

Read Married At First Sight Chapter 1587

Married at First Sight Chapter 1587—"Babe, I love you." Serenity said the words that Zachary liked to hear the most.

"From now on, I'll buy you flowers every day, okay?"

Buying flowers was easy.

Serenity just had to tell Camryn to prepare a bouquet of flowers for her every day, then she would just give it to Zachary.

"I only have one vase in my office. Alternate days will be good enough." Zachary's expression finally eased.

Serenity said, "Why don't I buy a few more vases for your office?"

"I don't want people to see me as a vase."

Serenity laughed and said, "You're a man. Who would regard you as a vase? Alright, so instead of buying you more vases, I'll just send you a bouquet of flowers every other day. It's Friday tomorrow. Shall we go shopping on Saturday? I'll buy you new clothes."

Zachary had plenty of new clothes in his closet. Every once in a while, a fashion designer would tailor new clothes for him.

However, a certain someone still liked to receive clothes from his wife.

Since Serenity learned of Zachary's true identity and had a cushy life, she bought him clothes from big brands, so as not to embarrass his title as the eldest son of the York family.

Serenity bought Zachary's daily outfits.

Zachary looked at her resentfully again. He was sulking. What he really wanted was not materialistic gifts.

"Babe, you know that the vegetable farm I invested in is now shipping out produce in large quantities. We also need more partners. Elisa and I are just discussing business. Moreover, all of the Yorks' small businesses will be handed over to me soon, so I should study more and see more.

"That's why my schedule is packed. But I'm always thinking about you. Besides my sister, you're ranked second in my heart. You've surpassed Sonny!"

Serenity was only busy for ten days, but Zachary could not stand it.

To think when they first got their marriage license, Serenity did not have any comments when Zachary worked until midnight before he came home.

Zachary thought, 'That's because when we just got our marriage license, we didn't have feelings for each other, so who cares?'

"You can work on your business, but you can't come back later than I do. From now on, you must come back by nine o'clock every night. You should at least spare me a few hours, right?"

"I've become a resentful husband because my wife doesn't care about me anymore..."

Zachary was busier than Serenity, but he still came home as early as possible every day just to accompany her.

"Okay, okay. I'll come home to accompany you at nine o'clock every night."

In order to coax this man, Serenity would agree to whatever he said.

That was because her husband was such a domineering man.

Even though Serenity made this promise, Zachary still punished her in bed twice that night.

When Serenity showed up at her sister's breakfast diner the next morning, she was still yawning.

Zachary told her to sleep in since she was sleepy. It would not affect his overtime anyway.

Serenity was speechless.

It seemed that married couples should not ignore each other.

Liberty recovered well. Under Serenity's repeated requests, Liberty did not dare work so hard. Most of the time, Liberty asked her two workers to prepare breakfast for the customers while she did some light work. During the time she was hospitalized, the two workers did their jobs well. Although the business was not doing as well as usual, they still managed to keep their regular customers.

After Liberty returned to All You Can Eat, she gave the two workers a raise.

Liberty brought over a plate of bacon and egg sandwich with hashbrowns and asked Serenity, "Do you want peanut butter or ketchup?"

"Ketchup, please."

Serenity yawned again as she spoke.

“You didn’t sleep well last night? I saw you yawn several times since you walked in.”

Liberty poured some ketchup for her sister, sat down beside her, and asked with concern, “Are you busy recently?”

The vegetable farm had a good harvest. The produce was distributed in batches. When one batch of vegetables was sold out, the second batch would be ready to be shipped out.

“Yeah, I’ve been quite busy.”

The vegetable business and the bookstore alone were not a lot to handle—at least Elisa could help share the burden. The main reason was that she still had to learn and master her in-laws’ family businesses. Even though her mother-in-law and Zachary both said that there was no need to worry, Serenity dared not relax.

Most of the readers are now reading this novels:-

Read Married At First Sight Chapter 1588

Married at First Sight Chapter 1588—“You should get enough sleep. Health is more important than anything,” Liberty said in distress.

“Liberty, I’m fine.”

Serenity did not sleep enough last night because of her attention-seeking husband, and Serenity did not want to share what happened in their bedroom last night.

“Has Jessica been released?” Serenity suddenly asked.

Liberty was silent for a moment before she said, “She’s pregnant.”

“She had just conceived before she was arrested. After she was in jail, she was in a bad mood and didn’t find out until now. It’s been three months now, and Hank is helping her to apply for bail.”

However, Jessica would still have to be sentenced after giving birth.

Serenity said, “Her child came just in time.”

Hank still had feelings for Jessica.

He was pressured by his parents and sister to divorce Jessica, but he refused.

He also wanted Liberty to issue a letter of understanding so that Jessica could have a lighter sentence

Hank was cognizant that even if he divorced Jessica, Liberty would not come back to him.

His parents and sister were just too naive.

They always thought that Liberty would do anything for her son and that Liberty would agree to remarry Hank as long as he proposed.

'Too naive,' he thought of his parents.

Not to mention that Duncan was already pursuing Liberty openly, so even if Liberty did not have a suitor, she would not go back to Hank.

Liberty made it clear that she would never remarry Hank.

Hank regretted it and wanted Liberty back, but he had no chance.

He could not compare to Duncan.

Duncan also won over Sonny's heart. Now, Sonny and Duncan got along very well.

There was no way Hank could get back together with Liberty. Moreover, Jessica was forced to hurt Sonny because of him. Thus, he felt sorry for Jessica.

Knowing that Jessica was pregnant, Hank quickly helped her to apply for bail and took Jessica home.

The apartment where Hank and Liberty used to live had been renovated. After Jessica was taken out, they stopped renting the other apartment and moved into their own home.

However, Mrs. Brown refused to go back to her hometown and insisted on living with the couple. Since Mrs. Brown did not leave, Mr. Brown had to stay too.

Even if Jessica was released from prison during her pregnancy, she would not have had it easy.

"She'll still have a hard time," Liberty said calmly.

"That's karma. She deserves it!"

Serenity did not sympathize with Jessica at all.

Since Hank's family moved into the renovated house, there was no use for Old Mr. and Mrs. Hunt anymore.

However, the Browns did not have a peaceful life. Hank had not visited Sonny for a long time. He also had no time and no mood to pester Liberty.

Thus, Serenity asked Noah to take their grandparents back to their hometown.

Of course, Serenity compensated them for their work since the three of them allowed Liberty to live a quiet life.

Duncan entered the diner at this time.

"Liberty, Duncan still comes here for breakfast every day?"

Serenity winked at her sister.

Liberty lightly pinched Serenity's arm. "Stop winking at me! You're now Zachary York's wife, so you should act like it."

Serenity muttered something, but Liberty could not hear her clearly.

Most of the readers are now reading this novels:-

Read Married At First Sight Chapter 1589

Married at First Sight Chapter 1589—Duncan walked in but turned around and left before he said hello to the Hunt sisters.

Serenity was puzzled and thought, 'What does this mean?

Is he retreating?

'Or did he leave because he saw me here?'

Just as Serenity was guessing what Duncan meant by leaving so quickly, Duncan came in again.

This time, he had a bouquet of flowers in his hand.

It turned out that he forgot to take the bouquet from his car.

Serenity was stunned.

She looked at her sister, but she saw that Liberty's face was stoic.

Since it was still early, there were no other customers in the diner except Serenity. The two shop assistants were sitting beside them eating their breakfast.

Seeing that there was a customer, the two of them wanted to get up and tend to the customer, but when they saw that it was Duncan, the two of them sat down again and continued to eat their breakfast.

Duncan's pursuit of Liberty was so obvious that they could not even pretend not to know.

"Liberty."

Duncan came over holding the bouquet.

"Serenity, you're early."

He greeted Serenity.

Serenity said, "I haven't eaten the signature breakfast in my sister's diner in a while, and I was craving it, so I came here early. Mr. Lewis, you're also very early."

It was only seven o'clock in the morning.

Serenity's husband was still asleep when she left the house.

Before she left, she deliberately left a note on the bedside table for Zachary so that he would not wake up and lose his temper when he did not see her. He liked to blame her for not waiting for him and for ignoring him.

In the future, Serenity would have to spend more time caring about him. Otherwise, her back would break

"I usually come at this time."

Duncan replied before he asked, "Where's Sonny?"

"Sonny is at my house. Jim will send him to his lessons later."

Liberty was busy with her diner and had to get up early every day. It was not convenient for her to take Sonny with her, so the little guy stayed with Serenity at night.

In the morning, Jim would send Sonny to class.

Duncan hummed, then handed the bouquet to Liberty. His black eyes were fixated on Liberty as he said, "Liberty, this is for you."

Liberty stood up.

She faced Duncan's intense gaze frankly and declined his bouquet. "Thank you, Mr. Lewis, but I don't like flowers. I'll cook you breakfast."

Duncan was mentally prepared for Liberty to refuse his bouquet.

When he confessed his love to Liberty, Liberty also made it clear to him that she had no feelings for him.

Thus, he was mentally prepared to be rejected by Liberty all the time.

"I'll have the same thing," Duncan said.

Liberty walked away.

Duncan did not follow her around but sat opposite Serenity and put the bouquet on the table.

Serenity kept looking at the two of them.

After Duncan sat down, Serenity lowered her head to eat her breakfast.

"Zachary didn't come with you?"

Duncan looked for a topic to chat with Serenity about, so as not to make it so awkward.

"He's still asleep. I have to go to the bookstore, so I left the house early."

Most of the readers are now reading this novels:-

Read Married At First Sight Chapter 1590

Married at First Sight Chapter 1590—Duncan smiled and said, "Oh."

Serenity looked at her sister's back, lowered her voice, and asked Duncan, "The florists aren't even open at this hour. Did you bring this bouquet from home?"

Duncan replied, "Yeah, I cut all the flowers that I could in the yard and made them into a bouquet myself." "No wonder,"

Serenity glanced at the bouquet of flowers.

There were all kinds of flowers in the bouquet, not just roses.

Duncan was a rough man. Although there were flowers and trees in his villa, he never once admired them. The butler had arranged for someone to buy them so as to add a bit of color to the landscape.

Thus, not all of them were roses.

Duncan cut all the flowers that bloomed in the villa to make this bouquet.

The butler felt distressed when he found out that Duncan had cut off all the blooming flowers in the villa. However, he supported Duncan in pursuing his crush. Thus, the butler decided to go to the flower field at Wildridge Manor to buy a full load of roses to put in the open space of the villa. This would make it more convenient for Duncan to cut flowers and give them to his crush.

Duncan kept silent for a while before he asked Serenity in a low voice, "Is it because my bouquet is too complicated? Is that why your sister hates it?"

"No. My sister just doesn't like receiving flowers from you, Mr. Lewis."

Duncan asked, "When she was with Hank, did Hank give her flowers?"

"Yes. When Hank was chasing after my sister, he gave her a lot of gifts, mostly handwritten love letters. After all, they were still in school at that time.

"Then he invited my sister to watch a movie and eat snacks."

The two sisters depended on each other since childhood. Thus, Serenity had witnessed Hank's pursuit of Liberty.

Serenity witnessed as Hank and Liberty went from being friends to lovers. They got married and divorced, and they were now back to being strangers.

Duncan suddenly felt that he had done too little.

He was not as good as that sc*mbag Hank.

"Serenity, thanks for giving me your suggestions."

Serenity said, "I didn't give you any suggestions.

"I'm on my sister's side. No matter what she decides, I will support her. Mr. Lewis, don't try to use me.

Duncan smiled. "You're Liberty's younger sister and the most important person to her, so I won't use you. I will only dote on you as my younger sister. If Zachary bullies you in the future, you can tell me, and I'll stand up for you."

Serenity wanted to say that Duncan was really not Zachary's opponent, but she swallowed those words.

Liberty quickly cooked Duncan's breakfast and brought it over.

The conversation between Duncan and Serenity stopped.

Serenity soon had her fill. She got up and said to her sister, "I'll head to the store first."

Liberty said, "Alright, drive slowly."

"Okay."

Serenity said to Duncan, "I'll get going. You can take your time."

After she finished speaking, she took her bag and walked out of the breakfast diner.

At this time, there were more customers having breakfast.

Liberty went to greet the customers, and Duncan did not want to disturb her, so he ate his breakfast in silence.

Occasionally, when no one was paying attention, Duncan would secretly take pictures of the busy Liberty with his phone.

In his free time, he admired the photos he secretly took and fantasized about the day that Liberty would cook for him.

If Liberty married him, he would never let Liberty be so busy.

Duncan wanted to cook for Liberty, but his cooking skills were not great and could not be compared with Zachary's.

After all, the sons of the York family were all trained by Grandma May to be competent chefs.

Liberty did not even know when Duncan left the diner.

He left the money for his breakfast on the table and put the bouquet of flowers at the cash register.

Liberty did not notice that he was leaving, so she did not know that he had already placed the bouquet on the counter.

After leaving the diner, Duncan turned his head to look at the busy Liberty for a moment before he reluctantly got into the car and went back to his office.

Most of the readers are now reading this novels:-