Married at First Sight Chapter 1994-Donald was speechless. He couldn't say it, so he didn't say it. He just kept quiet, but he didn't know that silence was the same as agreeing, which led Kevin to be even more sure that Hayden was a woman.

"Aren't you gay?" Donald asked deliberately.

Kevin smiled, "If Hayden is a real man, then I'm gay. Whether I'm gay or not, I'll change with Hayden."

Donald: "..."

He really wanted to ask Kevin how he knew that the "eldest son" was a woman, but he felt that if he asked, it would be tantamount to admitting his daughter's identity, and if he let her know, he would be angry with him again.

"You young people's affairs, you handle it yourself, we are the elders, don't intervene." Donald could only cover up like this.

Kevin said with a smile: "Uncle and Auntie, you are both parents with very open minds, just like my parents. If you are both free some other time, I will invite you both to Wildridge Manor. My parents will definitely become good friends with you."

Donald also laughed, and the two continued to walk out, "I haven't seen your parents for a long time after Mr. Bucham's wedding. Let's go visit another day."

In the end, Donald was still a little uneasy and asked: "Kevin, I don't have any opinions, and neither does your aunt, and we don't get involved in your efforts to find my family Hayden. You young people should deal with this, but didn't your grandma set up a wife for you? Are you sure you can handle your grandma."

Old Mrs. York's status in the York family was supreme. Even Zachary, the head of the family, couldn't do whatever he wanted in front of grandma, otherwise he wouldn't have married Serenity under grandma's hard and soft ways.

Now that the relationship between the young couple was better, Zachary felt that grandma's original decision was right.

There was no guarantee that Zachary would not hold grandma responsible even if the husband and wife had always respected one another like ice.

Kevin said affirmatively: "Uncle Queen, don't worry, if I dare to pursue Hayden, I guarantee that I will not let her down, and our Yorks' sons will not play with other people's feelings."

He never told Donald that the wife his grandma chose for him was Hayden.

He wanted to tell Hayden about this in person.

Guaranteed to be a shocker.

Now, Hayden probably couldn't figure out how he knew she was a woman even if she wanted to break the sky.

Kevin learned from Donald that Hayden was a woman, but he was also curious about how grandma discovered the flaw.

If his second brother and sister-in-law hadn't advised him to pursue Hayden directly, he wouldn't have believed that Hayden was a woman, because he couldn't find any flaws.

He just believed that his grandma would not cheat him.

He was beating drums in his heart, for fear that something might go wrong with grandma, causing him to really pursue a man.

Fortunately, it turned out that grandma still loved them, and it was impossible to cheat him on marriage matters.

Donald: "I don't worry. Your York family is famous for its good family style. Except for the Johnson family in Annenburg, there is no other big family with such a good family style like yours."

Donald and his wife had a good relationship, but it didn't mean that everyone in the Queen family was good. Anyway, every family has a difficult script to recite.

Kevin: "The Johnson family has a close relationship with our York family. My sister-in-law and the young lady of the Johnson family are good friends, and Fifth Young Master Johnson is after my sister-in-law's cousin. The two families are already inextricably linked."

Donald didn't know this.

Hearing what Kevin said, he became more and more determined to support Kevin in chasing his daughter.

As long as they became in-laws with the York family, it could bring many benefits to both families.
