

THE CONTRACT MARRIAGE

Chapter 115 Visit To The Hospital

Christian held her down and said, "Sit tight here. I will feed you today."

Under Regimental Commander Cooper's insistence, this breakfast, he insisted on feeding his wife. At first, Sarah was still a little uncomfortable, but later, she slowly let go. The two of them chatted as they ate. In a while, they finished breakfast.

After Christian packed his things, Sarah looked at him and said, "I'll look after this place. Go back and sleep first! Your legs have just recovered."

His legs had just recovered not too long ago. She was worried that his legs would not be able to withstand the long period of tiredness.

"My leg is fine now. Don't worry. I didn't do any heavy work, I'll be fine! "

"But. . . You should rest the most now. I will be fine here." Sarah still insisted on him going back.

"Your husband is not that weak. Don't worry!"
Christian smiled and patted her hand.

When Daphne went downstairs in the morning, she heard from Uncle Garcia that Sarah had finished cooking and went to the hospital. Although she did not like Sarah very much, when she heard what she later did, she nodded her head in satisfaction.

When she walked into the living room, she found that her son, Julian, and her daughter-in-law Vivian had not gone downstairs. She was somewhat dissatisfied.

However, when she thought about how her son had stayed up so late last night, her daughter-in-law was also nearly six months pregnant, so she did not mind.

Vivian woke up early in the morning and looked at Julian who was still sleeping beside her. She laid on the bed for a while.

After she found out that the child in her womb was abnormal, she and Lucas did not believe that the examination results, so they went to another hospital on the other day. But the results were all the same. The child in her womb. . . There was indeed a problem with his health.

This result made her lose her composure. She thought about how she had married into the Cooper Family. She had hoped that she would be able to depend on her son in the future, so her heart would be filled with hope for so long.

However, the result was like this. In her heart, she hated the injustice that the heavens had done to her. But things had already happened. No matter how much she hated the injustice of the heavens, no one would turn the child in her womb into a healthy child.

She thought of Daphne who wanted to carry her grandson wholeheartedly. Vivian was very clear about one thing in her heart that if that old woman knew the truth, then her position in the Cooper Family would be even worse than before. Therefore, she could not tell anyone about this matter.

However, her belly was already so big. It was already impossible for her to quietly knock him out. But how could she abort him in a legitimate manner, and make everyone not know about the child's malformation?

No matter how hard she thought about it, she still could not think of a feasible method.

Seeing that it was almost time, she slowly got up from the bed. After washing up, she saw that Julian was still sleeping, so she didn't bother with him. She opened the door and went downstairs.

When she reached the living room, she saw Daphne ordering the maids to prepare breakfast in the kitchen. She immediately changed her expression and walked over. She softly called. "Mom. What happened to dad last night? Julian didn't tell me clearly. Where's Dad? How is he? I'll go to the room to see him!"

Vivian said as she went upstairs, but Daphne quickly stopped her.

"Your father had a cerebral hemorrhage last night and has already been admitted to the hospital."

"Ah? How could this be? Mom! Why didn't any of you explain it clearly to me? Julian only said that something happened to father and left. I thought that it was nothing serious, but I didn't expect that such a big thing would happen to my father. No way! I have to go to the hospital to see father!" Vivian immediately wanted to leave nervously.

"Your dad had surgery yesterday and now he is out of danger. Julian is worried that it will be bad for the child if you are scared, so he did not tell you the truth. No one blames you. Don't worry. . ." Daphne saw her daughter-in-law's nervous and agitated look and felt a little comforted in her heart.

"Mom, you really should have told me about such a big thing. Those who do not know would think that I am an unfilial daughter-in-law." Vivian could not help but lower her head as she spoke. She raised her hand and wiped away her tears.

"How could that be? We understand your feelings. Quickly stop crying. My grandson is also crying when you cry." Daphne quickly comforted her.

"Thank you mom. . ." Vivian raised her head and looked at mother-in-law with teary eyes, "Is Dad really alright?"

"Don't worry. He is not in a big trouble anymore. He might need some time to recover later."

"Can you take me to the hospital later? I want to see Dad. . ." Vivian looked at Daphne with pity.

"Okay, after breakfast, we will go together." Daphne patted her daughter-in-law's shoulder, turned around and instructed the servants in the kitchen before bringing her to the living room.

When Julian got up, Vivian was already nowhere to be seen by his side. He first went to the bathroom to wash up, changed his clothes, and then quickly went downstairs. He saw that breakfast had already been prepared in the dining room.

Just as the whole family walked over and sat down, Julian also walked over and sat down. Noticing that Sarah's figure was missing at the dining table, he looked at his mother and asked, "Mom, Where is sister-in-law?"

When Vivian heard that he was looking for Sarah the moment he went downstairs, she immediately carried the milk and said indifferently, "She went to the hospital early in the morning."

Daphne also nodded her head. "Yes, I heard Uncle Garcia say when I woke up. Quickly eat! I still have to go to the hospital to see your father later."

"Got it, Mom!" Julian nodded.

"I want to go to the hospital too!" Benjamin looked at Julian and said.

He had not seen his son since last night, so he had been very worried. Although Ethan was out of danger, Benjamin had only heard about it from others. Even if he saw his son once, he would feel relieved.

"Dad, don't go there with your health. Ethan is fine now!" Daphne immediately stopped him when she heard the old man's words.

"I just want to see him. All of you have seen him. I did not even sleep well last night!" Old Master Cooper was old, and he had a childish temper.

Julian nodded in agreement. "Mom, just let grandpa go. He is worried about dad!"

"Okay, okay!" Daphne listened to her son's words and agreed.

After the whole family had breakfast, Julian drove a car. Daphne and her Vivian sat in one car, while Old Master Cooper sat in the other and went to the hospital. When the car drove out of Villa of Cooper Family, Daphne looked at Vivian and gently touched her bulging belly. She said with some longing, "I hope my grandson will be born soon. This way, when your father sees his grandson, his illness might recover very quickly. "

Vivian immediately replied with a smile, "Mom, it is only a few months. It should be almost the end of the year before giving birth, right?"

"Yes, it's almost winter. I will be a little busy these two days. When you are at home, be careful and pay attention to your health. You have to protect my grandson, okay?" Daphne attached great importance to this little grandson. As Vivian's stomach grew bigger and bigger, she did not dare to let the former go out alone, as she was afraid that something bad would happen to her.

"Mom, don't worry! I will be fine. Besides, there are so many maids in our house. No one will let anything happen to me. I remember when my mom said that she was pregnant with me in the past, she still washed clothes and cooked. I have also done many housework at home. . . ." Vivian could not help but laugh as she spoke.

Daphne heard her words and immediately looked at her reproachfully. Her hand was placed on her abdomen, "How can you compare to our little grandson to you? His life is very precious. In the future, he will inherit the Cooper Group and become the CEO of the Cooper Group. Then, he will become the chairman. . . "

At the end of her words, a longing expression appeared on Daphne's face.

Although her words at the beginning sounded somewhat unpleasant, Vivian still felt somewhat happy when she heard the end. "Mom, look at what you said about him. Is he really that powerful?"

"Of course! My grandson must be even more powerful than his father, grandpa!" Daphne immediately corrected her.

"Mom, thank you!" Vivian looked at Daphne and smiled. She looked down at her stomach and there was a happy smile on her face. But in her heart, she felt indescribably depressed. She couldn't figure out how the child's got congenital heart disease. She even specially went home to ask her mother and Lucas. In the end, they did not have any history of heart disease, but why did the child she was carrying have this kind of illness?

Daphne's words made her desire to abort the child stronger. If she wanted to inherit the Cooper Group's huge business, she had to give birth to a son. But If her son had a heart attack. . . And if Sarah gave birth to a healthy son, Ethan would definitely give everything to that woman. And in the end the entire Cooper Group would definitely fall into Sarah son's hands.

No way! Absolutely not!

The Cooper Family's cars went to the hospital in a grandiose manner. The car stopped in front of the building. A few people quickly got out of the car. Daphne supported Vivian. Julian helped Benjamin to his father's ward.

When the group of people walked out of the elevator, they saw Christian and Sarah sitting on chairs in the corridor. They were whispering. They didn't know what Christian had said, but Sarah had a happy smile.

It was this smile that made Julian's eyes particularly dazzling.

Daphne saw that this daughter-in-law was still able to smile at such a time, so she immediately walked over grumpily. "Why are all of you outside? Is there not a single person in the ward? What if Ethan has something to do?"

Christian and Sarah immediately stood up. Just as they were about to say something, they saw Daphne push open the door of the ward and walk in.

"Family members, wait outside!"

Daphne had just stepped into the ward when she heard the doctor's words in the ward. Her footsteps paused, and she could only close the door and exit.

Old Master Cooper slowly walked over and asked, "Christian, how is your father?"

"Grandpa, because the anesthesia last night hasn't been withdrawn, Dad will only wake up at noon. The doctor is inside checking his body." Christian immediately answered grandpa's question truthfully.
