of the device. Just as his fingers touched the button, the device made a beeping sound.

He was stunned.

He turned to look at Nora in shock and said, "It's too late. The corpse has already been burned." Nora: "??"

She looked into the room and pushed the door open. "What room is it?!"

The cremation facility could handle a few bodies at once.

The staff swallowed. "Number Five."

Nora rushed in front of Number Five. There were only bones in front of her. The rest had already been burnt to ashes...

Joel followed in as well. When he saw the situation in front of him, his expression darkened.

Elaine followed him in and said slowly, "Sigh, I'm sorry. Look, I wasted some time and accidentally burned it all. It's over..."

Almost as soon as she said this

Thud!

Nora punched her in the face!

She glared at Elaine angrily. "You were deliberately stalling for time!"

Elaine took a few steps back after being punched. Her cheeks instantly puffed up, and even her mouth tasted bloody.

Golden light shone in front of her eyes and she felt dizzy. She stared at Nora's hand. She did not expect this woman in front of her, who looked soft and weak, to have such strength in one punch.

She was beaten until her head was dizzy. She stared at Nora. "What right do you have to beat up a colleague? This is illegal!" Almost as soon as she finished speaking, Nora punched her again, hitting her other cheek heavily!

After two punches, Elaine's cheeks were all red and bloody.

Nora stared at her. "You're deliberately interfering with the matters of the special department. It's a light punishment to be punched twice by me!"

Looking at her sharp and cold eyes, Elaine covered her face and retreated in fear. She shouted in a daze, "I don't know what you're talking about... This isn't over. I'm going to complain to the higher-ups!"

"I will also report to my superiors and see if they listen to you or me!"

Nora left these words angrily before leaving the incineration room with Joel.

Joel looked at Nora, who was walking in front of him angrily. The man was very calm. His eyes even shone with a fierce light. He slowly said, "Nora, don't be angry. I originally wanted to do everything by the book, but since these people seem too keen to disregard the law, don't blame me for not following it, either!"

The Smiths had always kept a low profile. To outsiders, they were always smiling. Therefore, people felt that the Smiths were easy to bully, right?

However, they did not know that... it would be easy for Quentin's secret organization to save Tanya!

At most, he would settle down overseas with Tanya!

Anyway, Uncle Ian had found his biological daughter. He could temporarily handle everything regarding the Smiths in the country...

Just as he was thinking about it, he saw Nora, who had gotten into the car, suddenly turn around and look at him. The anger from earlier had disappeared completely and was back to its usual nonchalance.

She smiled. "Joel, don't be rash. I know what to do about this."

Her almond-shaped eyes shone with a strange light.

Joel: "?"

He narrowed his eyes and thought of how Nora had been acting very rashly ever since she found out about this.

He did not know much about medicine, so when he heard that Tanya had drugged Hillary, he really thought that it was poison. He did not think in the other direction, nor did he think about protecting the corpse. However, Nora understood. She still listened to Tanya explain the reason and allowed the lawyer to find out what had happened. Then, she seemed to have realized the need for the corpse and rushed over anxiously.

Thinking about it now, why did he feel like she was acting? Joel thought about it and said, "Then Tanya..." "Don't worry."

Nora only left two words before starting the car. She first took Joel to the Smiths before driving out again. She drove around the city twice and shook off the people following her before entering a villa in the suburbs.

As soon as she entered, Brenda said in a hoarse voice, "Sister-in-law, you're here? Come and help me take a look. Which of these guys is more handsome? They all asked me out for dinner tonight, but I haven't decided who to eat..."

Nora hesitated. "Who to eat?"

Brenda covered her mouth with her delicate fingers. "Oh, look at me. Why am I speaking my thoughts out loud?"

Nora: "..."

Brenda sat lazily on the sofa in front of her. Her long, fair legs were crossed, her short skirt just wrapped around her butt. She was so sexy that she looked like a stunner.

Her eyes were charming as she looked up. If not for the cold freezer beside her, everyone would have thought that she was about to have a beautiful date.

Nora ignored her and looked at the corpse in the freezer. Hillary was lying quietly inside. Her injuries were obvious and one could tell that she had experienced a lot of pain before she died.

Actually, when Jill came to look for Tanya, Nora had already reported to the special department.

She suspected that Jill was related to that mysterious organization, so Brenda and Morris continued to pay attention to this case.

When Hillary was lying in the ward, the special department had already secretly gathered her blood samples and handed them to the special department's internal inspection department for comparison.

Nora looked like she did not care about this on the surface, but she was actually giving the other party a chance to relax.

After all, they were still unable to apprehend their opponents this time, let alone know who they were...

However, Hillary's death was indeed beyond Nora's expectations. Nora knew the moment Hillary died.

When the police came to the Smiths to arrest Tanya, she had really thought that the other party was coming for her with the intention of sending her to prison. At that time, she had already thought about making a trip to the police station and seeing what was going on.

But what she did not expect was... those people were targeting Tanya.

When Tanya was arrested, she sensed something was off and sent Brenda a message. After securing the evidence, she cooperated and began her performance.

Since the other party wanted to slander Tanya, they must have a backup plan... In that case, she would beat them at their own game and see what kind of conspiracy they were up to!

It was indeed Hillary's corpse that Elaine had sent into the crematorium. However, Brenda had been waiting inside for a long time and had secretly swapped the corpse.

Nora then rushed to the crematorium and made an angry scene. It was to let her hidden opponents think that Hillary had indeed been burned!

Nora looked at Hillary and asked, "Have you inspected her?"

Brenda tilted her head and said in a charming voice, "Isn't that your job? It was already very difficult for me to steal the body!"

Nora could not help but have goosebumps. Could this person speak more normally?

She put on her gloves and went to examine the body. Through the body, she could determine the last moments of the deceased's life.

Hillary woke up in pain in her daze.

The pain in her body made her curl her fingers uncontrollably. She wanted to open her eyes, but she could not. She knew she might die.

How could she be dying?

She suddenly remembered that after eating the pill that person had given her, her entire body suddenly felt hot as if it was going to burn. Before she fainted, that person had sneered and scolded, “Trash! You can’t even handle this little medicine!”

Hillary wanted to reach out and grab her. She wanted to shout for the other party to save her. She even wanted to say, “Didn’t you promise me? Why didn’t you let me out?”

However, the other party said, “I only promised you that you would leave. I didn’t say whether you would leave alive or dead! You’re too useless!”

Then she fainted.

If she had not been injected with Benzoplatin, she might not have woken up.

However, now that she was awake, she could barely move her body. The pain in her body became more and more intense as if all the nerves in her body were expanding...

She screamed in pain. She felt like there were ants crawling over her. She scratched her skin and then her arm. Her entire body was covered in scratches, but they could not alleviate the pain under the skin!

She did not want to die. Even if it hurt, she did not want to die...

But death was getting closer and closer to her... until she slowly closed her eyes.

“Are you done?”

As Nora stood up straight, Brenda asked.

Nora nodded and briefly explained the situation of the corpse. “There are many scratches on her body. It should be neurological pain caused by Benzoplatin. It woke her up before she died. If Tanya had not injected her with a drug, she would have died without ever waking up.”

Brenda was surprised. “What was the cause of death?”

“She was poisoned, but it doesn’t seem like poison either.” Nora frowned. When Hillary was sent out, she had already taken her pulse. At that time, her pulse was very chaotic. Brenda asked, “So was it poison or not?”

Nora said, “I’ll get Lily to dissect the corpse and investigate properly. It will take time.”

Brenda hummed in boredom and took out her phone to take a look. Then, she looked up at Nora. “You hit Elaine?”

Nora replied casually, “Yeah.” Brenda tilted her head. “I don’t like her either, this person is too ugly. But weren’t you just acting? You clearly knew that the corpse was with me. You shouldn’t have been so angry that you wanted to hit her, right?”

Nora raised her eyebrows. “No... my hands were itchy.”

Brenda was speechless.

She twitched her lips and suddenly smiled. “You’re in big trouble!” Nora walked to the sink and asked while washing her hands, “Yes?”

Brenda stood up, her slender legs wearing a pair of red high heels. She walked slowly behind her and said, “Elaine has reported you to the higher-ups. She said that you beat up a colleague to vent your personal feelings.” Nora raised her eyebrows. “What else?”

Brenda smiled and said, “Of course, Captain Ford is protecting you. He said that you were just anxious. After all, our case is still confidential, and we can’t reveal the truth. However, Elaine is unwilling to let this go. She insisted on letting you be punished and making you apologize!”

Nora nodded and did not say anything else.

Brenda asked curiously, “What do you plan to do next? Before we expose the mastermind, we can’t clear Tanya’s name. Are we going to let her be detained first?”

“Of course not.”

Nora said firmly, “Mia will cry at home.”

Brenda blinked her beautiful eyes. “Then what do you plan to do?”

“What should we do?”

Nora suddenly smiled. “We’ll just mind our own business, of course.”

Brenda: “???”

That night, the special department came forward and accepted the murder case, saying that it was related to the case they were investigating

Then, the lawyer hired by the Smiths completed the bail procedures. Tanya was picked up that night and returned home safely.

Brenda sat in the car and looked at Nora, who was napping in the front passenger seat. She pursed her lips. “Is this what you meant by our business?”

Nora yawned. “Yes.”

Everything was going according to the plan. The bail procedures were all standard. No one could say anything!

Brenda’s lips twitched. “You’re really domineering.” They were clearly letting her go free! Then, she smiled. “But now, our Captain Ford is going to have a headache.”

The suspect in the murder case was released... To be precise, she was no longer a suspect. She had already been convicted. Morris was definitely under immense pressure.

However, Nora did not say anything. She continued to squint her eyes.

The special department could handle cases, but they could not let her friend suffer.

Tanya had been implicated because of them. Why should she go to jail for their sake? She yawned and looked at Brenda. "Take me home. Thank you."

Brenda was speechless.

As she drove, she asked curiously, "When do you think the mastermind will make a move?"

Nora yawned again. "In two days! If we catch the mastermind, the truth will be out."

Brenda: "...You're really confident."

Nora ignored her words. She was already leaning against the bed and falling asleep.

After Brenda took her to the Smiths, she realized that Justin was standing at the door, waiting for them. The car stopped and Brenda was about to wake Nora up when Justin suddenly made a shushing gesture.

Then, Brenda watched helplessly as Justin picked up the unconscious Nora and carried her upstairs slowly. Five minutes later, Justin walked down from upstairs. Brenda said, "Justin, you can't really be a live-in son-in-law, right? When are you coming home?"

Justin's dark eyes glanced at her, and the mole at the corner of his eye flickered. He did not answer and asked, "It's so late. Where did you guys go?"

Brenda: "...Work."

Work...

Justin knew that Brenda's work was confidential, so he rarely asked about her work. However, when he saw Nora entangled with her today, he frowned. "What work?"

Brenda blinked and replied frivolously, "That... is our secret~ I can't tell you!"

With that, she stood up and left.

When Nora woke up the next day, she casually picked up her phone and took a look. However, she suddenly realized that an unfamiliar number had sent her a message. “Do you want to know how you got pregnant back then? I can tell you the truth.”
