The Ex-Husband's Revenge Chapter 511

Leonard picked up his cup to sip on his tea with contempt in his eyes.

The Hines was one of the most powerful families in Seacowe City and the bodyguards they hired were all skilled fighters that could quickly destroy ordinary people.

In Leonard's perspective, a mere assistant like Leon could not possibly be able to stand a chance against the bodyguards.

"Baam! Baam! Baam!"

Leon darted forward, throwing his punches at an unstoppable speed. Within a blink of an eye, all four bodyguards were on the ground.

"Cynthia, don't worry. He's just at the Intermediate Innate State. I'm not even worried!" Leon said.

"How arrogant! If you have a death wish, I'll let you have it! Take this!" Provoked by Leonard's contempt, Leonard launched a strong punch at Leon's face.

"You're the one with a death wish!" Leon snorted, ignoring his punch and striking Leonard's chest instead.

Since they were not in Springfield City, she decided that it would not matter for her to tell Leonard the truth.

“What?” Leonard gaped in disbelief. Though it was hard to believe, Cynthia had no reason to lie to her. “It’s no wonder that you refuse to give me an answer on whether you want to work together. So this kid has been the one who gets to make the call all along!”

Leonard finally realized how foolish he was to fawn over Cynthia, while he did nothing to conceal his contempt for Leon.

“That’s right. Out of my respect for Sandra, Leon and I have reached a consensus to work with you and he has promised to honor the deal as long as you try your best to help us get to the Panax. Not only are you not grateful for it, but you’ve also plotted and done unspeakable things to get your way!” Cynthia glared at Leonard, feeling glad at the same time that they managed to see who Leonard truly was, or Cynthion Group might suffer for partnering with someone so despicable.

Leonard knew that both Cynthia and Leon would not let him go and turned to Sandra for help despite the pain in his leg.

"You—" Sandra's expression darkened.

Her relationship with Leonard was a strategic one and since they were never indeed in love, to begin with, what Leonard did this time erased whatever affection she had for him. However, he was right about how he was still her boyfriend and she could not simply watch as he was beaten.

Her family relied heavily on the Hines and if Leon killed or destroyed Leonard, it would not benefit her or her family in any way.

Not only would this help the Doyles, but it might also bring them harm in the end.

Cynthia was rendered speechless at Leon's words, knowing that his view was reasonable. The Energy Nurturing Pills were special and for a family with no power to defend themselves, handing the pills to them would only cause trouble.

"Maybe it's just not meant to be." Sandra was depressed that the only hope she had was gone.

"Don't worry, Sandra. We can try to figure something else out," Cynthia consoled her, before rocking Leon's arm back and forth, "Leon, Sandra, and I have been friends for years and I can't just let her ruin her life. Think of something, will you?"

"Leon, why are you on my bed?" Cynthia blushed, her heart threatening to leap out of her chest.

"Huh?" He froze and glanced at Cynthia, before looking down at himself.

'Damn it, did something happen between Cynthia and me last night?' He thought. His heart sank as he immediately lifted the blanket and was relieved when he saw that he was fully dressed.

Cynthia, too, noticed that she was fully dressed and realized that she slept next to Leon.

The pair left the hotel and drove to the auction that was held at the city center.

It was the largest auction in Seacove City and all neighboring cities, attracting countless wealthy families and collectors to gather for it.

By the time Leon and Cynthia arrived, the outdoor parking lot was filled with all luxurious brands of cars.

According to the protocol, Leon and Cynthia had to submit 300 thousand for deposit in exchange for a number plate and a dialog.

The number given to them was 1603 and it would be the number they used when they bid for objects; the dialog had all the information about the objects sold at the auction with the estimated prices written on their respective pages for the guests’ convenience.

Considering the selling rate for other items, the starting price of four million would eventually be raised to fifteen million. Though most people who participated in the auction came from a wealthy background, four million was still a considerable amount and the majority of them did not feel that the wild Panax was worth its price.

Leon straightened his back in excitement when he noticed the lack of interest around the hall, as his chance of obtaining the Panax would be higher with fewer competitors.

"Four million and seven hundred thousand!"
