Married at First Sight Chapter 1607—Worried that his wife would screw things up, Derek had no choice but to meet Liberty with his wife since he could not stop her.

In order to continue talking his wife out of meeting Liberty, Derek asked his chauffeur to drive.

The couple was seated in the back. Along the journey, Derek kept advising his wife.

He said, “If Duncan finds out that you go and meet Liberty, he’ll surely have a row with you. This will affect your relationship with him.

“If Serenity finds out, it means Zachary will too. You know full well how much he protects and pampers his wife. Liberty is his sister-in-law. Forcing Liberty to leave Wiltspoon will stir up a hornet’s nest and greatly damage the relationship between the Lewises and the Yorks.”

Mrs. Lewis tilted her head and glared at her husband before she said, “I’m just going to have a talk with Liberty. I’m not forcing her to leave Wiltspoon either. Why are you nagging at me non-stop? You’re annoying.

“The Lewises and the Yorks are family friends. So what if the Yorks find out that I meet Liberty? I’m not going to beat or scold her. All I’m going to do is have a talk with her. The Yorks might be able to accept a daughter-in-law with a humble background and both parents dead, but I can’t.

“Not everyone can act like the Yorks. I believe most women from the upper class in Wiltspoon hope their daughters-in-law are well-matched to their sons.

“Couples have always been equally matched since ancient times. I’m not against Liberty in particular. However, it’ll be hard for a marriage to last long if a couple isn’t well-matched. I’m doing this for their own good so as to avoid things from looking bad when they end up in divorce in the future.”

Derek was speechless.

He knew that what his wife said made sense.

“It’s okay to have a talk with Liberty, but don’t talk to her in a domineering tone and aggrieve her.”

Mrs. Lewis said huffily, “With the Stones and the Yorks backing her, how would I have the audacity to be domineering and cause her grievance? I’m the one feeling aggrieved instead. Despite being your wife, I need to lower myself to beg Liberty to stay away from our son.”

Derek was not in a position to respond to that.

Liberty was unaware that Mr. and Mrs. Lewis were coming to meet her. After Liberty had dinner with Sonny, Sonny wanted to shop around, and she agreed.

Just for convenience, she took her son out by riding an e-bike.

In fact, Sonny wanted to shop at a mall. The mall had a few floors. Located on the third floor was a playground for kids. A lot of kids enjoyed playing there.

Liberty had taken Sonny there twice, and he took a liking to it.

After arriving at the supermarket, Liberty and Sonny ran into Hank and Jessica.

As Jessica was pregnant, she was released on bail to take care of her baby after Hank and the lawyer applied for it.

“Dad.”

Sonny was always happy whenever he saw Hank.

That was exactly why the father and the son had a close relationship. As a result, Serenity and her husband could not be ruthless to the Browns as they often had to think for Sonny.

“Sonny?”

Hank did not expect to meet his ex-wife and son here.

When Sonny ran toward him merrily, Hank glanced at Jessica before he walked forward and carried his son with a smile.

Initially, Jessica was wearing a smile. At the sight of the close interaction between the father and son, her smile disappeared.

She was currently pregnant with Hank’s child whom she had always been eager to have.

Unfortunately, the child came late. If the child had come earlier, she definitely would not have agreed to be involved in the wrongful act that ruined her life as well as her child’s. She would have done good deeds for her child’s sake.

Even though Jessica was out of jail for now, she would need to serve her sentence after she gave birth to her baby.

For a long period of time, she would be unable to watch her child grow.

The child would lack motherly love.

Besides, the fact that she committed a crime would have a huge impact on the child.

Jessica deeply regretted it.

It was no use lamenting it now. Back then, she did not reject Hank outright. She had set her mind on becoming Hank's wife to live in the lap of luxury. Little did she know that it was the start of tragedy.

She might as well have married an ordinary man. At least, she would be able to lead a plain yet happy life.

Liberty did not walk toward Hank and Sonny. Standing from a distance, she silently took a glimpse of the two of them before turning her eyes to Jessica.

Jessica walked up to Hank shortly.

Married at First Sight Chapter 1608—After moving closer, Liberty got a better sight of Jessica.

Jessica had thinned down a lot. She had a dull complexion and was dressed in loose clothes. Only those who were sharp-eyed could tell that she was pregnant.

“Let's go, Hank,” Jessica said to her husband.

Currently, she disliked seeing Hank being close to Sonny. She was afraid that if they got very close, Hank would not take care of her child wholeheartedly.

Regardless of whether she gave birth to a son or daughter, the Browns would surely be biased toward Sonny

Jessica had to continue serving her sentence in the future, so she would not be able to watch her child grow. If her child turned out to be a girl who failed to please the family, who would know how much the child would suffer when Jessica was not by her side?

Therefore, Hank was the child's support.

Sonny was a lot more fortunate than Jessica's child.

With so many people loving and supporting Sonny, there was no need to worry that he would suffer.

“Sonny, what are you planning to buy with Mom?” Hank asked his son.

Sonny answered, “I’m going to play with Mom. Dad, what do you want to buy?”

After stealing a glance at Jessica, he fell quiet for a moment. Then, he said politely, “Hi, Jess.”

Jessica forced a smile.

“I’ve just arrived, so I haven’t bought anything. What-do you want, Sonny? I’ll get it for you.”

Due to Jessica’s situation and interference from Liberty’s grandparents, it had been ages since Hank met his ex-wife, much less his son.

Given that he finally met his son, he felt the need to buy him something.

The grim smile on Jessica’s face was no longer visible.

However, she did not utter a word.

At that moment, Liberty walked over.

The moment Jessica caught sight of Liberty, her lips twitched. Even so, she remained silent.

She was supposed to apologize to Liberty.

She was an indirect cause of Liberty’s narrow escape from death.

“Liberty,” Hank called out.

After not seeing her for a long time, he suddenly felt that his ex-wife had turned into a different person. She had become younger, prettier, and more confident.

That was how she was before marriage.

“Both of you can shop around. I’ll take Sonny to the indoor playground on the third floor for a while.”

Liberty carried her son out of her ex-husband’s arms.

After speaking indifferently, she said to Sonny, “Sonny, let’s go.”

“Okay. Bye, Dad.”

Sonny waved at Hank and bade him goodbye.

“Liberty, Sonny.”

All of a sudden, Duncan’s voice rang out.

Soon, he strode toward them.

The minute Hank saw Duncan, his expression turned grave.

Married at First Sight Chapter 1609–“Dunc.”

Sonny’s mannerism toward Duncan and his father, Hank, was the same.

Once Sonny saw Duncan, he shook off Liberty’s hand and scurried toward Duncan.

Hank’s expression became graver.

His parents and elder sister had always nagged him, telling him that Liberty had a pursuer. If he was not going to divorce Jessica and go after Liberty again, Sonny’s father would be someone else.

Duncan would most likely become Sonny’s new father.

Hank knew full well that Liberty would not accept him anymore. As for Jessica, he still had feelings for her. He also felt sorry for her.

He hurt two women because of his unfaithfulness.

Liberty was already divorced from Hank and had started her life anew. She was leading a wonderful life. He did not want to hurt Jessica again, especially by divorcing her when she was in jail. If he did that, she would be homeless after she was released.

Ever since Jessica was arrested, her brother and sister-in-law had established boundaries with her.

Although her parents took pity on her, they could not do anything about it. They were already old and reliant on their son and daughter-in-law to look after them.

Hank was well aware that Jessica would be left homeless if he divorced her.

Chelsea told her younger brother off for being heartless toward Liberty yet loving toward Jessica.

“Sonny.”

Duncan smiled while walking toward Sonny to carry him. After that, he lifted Sonny and turned around, making Sonny burst into laughter.

Seeing their joyful and close interaction, the passers-by were under the impression that the two of them were father and son.

After Duncan stopped lifting Sonny and spinning him, he asked Sonny with a grin, “Are you happy?”

“Yeah.”

Sonny laughed so much that his face reddened.

Duncan loved his flushed face. Sonny looked so cute that Duncan could not help but kiss him on the cheek.

Unexpectedly, Sonny kissed Duncan back.

Duncan grinned from ear to ear.

He was overjoyed at Sonny’s response.

He decided not to wash his face tonight.

Duncan carried Sonny and walked up to Liberty. He fixed his profound gaze on Liberty and said gently, “Liberty, since you’re shopping with Sonny, you probably need someone to carry things for you. I’m very strong, and I can help you carry.”

“Mr. Lewis, why are you here?”

Liberty’s attitude toward Duncan did not change.

She would not change her attitude just because Duncan was going after her fervently.

“I-I happened to pass by.”

Duncan would not admit that he had gone to Liberty’s place. Coincidentally, he saw Liberty taking Sonny out with the bike, so he tailed them.

Then, he pretended to run into them.

Liberty would not buy that.

He must have come over on purpose.

However, Liberty did not expose him. She said, "Sonny wanted to go to the third floor, so I took him here to play for a while. We're not buying anything, so we won't need anyone to carry things for us. Mr. Lewis, I'm sure you have other things to handle. You may carry on with your work. Sonny, let's go."

She went out and ended up meeting her ex-husband as well as her courter.

Liberty felt that it was really a small world.

"Dunc, do you want to play with us?"

Liberty wanted to get rid of Duncan very badly, yet her beloved son invited him along.

Duncan answered eagerly, "Sure. I've gotten off work. I have plenty of free time now, so I can play with you."

While speaking, he carried Sonny and said to Liberty, "Liberty, let's go."

As for Hank and Jessica, Duncan turned a blind eye to them. He was not bothered to look at them at all.

He knew that Hank was glaring at him ferociously.

The situation exasperated Hank.

Hank had only himself to blame for hurting Liberty. Because of him, Liberty stopped looking forward to love and marriage, and he had not made any progress in his plan to win her heart again.

"Sonny."

Something seemed to be wrong with Hank. He kept shouting his son's name as he strode toward his son.

"Sonny, I'll play with you.

Hank hurriedly caught up with Duncan and blocked him.

He stretched out his hand to snatch Sonny over.

Sonny was Hank's son!

He shared the same surname as Hank, namely Brown!

He had nothing to do with Duncan at all. There was no need for Duncan to play with Sonny.

Sonny's biological father was here!

"Sonny, let Dad play with you, okay?"

As Hank asked Sonny, his eyes were fixed on Duncan. He purposely stressed the word "Dad".

Hank would forever be Sonny's father!

If Duncan wanted to be Sonny's father, he could dream on!

Hank failed to stop Duncan from going after his ex-wife. After all, he was still married to Jessica. What was more, Jessica was pregnant with his child, which meant he could not divorce her at this point.

If Liberty wanted to remarry, she had the freedom to do so.

Besides feeling annoyed, there was really nothing Hank could do.

Sonny was Hank's son. When Duncan approached Sonny, Hank stopped Duncan in spite of himself to avoid Duncan and Sonny from behaving like father and son.

"Dad, are you not going to accompany Jess to buy something?"

Sonny pointed at Jessica.

Jessica pulled a long face.

Sonny thought that Jess must be mad if his father chose to play with him.

After listening to Liberty's explanation, Sonny came to understand that his father would live with Jess in the future.

Hank turned around and glanced at Jessica before he said to Sonny, "No. I'll play with you first. When you don't feel like playing anymore, I'll accompany Jess to buy things. I can buy whatever you want.

"Sonny, you have a father. Regardless of your dad and mom's relationship, I'll forever be your biological

"I love you. Don't be fooled by other people. Don't simply address someone else as 'Dad', okay? Some people have bad intentions. They take advantage of you to achieve their goals."

Overly jealous, Hank reminded his son in front of Duncan and Liberty.

"Hank."

Liberty asked, "Why are you saying these things to Sonny?"

"I'm just telling the truth."

Hank shot a look at Duncan.

Then, he said to Liberty, "Liberty, although we have an unhappy past, you're still Sonny's mom. I hope you live well. Let me remind you not to get deceived by other people."

"Thank you for your reminder. I'm clear-headed."

Liberty's voice was cold.

She was not in love with Duncan, but she believed that he was trustworthy.

"Hank..."

Jessica suddenly wrapped her hands around her stomach. With a sour look, she shouted to Hank, "Hank, my stomach isn't feeling well. I'm not sure if this is a symptom of a miscarriage."

Upon hearing that, Hank immediately put Sonny down.

He turned around and ran back to Jessica. He held Jessica and asked anxiously, "You were fine just now. Why are you suddenly feeling unwell? The fetus should be safe since you've been pregnant for over three months."

"It's probably because I've been standing for too long. I just find my tummy uncomfortable."

Jessica asked, "Hank, let's go home first, alright?"

Hank held her. "Alright. We'll go home first. I'll help you get the things you want another day." While he was speaking, Jessica headed toward his car.
