

Read Novel Married At First Sight Chapter 2139

Married at First Sight Chapter 2139-Hugh laughed haha, "I thought you and my sister could make some substantial progress."

Donald scolded his son: "You don't have a good mind, don't treat Kevin like that. Kevin is a gentleman. Your mother and I still have a good eye for people."

As soon as he saw Kevin, he admired him, and wanted to abduct him into their Queen family's door as a son-in-law.

Unexpectedly, the old Mrs. York had a good eye, and she fell in love with their daughter long ago without their knowledge.

Ever since they knew that their daughter was the old Mrs. York chose for Kevin, Donald and his wife really treated Kevin as their son-in-law.

They also thought the old lady was very good at matching.

Hayden was a quiet kid with a serious personality, so she should be paired with someone like Kevin who could speak well, last the couple would be quiet in the future, and Kevin could speak well, and the couple would have something to talk about.

"Dad, I'm also a gentleman, okay?" Hugh was not happy anymore.

He thought he was also a gentleman. Anyway, He never took advantage of girls.

"I don't know if you are a gentleman or not, but when people outside look at you, they always regard you as a philandering radish. When others want to marry you, they are all for your sister. You are no worse than your sister. The aspect is also very good, but no one is coming for you.

Those who really love their daughter, who cares about your identity as the second young master of the Queen family? With so many confidante friends around you all day long, who has everything, who would dare to marry their daughter to you?"

Donald scolded Hugh.

Mrs. Queen also said to Hugh: "If you have someone you like, you should settle it. Don't play around with flowers anymore. It will ruin your reputation, and it will be difficult to marry a wife in the future. Also, don't be popular with a female star, you just go chasing stars, get in touch with people, cause scandals, and you say you are a confidante, that's what happens between men and women, you think you say you are a confidante, people trust you? You deserve it if you can't find a wife."

Hugh: "...I, I really regard them as my confidante."

His confidante had their own characteristics and strengths. He admired them, but they didn't involve the relationship between men and women, cuddling and hugging.

Mrs. Queen: "Tell me, who would believe you? Go out and find out what your reputation is like?"

Hugh: "..."

Hugh remembered that his sister was always trying to match him and Kathryn, but Kathryn didn't like him because she thought he was a fool.

He really didn't care, he treated those confidant with pure friendship, and he didn't care whether others regard them as pure friendship or not.

But once he found that someone missed him and wanted to develop further, he would alienate that person.

As time went by, all the confidantes knew that they could only become pure friends with him, and didn't even think about becoming his's mistress.

This seemingly playful Hugh was not easy to win.

Kevin said with a smile: "Hugh, the one who is clear is self-clearing, when you meet a girl who knows you have so many confidante, but still has a heart for you, you should cherish it, because she really loves you so badly."

"I'm really full of mouth and can't speak clearly." Hugh smiled wryly.

He picked up the glass of water in front of him and drank it down.

It looked like he had been wronged so badly.

"I also went to rest, depressed." Hugh put down his water glass, got up and left.

Donald said: "I'm not happy to say that he doesn't admit it after a few words."

Kevin looked at the time and said to the two elders: "Uncle, Auntie, it's late, you guys go to rest too, I'll just clean up here."

"Kevin, the guest room has been packed for you, you can go back to your room to rest later, good night." Donald talked to his prospective son-in-law, and went back to the house with his wife.

Kevin was elated.

He cleaned up the table in the yard, and entered the house happily.

Hayden saw all this in front of the window. Although she didn't know what her parents and brother said to Kevin, it probably had something to do with her.

Recommended Novels