Novel Married at First Sight Chapter 1756 -If Azalea came to her house, she wouldn't treat herself like a guest, so she would let herself help Camryn.

In the kitchen, Azalea asked Dalton about his marriage. Knowing that Dalton and his girlfriend were engaged, she was very happy, and told Dalton to invite her to a wedding wine when they got married.

When Dalton planned to get married, he asked his aunt Azalea to be the witness.

Camryn was sitting on the sofa, quietly listening to her aunt and Dalton's talk, her heart had already flown to Callum.

Callum did so much for her without telling her.

Did he want to surprise her?

She still felt that Dr. Carden couldn't come to help her treat her eyes now. Callum was afraid that if he told Camryn, she would think about it every day and hold out too much hope. If there was no hope, she would be completely disappointed?

Or might be both.

Recalling the little things from knowing Callum to the present.

In the beginning, he deliberately approached her because his grandma had selected her for him, and wanted him to approach her, pursue her, and marry her.

Camryn couldn't figure out why the old lady chose her?

But the old lady was very kind to her, as if she was the old lady's granddaughter and Callum picked her up.

Later, Camryn felt that Callum was becoming more and more sincere to her, and his feelings became more and more sincere. Although she had known him for so long, she didn't even know what he looked like, but she could feel his feelings for her.

Camryn also listened to the Azalea's persuasion and kept it in her heart.

Azalea also objected at first, thinking the same as her.

Now she was conversely persuading her to accept Callum's feelings.

Azalea was an elder, someone who had come here had a better eye for seeing people than Camryn. Oh, Camryn couldn't see people, there was darkness in front of her eyes, she could only look with her heart.

Camryn believed that aunt Azalea would never cheat her, nor would she be bought by Callum.

Callum only saw Azalea once, and after her disapproved of the two being together, Azalea never saw Callum for the second time.

Even every time Azalea came to Wiltspoon, Callum would come here as soon as possible, wanting to see her parents. In Callum's eyes, he regarded Azalea as Camryn's parent, respected her aunt, and valued her aunt very much.

His attitude towards Azalea was good.

Camryn was very entangled.

Callum was on a business trip, Actually he flew to Annenburg for Camryn, and he was not around to pester her for a few days, but she was thinking about him.

Camryn knew that Callum had captured her heart.

But when she thought that she was blind, she wanted to retreat, fearing that she would drag him down in the end.

It's hard to love, and it's hard to let go.

She was really hard.

Both Serenity and Jasmine persuaded her to move forward boldly and take a gamble.

She was timid, afraid that she would not be able to lose.
