The Ex-Husband's Revenge Chapter 261

"Leon, fashion always comes and goes, and soon, this will be out of style before you know it. Let's just buy one set. There's no need to buy so many, is there?" Janice said, forcing out a smile.

"That's okay. I need some new additions to my wardrobe too, so why not buy a few more while we're at it?" Leon said nonchalantly.

"But..." Janice faltered at this. She wanted to change Leon's mind, but before she could say anything, Leon interjected, "No buts! Miss, can you help me pack these up and put them on my tab?"

"Yes, sir." The salesgirl was overjoyed at this. This was her first time encountering a customer as generous as this one, and she quickly realized that this man was probably a billionaire. Upon realizing this, her attitude changed entirely, and she plastered a wide grin on her face.

Then, as though afraid that Leon would change his mind at the next second, she disappeared to the counter with the clothes he ordered.

"But..." Janice could not think of any reason to reject the salesgirl's offer.

"Come on. Let's go take a look." Leon took her hand and dragged her toward the women's department.

Seeing that there was no prying her way out of this, Janice sighed and relented. After all, she was already here; it would not hurt anyone to try on a few pieces. Even if they turned out to be out of her budget, she could always choose not to buy them. Janice walked into the women's department with this thought.

"Miss, these skirts and dresses are the newest additions to our store; I'm sure that the elegant design would look amazing on you, so feel free to try a few of them out..." the salesgirl chirruped, pointing at the row of sleek dresses in front of her.

"Um..." Janice was a little hesitant.

Even though she knew that these clothes would not be cheap and that her wallet would probably not be able to handle the price tag, she was still a woman at heart and longed to try these beautiful pieces on.

"Can you grab a few popular ones for us to take a look at?" asked Leon.

This was way out of her budget.

"I don't think it's that special. Never mind. Let's go check out some other store..." Janice handed the clothes back to the salesgirl after changing out of them.

The smile froze on the salesgirl's face as disappointment seeped through her heart.

She hoped that a few of the items would catch Janice's attention, but on second thought, Janice was a gorgeous woman, and it was not surprising if Janice was considerably pickier when it came to fashion.

At this thought, the salesgirl's face lit up as an idea popped into her head. She strode over to a clothing rack on the other side of the room and announced, "Miss, there's a beautiful dress here in the store. It's the brainchild of one of the most famous fashion designers in this country. Its quality is unsurpassable when it comes to fabric or design, and is one of the most beautiful items we have on display in this store..."

Leon and Janice turned to glance in her direction and came face-to-face with an intricately designed short dress with tasseled edges and pearl shoulder straps. The exquisite pearls dazzled under the store's light as though beckoning for Janice to try them on.

"What a gorgeous dress!" Janice could not help exclaiming.

"Miss, please add this dress as well as the other clothes Janice has tried on to the bill! I'll take all of them!" Leon declared confidently.

“Yes, Sir! I’ll put it on your tab right now!” the salesgirl was absolutely over the moon. She quickly placed the clothes into a paper bag, the grin on her face so wide it was as though her cheeks would split apart at any moment.

“Wait, miss! I don’t want any of them...” Janice quickly stepped forward to stop her.

“Janice, you look amazing in these clothes. Why would you not want them?” Leon was puzzled by this.

“I...” Janice’s face was red with embarrassment, but she could no longer hide her humiliation. She whispered to him, “I don’t have that much money...”

“No money?” the color drained from the salesgirl’s face.

Janice’s face was etched with worry, hoping that Leon would take her advice and snap out of this before it was too late.

Leon did not know how to react to this. He could tell that Janice misunderstood the nature of his job, but he knew that she just tried to help, so he did not try to go against her.

“Alright, I promise I won’t do it again,” he said, smiling.

The only reason he got into the business was that he tried to establish the Energy Convergence Circle, and he knew

Janice chuckled as she said this, but after a moment, she realized how her statement could be easily misunderstood, and blushed in embarrassment.

Leon did not take it too seriously at all and instead pointed at a cosmetic store a short distance away from them. "Didn't you want to buy some makeup too, Janice? That store over there looks nice, why don't we go. take a look?"

"Alright." Janice agreed, and the two of them strode over together.

This was a chain cosmetics store that mainly sold mid and high-end makeup products, including well-known international brands that featured skin care products, perfume, and cosmeceutical products as well.

The two of them walked into the store.

Perhaps it was a Saturday, but the entire store was packed with people, and the mere few sales assistants available seemed to be overwhelmed by the crowd.

According to his calculations, the final suggested selling price would only be 1000 dollars, at most, but now, this store was selling it at 1700 dollars, so how could he not be shocked by the price?

"You call this expensive? What a joke! If you're so broke you can't afford anything in here, don't step into the store!" the salesgirl scowled at him.

She was very clear in warning them not to disturb her unless they genuinely wanted to buy a product, and now that he wasted her time, she could not help feeling infuriated.

"Um..." Leon was a little sheepish at this.

There was still about 10 million dollars in his bank account, and truth be told, a few thousand dollars did not matter much to him at all.

He was just a little shocked at the difference between the factory and final selling prices, and could not seem to figure out what went wrong.

It was a while since Leon saw Marilyn, and at first glance, he could tell that she gained weight.

Even though she was wearing loose clothing in an attempt to hide her figure, one could not deny the fact that she was heavily pregnant.

"Mr. Sullivan, I didn't know you'd be coming." The salesgirl's attitude changed entirely as soon as she saw him.

"I'm here on a surprise inspection." Brody's expression was just as haughty and arrogant as ever.

"This is my ex-wife and the bastard she slept with!" Leon replied calmly without a single hint of anger or emotion stirring within him.

"Oh!" Janice was stunned by this. She heard of Marilyn and Leon's messy divorce, and could not help feeling disgusted at Leon's mistreatment.

Even though she was a shy and introverted person, she still could not help feeling angry on Leon's behalf and the expression on her face immediately turned hostile.

"Leon, I never thought that you'd find another woman so soon after our divorce. I guess I underestimated your ability to fawn over women and trick them!" Marilyn was fuming at this. She was certain that Leon would get on horribly after their divorce and would never be able to find a mate again, but to her surprise, he got involved with one of the most beautiful women in town, Iris Young!

Not only that, but now, he seemed to be dating another extremely attractive woman.

Both of them were substantially prettier than her, and she was bitter over this!

"You must be joking, my dear Mary! This woman is so gorgeous; how can she possibly be Leon's new girlfriend? You certainly overestimated him!" Brody jeered.

Leon, with his arm still wrapped around Janice's waist, was about to turn and leave.

After all, he already moved past his divorce, and Janice already helped him win his pride back in front of Marilyn and Brody.

There was no point lingering on this issue any longer.

"Wait, we haven't bought anything yet," Janice whispered in a soft voice that tingled his ears.

"The products here are too expensive; we don't have to buy anything! If you want to get something from Elegante Group, I can always get my hands on them. I'll even get you two!" he replied, smiling.
