Novel Married at First Sight Chapter 1786 -After completing the necessary discharge procedures, Duncan's bodyguards pushed him downstairs while he was seated in a wheelchair.

Knowing that he was discharged from the hospital, his brother and sister-in-law put down everything they were doing and rushed to pick him up.

Too many people cared about Duncan, and there were bodyguards to take care of him, so Liberty wanted to take care of her affairs. She said to Mrs. Lewis: "Auntie, Mr. Lewis is out of the hospital now. You have a big family and you can take good care of Mr. Lewis. I-I won't go with them, my new restaurant I just acquired is under renovation, I want to go over and see how the renovation is going."

Seeing the tiredness on Liberty's face, Mrs. Lewis felt a little distressed, and said, "Liberty, it's fine for Duncan to be taken care of by us. You can go and get busy with your affairs, but don't be too tired. You have already exhausted."

Mrs. Lewis took Liberty's hand and said grateful words over and over again.

Liberty: "Auntie, we all hope that Mr. Lewis will get better. As long as Mr. Lewis gets better, it doesn't matter if I'm tired. Auntie, then I'll go first."

Mrs. Lewis let go of her hand.

Liberty took her son's little hand, said goodbye to Mrs. Lewis, and left the hospital with Sonny.

When Serenity returned to the city from her hometown, it was almost dusk, so she went to her sister's rented house first.

Using the key that her sister gave her, she opened the door and went in, and saw Sonny sitting in the hall watching cartoons, she closed the door and shouted: "Sonny."

Seeing that it was his aunt, Sonny turned off the TV, get up and run to Serenity.

Serenity picked up Sonny and walked around several times. Both the nephew and she smiled happily.

Liberty came out of the kitchen with two freshly fried dishes, and said with a smile, "Serenity, you came back just in time. I just finished cooking, so go wash your hands and eat."

Serenity: "I smelled the fragrance without entering the door, sister, what good dishes did you cook?"

Serenity put down Sonny, led Sonny into the kitchen to wash his hands, and saw that there were still two dishes that hadn't been brought out, she washed her hands, then picked up vegetables and ate with chopsticks, and also fed Sonny.

Liberty came in and saw Serenity and Soony, and said amusedly: "Can't you just sit at the table and eat? Serenity, you are married and still look like a child. Let people outside see this side of you; it will be another overwhelming report."

As the mistress of the York family, her every move was watched by people, and even a small matter would be infinitely magnified.

If it wasn't for Zachary's protection of his wife, Serenity wouldn't know how many open and dark arrows from others he had endured.

"Am not I at my sister's house? I usually wear a mask to behave more or less. In my sister's house, in front of my sister, what kind of mask should I wear? Even if I eat vegetables with my hands, who knows?" Serenity didn't care. Since knowing that Zachary was the young master of the York family, she seemed to be the same as usual, but in front of others, she had unknowingly put on a mask to behave herself, trying to show her best side to outsiders.

Only at her sister's house could she let go of her defenses, take off her mask, restore her nature, and get a moment of freedom.

Liberty went out with the bowls and chopsticks, and asked her: "Did you just arrive? Or did you go to the company?"

Serenity: "Elisa was picked up by Fifth Young Master Johnson and Remy for a romantic candlelight dinner during the day, Mr. Bucham rarely socializes now that Jasmine is expecting, and Zachary had social engagements at night, so he is also very busy."
