

Impulsive Vow to an Enigmatic Husband (Cornelia Stewart) Chapter 791

Chapter 791

Hannah said, "Don't ask me, I really have no idea. Seems like a lot of people in my fan club are loaded I heard the ones who splurge are mostly rich kids or bored wealthy wives"

Rosie said, "There was a time when I was totally nuts about a celebrity, shelling out big bucks every day on his endorsed products. Right when I was on all, Lucas found out He thought I had a sugar daddy on the side and, in a huff, cut off my credit card felt so wronged but couldn't explain."

Cornelia asked, "How much did you blow on that guy?"

Hannah said, "Let me guess, at least a few hundred grand, right?"

Rosie said. "Two million! I was planning to finance a movie with him as the lead, but it never worked."

Cornelia thought to herself, these rich people, money really did burn a hole in their pockets. They could do so much with two million.

Hannah asked, "Who's the celeb? Do I know him?"

Rosie said, "Let's not talk about it. He's doing okay now, and I don't want to rain on his parade."

Hannah changed the subject, "Let's not gossip about others. Let's talk about newlywed Cornelia and President Hartley." She then asked Cornelia, "Anything about President Hartley that irks you, Cornelia?"

Without hesitation, Cornelia said, "Nope."

In Cornelia's eyes, Marcus was perfect.

Hannah and Rosie both exclaimed, "None?"

Cornelia looked puzzled, "Does there have to be? In my eyes, my hubby is really awesome."

Rosie said, "Think harder. There's bound to be something that bugs you."

Cornelia said, "As a couple, we should be lenient with each other's flaws."

Hannah said, "You gotta think of one, or else we can't continue this chat."

Cornelia pondered, "If I really have to pick one, it'd be that he's a tad possessive. He can get jealous of anyone, even my good friend Zack."

Hannah said, "Men are just overly possessive. They can't stand their wives even glancing at other men."

Rosie agreed wholeheartedly. "Absolutely"

Cornelia had her own thoughts, "I think not only men are possessive, we women are the same. Would you like your husband ogling other women? I don't. k now about you, but I definitely wouldn't like it. If he was checking out other women, I'd be green with envy."

Rosie said, "Cornelia, did your boyfriend brainwash you? Why are there no flaws in him in your eyes? He's handsome, has a great body, is filthy rich, and has an impeccable character. How are the rest of us supposed to live? Everyone says nobody's perfect. Didn't God leave him with any flaws?"

Hannah laughed, "Maybe that's what they call love. It blinds you to flaws."

Cornelia didn't say anything. She finally thought of the flaw God had given Marcus to make him less than perfect.

It was a flaw connected to his pride, and she couldn't just blurt it out, "It's getting late, let's go eat. We can chat more after dinner. I'm free tonight anyway"

Hannah sprawled on the couch, "I'm not hungry, don't feel like eating."

Chapter 792

"Are you feeling unwell? Do you need a doctor?" Cornelia asked.

Hannah shook her head, "I just don't want to be with that guy"

"What's the matter between you and President Dixon?" Cornelia asked.

"What could possibly be the matter? Hannah retorted, "Our marriage was a transaction from the get-go. He never truly considered me his wife. To him, I'm like his plaything, to be summoned when he needs me and discarded when he doesn't."

"You can't think like that. You two are legally wedded, you are equals. Cornelia tried to reason with her.

Hannah let out a soft laugh, "Equals? Cornelia, do you really think I can talk about equality with guys like Steven, without sounding naive?"

Perhaps she had been too sheltered by Marcus, oblivious to the harsh realities of the world outside.

Talking about equality with the men in this room was only possible if they were willing to treat them as equals. Otherwise, it was all just empty talk.

"Why not? He's your husband." Cornelia said.

"If he doesn't respect me, doesn't allow me my own rights, then I don't need such a marriage." Hannah scoffed, "Cornelia, look at those four men over there. If they don't agree to a divorce, who among us can get a divorce? Skyler is the perfect example. She left everything behind to escape Zavier, and nearly lost her life in the process.

Cornelia was left speechless.

"Our circumstances are different. The people we face are different, and our understanding of marriage is different." Hannah continued.

Upon hearing this, Cornelia felt a pang of sadness. She couldn't comprehend Hannah's predicament, which led her to believe Hannah's thinking was flawed, "I'm sorry."

Why are you apologizing? If you still think this way, it means President Hartley truly cares for you. You should cherish him." Hannah said.

Cornelia nodded, "I will."

Their conversation was interrupted by the sound of a broken wine glass. The three of them turned towards the direction of the sound, only to see Xavier smashing another wine glass against the wall, like a madman.

The root of it all could be traced back to a few minutes ago.

After the men had moved to the inner room, Steven seemed distracted, frequently glancing towards Hannah.

Lucas teased him, "Steven, can't bear to be away from your wife? Can't handle being a few feet away from her?"

Steven turned his gaze away, "What were you guys just talking about?"

"We were talking about Xavier. Since he can't find Skyler and can't stay single forever, we suggested he heed his father's advice and remarry." Lucas said.

Steven said, "Xavier's feelings for Skyler run deep. He definitely won't remarry in the near future. But if more time passes, who knows?"

Zavier finished his drink in one gulp, placing the glass in front of Marcus, "Marcus, how about we make a bet?"

Marcus gently pushed up his silver-rimmed glasses, calmly replying, "I don't gamble!"

Chapter 793

"Not placing a bet?" Zavier seemed surprised by Marcus's blunt refusal. He echoed Marcus's words, lit a cigarette and said, "Since when did you, the CEO of the Hartley Group, become such a chicken?"

Marcus looked up at Zavier, "No bet means no bet Your words don't faze me, so save your breath" snuffed out the just lit cigarette in the ashtray. "Marc, I'm giving you a few more days. If you don't return Skyler to me, don't say I didn't warn you"

Zavier

Marcus swirled his drink, about to take a sip but remembering Cornelia's advice. He set it down and said, "I'm in this till the end."

Steven asked, "What are you guys doing? It's just a girl. Is it worth ruining your brotherhood over a girl?"

"Just a girl?" Zavier was provoked by the comment. Now he wasn't just mad at Marcus, he was pissed at Steven, "If one day he hides your girl, would you still say it's just a girl?"

Steven replied, "Hannah would never leave me."

Zavier turned to Lucas, "Lucas, what about you?"

Lucas replied, "If someone hides Rosie, I'd fight them to the death."

He knew from a young age that he was going to marry Rosie. The name Rosie was deeply etched in his mind. He couldn't imagine life without Rosie.

Lucas continued, "I can't live without Rosie. She's my wife, I love her, and I can't be without her. Zavier, why can't you live without Skyler? Is it a matter of pride or something else?"

Zavier had always been reluctant to admit his feelings for Skyler. Maybe he didn't realize how important she was to him until she left.

Lucas went on, "If you're looking for Skyler because you like her, and can't live without her, then admit it. If you want to confess, do it openly. Maybe Marc will tell Skyler and she'll come back."

"I do like her. I can't live without her. So, Marc, can you give me Skyler's address? Let me find her." Zavier's candidness made everyone skeptical of his feelings for Skyler.

Lucas said,

“Can you sound more sincere when you say these things? It sounds fake to us.”

Zavier looked at Marcus, “Marc.”

Marcus said,

“If Skyler wants to come back to you, she will. Telling me this is pointless.”

Marcus was unmoved by Zavier’s strong stance. Zavier tried to appeal to him emotionally, “Marc, it’s been 109 days since I last heard from Skyler. Do you know how I’ve survived these days? I’ve sent people all over the world to find her. I’d go wherever there’s a trace of her. Even with repeated disappointments, I’ve never given up. I always believe that one day I’ll find her.”

Despite Zavier’s sweet words, Marcus replied, “I don’t know where Skyler is now.”

Hearing this, Zavier exploded like a ticking bomb, “What did you say? Say that again!”

Zavier’s threats didn’t bother Marcus. He responded calmly, “I don’t know where your wife is.”

Zavier smashed his glass against the wall, “Marcus, I’m warning you, don’t make me to force you.”

Chapter 794

Hearing the commotion, Cornelia bolted over, positioning her petite frame between Marcus and Zavier, “Zavier, what are you up to?”

Marcus looked at the fearless girl who had rushed to his defense, his icy heart enveloped in warmth His voice softened involuntarily, “Cornelia ”

Cornelia said, “Don’t be scared I’ll protect you”

Marcus chuckled "Such a silly girl!"

He didn't need her protection. Even if Xavier had the guts, he wouldn't dare to cross him.

Xavier snapped "Back off Don't make me get rough with a woman!"

Seeing things escalating Steven and Lucas quickly tried to mediate "Guys, can't you just talk it out? Keep this up and you won't be friends much longer"

The four of them were college pals and business partners, enjoying a strong bond. They had treasured places in each other's hearts. If they really had a falling out, they might stop hanging out altogether, which none of them wanted

Steven added, "Marc. Xavier knows he messed up. He's realized how important Skyler is to him. Why not give him another chance?"

Comelia retorted, "The chance isn't for President Hartley to give. It's up to him to earn it. If he gets his act together and Skyler's willing, she'll come back"

Steven frowned, "Marc, your woman really doesn't know when to keep her mouth shut. We're having a conversation here. It's not her place to butt in

"I don't need her to be understanding Her being happy and free is all that matters. Marcus stood up slowly, his gaze from beneath his silver-rimmed glasses on Xavier was chilling and terrifying, "Do you know anything about the poisoning?"

Even Xavier shivered under Marcus' intense stare, "What are you talking about?"

Marcus said, "You better not be involved, or I don't care who you are, and I won't show any mercy"

Lucas said, "It's getting late Let's have dinner. We can chat while we eat

The tension was thick, threatening to blow up any second. Someone had to defuse it to keep the dinner going.

Hannah also chimed in, 'Let's eat first.'

She wanted to sit next to Cornelia, but moved next to Steven under his stern gaze.

Once seated, Steven's hand found its way around her waist, gently moving back and forth. He leaned in and whispered in her ear, "What were you and Cornelia talking about just now?"

Hannah said, "Just about how she met President Hartley"

Steven said, "Zavier's wife, Skyler, was taken away by Cornelia. Stay away from her and don't hang out with her unless necessary."

Hannah asked, "Are you scared of her?"

Steven laughed, "Do you think I would be?"

Hannah said, "You may not be scared of her, but you've got to be wary of Marcus behind her. Everyone saw tonight how protective Marcus is of Cornelia. The look in his eyes when Zavier told Cornelia to move was like he was ready to attack. It was truly terrifying".

Chapter 795

"Are you scared of Marcus?" Steven echoed Hannah's words, then burst into laughter, 'Darling do you really think I'm that useless?"

Whether Steven was capable or not, Hannah knew best. He was terrifying, like a smiling yet ruthless tiger, leaving no trace of his prey

But she just wanted to dent this man's pride. Is it so hard to admit you're scared of Marcus?"

Steven said, "Marc usually appears to be very gentle, especially when he puts on those silver rimmed glasses. He looks like a complete gentleman, without a hint of aggression. But in reality his personality is extreme, even more terrifying than Zavier, who people call a lunatic. When he was not yet seventeen, he was able to send his own father to prison Do you think I would not be afraid of a person who could do such a thing?"

Being afraid of Marcus was not something to be ashamed of, and Steven did not hesitate to admit it, "Only I never thought that he, who has always been indifferent to women, would one day regard a woman so important. Tonight, we all saw Marcus' regard for Cornelia, completely beyond our expectations. His unconditional spoiling of that woman will sooner or later bring destruction to him and his Hartley Group"

Hannah disagreed with Steven's view, "He's just spoiling his wife, don't scare people"

Steven laughed and said, "Marcus is not ordinary. He's the president of the Hartley Group, which has business in various fields. He's the richest man in the world, and with all the honors, danger naturally follows him. If his competitors find out he has a weakness, and that weakness is a woman. What do you think those who are helpless against him will do?"

Hannah asked. "You mean they might target Cornelia?"

Steven said, "Not might, but already have "

Hannah said, "Cornelia has been in danger? When did this happen? Why didn't she tell us?"

Steven said, "I'm not sure when exactly it happened I just heard Marc questioning Xavier if he knew about someone poisoning, probably someone tried to poison Cornelia and he found out."

These words left Hannah terrified.

Steven continued "Marc knew what danger Cornelia might face by being with him, yet he still publicly acknowledged her identity without considering Cornelia's safety Lock how good I am to you and how much I love you."

Hannah said, "Don't you think Marcus' actions are what a normal man should do? He gives Cornelia enough respect, love and sense of security"

Steven said, "Are you saying I'm not normal? That I haven't given you enough respect? Or you feel I haven't given you security?"

Hannah said, "Maybe both"

"I love you so deeply, but you feel I haven't given you enough sense of security" Steven slightly tightened his hold on Hannah's waist, "Darling, you're hurting my heart. Believe it or not, I could lay a hand on you right now!"

Hannah stiffened slightly, looked up at him and smiled faintly. "You have done so before, what's there to believe or not?"

Steven was satisfied with her response, "Good that you remember!"

"What are you two whispering about instead of eating?" At the dinner table, everyone was eating in silence, the atmosphere a bit tense. Trying to lighten the mood, Lucas spoke up

Steven said, "We're discussing our bedroom exercises for tonight"

Lucas said, "Eat first, then discuss. If you don't eat enough, you won't have the energy tonight!"

Chapter 796

Steven quickly served Hannah some dishes, "Babe, you should eat more, need to keep your strength up. Don't be nodding off before the party's over"

He always did this, airing their dirty laundry in public, always making her cringe. At first, Hannah minded and reminded him to cut it out. But when he didn't, she eventually became immune to it, as if the woman he was talking about was not her

Nevertheless, Hannah subconsciously looked at the person who mattered to her. Cornelia was also staring at her, their eyes meeting in the air. Cornelia opened her mouth, wanting to say something. But Hannah smiled at her, as if to reassure her that everything was fine.

To save Hannah any embarrassment, Cornelia looked away and continued to serve Marcus, taking care of him with the same dedication as when she was his assistant.

Steven served Hannah more food, "Babe, did you see that? Cornelia's still fusing over Marc like a secretary. Marc doesn't respect her the way you think he does."

Steven was right, Cornelia was taking care of Marcus. But it was clear to anyone with eyes that Cornelia was happily doing so.

Hannah watched Cornelia and Marcus, unable to look away, when Steven's pleasant but chilly voice came again, "Babe, your eyes are so pretty, especially those bright eyeballs of yours. What if you lose them?"

Hannah looked away, sighed softly. "I envy Cornelia."

Steven asked, "Do you like a guy like Marc?"

Hannah answered, "Who wouldn't like a man who is handsome, nice, and genuinely loves and respects his wife?"

This made Steven very unhappy.

"Hannah, do you like him? Do you want him to see firsthand how much I love you?"

Hannah held his gaze defiantly. "Do you know why I admire Marcus? Because he never behaves inappropriately toward Cornelia in public. Respect is not about what you say, it's about what you do."

What Hannah saw in Cornelia and Marcus, Steven didn't understand. Or perhaps he couldn't see it at all, because he didn't have a heart.

Steven asked, "Are you blaming me for always having sex with you at the wrong time?"

Hannah stayed silent.

Steven served her more food, "Babe, I want you all the time. That shows my interest in you is still strong Shouldn't you be happy and excited?"

Hannah stopped talking, buried her head in her food. But even the most exquisite and expensive food tasted bland in her mouth.

She stole another glance at Cornelia

Cornelia said something that made Marcus laugh. Then Marcus actually picked a half-eaten meatball from Cornelia's plate and put it in his own mouth.

Marcus was a clean freak, which was something everyone knew

Whenever

Marcus dined with them all the utensils had to be brand new He had always been such a fussy spot, but now he could eat Cornelia's leftovers without a care in the world!

Cornelia was also taken aback by this. She watched as Marcus nonchalantly finished off her leftover meatball, her cheeks flushing. "Why are you eating my leftovers?"

Marcus looked at her blushing face, his voice low and gentle, "You said you couldn't finish, and didn't want to waste. I'm still hungry, so I helped you out"

Cornelia retorted. "If I can't finish I'll just take less next time You don't need to force yourself like this"

"Who says I'm forcing myself? Marcus replied, "I have hands, you don't need to serve me I can do it myself"

Cornelia didn't want it to be this way, but she'd grown used to serving him over the past year. When they ate together, she always thought of taking care of him first. "It's a habit I've developed over the past year, and it's not going to change overnight. Just give me some more time, I'll try to change"

Marcus once again transferred the food she didn't want from her plate to his, "Some habits need to be broken sooner rather than later, especially the one where you rush in front of me to shield me from danger. That can't happen anymore"

Cornelia replied, "That was an instinctual response. Before my brain could even process what was happening, my body had already rushed forward. It's pretty scary thinking about it now. Earlier, Xavier was really unstable, if he had slapped me, my face would definitely be swollen. From now on, I'll definitely be more rational and won't dash in front of you anymore"

She said that, but deep down she didn't really mean it. Even when Marcus was just her boss, she was willing to get hurt to save him. Now Marcus was not only her boss but also her husband. No matter what danger came their way, she would always shield him from it.

Marcus asked, "So you know to be scared now?"

Cornelia nodded vigorously, "I do."

Marcus added, "If you dare to do something dangerous again, I'll have to punish you."

Cornelia asked, "How are you going to punish me?"

Marcus remained silent

women

Cornelia realized her question might have been a bit too vague and quickly lowered her head to eat, "Let's just eat. Do we have any other plans after dinner?"

Whenever this group gathered, they usually just ate and played cards. Given how awkward things were today, Cornelia suspected they might call it quits after dinner. However, she underestimated them greatly

After dinner, they started a poker game

Zavier, who was just confronting Marcus earlier, was now calling him Marc in a friendly manner. His tone and attitude couldn't be friendlier.

Cornelia even wondered if Zavier and Marcus had just had an argument.

Zavier sat down first without greeting anyone, then turned to Marcus, "Marc, are you playing or is your wife?"

Marcus turned to Cornelia, "Do you want to play?"

Cornelia shook her head, "No!"

Cornelia didn't like playing cards, especially when the stakes were high. If she lost too much, she was worried her body couldn't take the stress.

Marcus reached over and ruffled her hair, "Then you can just sit next to me and watch. If you get bored, let me know. We can go home earlier

"No worries, you haven't seen them in a while, so have fun" Cornelia was understanding, and besides, the girls had already planned to go watch a light show in the rooftop greenhouse later

Steven shoved Hannah towards the poker table, "Babe, you seem to be on a roll today, why don't you play and I'll just watch"

"I'm supposed to go see the light show with Cornelia and Rosie" Hannah didn't want to get involved in the game. She just wanted to hang out with her friends

Steven wasn't too keen on Hannah hanging out with Cornelia alone, so he tried to keep her by his side by all means He didn't want her out of his sight, Tim having a rotten luck today, so unless you want to see me lose my shirt, you gotta play”

Hannah felt helpless and held all her discontent and struggle within. Rosie didn't know what to say, so she texted Cornelia [Should we try to help Hannah bail out?]

Cornelia responded [Steven is super wary of me. He's afraid I might steal his Hannah. If I step in, he's definitely not letting go

Rosie [What should we do then? The glasshouse on the rooftop is the best spot to watch the light show Hannah has always wished to watch the Riverton light show from there She'd be gutted if she missed it now when the timing and location are perfect]

Cornelia didn't want her friend to be upset [figure something out]

Rosie [What else could you possibly come up with?]

Without answering Rosie, Cornelia opened a chat with Jeremy and quickly typed. There's a light show tonight |

Marcus, engrossed in his game, didn't bother checking his phone when it pinged With Cornelia by his side, he didn't think the message could be from her.

Seeing him ignore his phone, Cornelia nudged him. Marcus, holding his cards in one hand, grabbed her with the other, “You want to play too?”

Cornelia whispered, “Why aren't you checking your phone?”

“Did you send me a message?” Marcus assumed she had something awkward to tell him, hence the message. He quickly pulled out his phone to check.

To his surprise, the message simply read [There's a light show tonight)

Why couldn't she tell him that in person? Was there a hidden meaning?

Marcus thought for a moment, “Do you want me to watch the light show with you?”

Cornelia, “No.”

Cornelia added, "Hannah was supposed to watch the light show with us, but Steven has her stuck at the poker table. Can you do something to make Steven let her go?"

Marcus leaned in and whispered, "Cornelia, you shouldn't meddle in a couple's affairs."

Cornelia muttered, "1"

Marcus continued, "Every couple has their own way of dealing with things. How do you know this isn't their way of having fun?"

He seemed to make a lot of sense.

The couple had had a little spat today but it wasn't anything serious. They'd probably kiss and make up by the end of the night.

With her as an outsider joining in, the game was a whole new ball game. She meant well, trying to help. But in reality, she was just stirring up trouble.

Marcus shook her hand. "You get what I'm saying, right?"

Cornelia nodded. "I gotcha"

She was still bummed that she couldn't help Hannah fulfill her little wish, Marcus glanced at his watch, "It's twenty past eight, and the light show starts in ten minutes. Let's all go watch it together"

Cornelia asked excitedly. "Are you done playing cards?"

Seeing her so thrilled, Marcus was also chuffed, "Playing cards can happen anytime, but things that make you happy, not so much"

Ignoring all the gazes around them, Cornelia kissed Marcus on the corner of his mouth, "Marcus, you're the best!"

Damn!

Marcus adjusted his glasses, his eyes focused on her, suddenly becoming blurry. His Cornelia was so sweet and naive, she had no idea how much that kiss affected him. It took all his self-control not to cross the line with her.

Others, especially Xavier, exclaimed, "Marcus, you stole my wife and left me all alone. And now you're flaunting your love in front of me, that's low"

She got carried away in the moment and kissed Marcus, not considering everyone else around them. Now being teased by everyone, she wished she could just hide.

Marcus simply responded, "Let's finish this game, then we'll go watch the light show"

The other three guys said almost simultaneously, "What's so great about a light show? If we want to see one, we can simply pay for a bigger and better one. Wouldn't that be better?"

That was how rich people talk. They wanted a light show, just one word, and the best light show companies would be scrambling for their service. They never had to follow other people's schedules; if they missed it, they could still watch it whenever they wanted

Marcus said, "I'm going, it's up to you guys if you want to come."

The other three guys immediately got it, "So, your wife wants to see it?"

Marcus replied, "No, I want to watch it with her."

The three guys said, "Sure enough, once a long time single guy tastes the sweetness of love, he can't extricate himself."

Not only was his relationship with Cornelia great, his card-playing luck was also off the charts. He won the first round.

Weren't people supposed to have lousy luck in cards when their love life was going well? Why was Marcus the exception?

Cornelia answered [No, he didn't ask for it. I kissed him because I was overwhelmed I hope you guys stop making fun of me I

Rosie said [Look at you blushing like a teenager You're still green Once you've been around the block a few times, you won't be so easily fuster ed)

Cornelia quickly touched her face, it was indeed hot.

Zavier, not only without his wife by his side but also losing at the poker table, was in a sour mood. He said to Marc, "Enjoy the good times while you can. You might end up like me wileless and lost"

Cornelia didn't like the negative talk, "Mr. Rivera, don't worry your pretty little head about us. We'll stick together like glue, till death do us part

Zavier looked at Comelia, laughed and said, "Are you sure about that?"

Comelia said, "Positive"

Zavier said, "Then here's to your everlasting happiness!"

Comelia said, "Thanks!"

This year marked the 50th anniversary of Riverton. There had been light shows every weekend recently, up until the anniversary celebration on July 28th.

Over the past few weekends, the best hotels and restaurants in Riverton's most scenic area had been booked solid. Everyone wanted the best spot to watch the light show. The glasshouse on the rooftop of the club where Cornelia and her friends were, offered the best view of the light show in all of Riverton. But, few people could afford to be there and most had little interest in the light show. So, apart from Cornelia and her friends and the staff, there was nobody else in the glasshouse. It was almost like a private light show for them.

As soon as they climbed up, Steven immediately perked up. "This is a better view of the light show than I expected. It's also a great place for couples."

Hannah, who initially was the most excited about the light show, seemed uninterested now, following Steven around like a lost puppy. She tried to talk to Cornelia a few times but was stopped by Steven..

Lucas wasn't particularly interested at first. But seeing his wife so excited, he found the light show rather enjoyable.

Zavier lit a cigarette and sat in a corner, his eyes focused on something, lost in his thoughts.

Cornelia, as usual, couldn't resist taking photos of the beautiful scene. She took a video of the light show and immediately shared it in the group chat 'Fam Squad'. "Fam Squad" was a kind of group chat she had always wanted to join. Such groups were common among her colleagues. Zack and Abigail had one, but she didn't because she only had her grandma left in her family.

Yesterday, Granny Luisa created a group chat and invited all the family members. She named it "We are family". Cornelia was over the moon when she saw the group name. The group had six members, including the two grannies and Patricia, Marcus and Briana, and lastly, Cornelia.

It was 8:30 in the evening, the grannies were still awake and replied quickly after seeing the message.

Granny Luisa replied [Nelly, are you and Mare at the light show? Enjoy it for a while longer. If it's too late when you're done, you can choose not to come home.]

Granny Rebecca replied: [Home is best.]

Patricia replied: [Why aren't you in the video, Nelly? Have Marc take a photo of you and show us]
