I am a quadrillionaire chapter 2330-With David's unlimited finances, he forcibly made a name for himself in Wier.

Everyone in Wier's upper circles now knew that such a wealthy nouveau riche had come to the city and that he liked to collect treasures of heaven and earth.

With Thor spending money to collect treasures, David did not even want to ask about these trivial matters.

He was not in a hurry anyway.

He was already a partial Overlord, and that was enough to solve all his troubles today.

The strongest member of the Feather family was just an Ancestral Deity. What was an Ancestral Deity in front of a partial Overlord anyway?

However, Thor was just an outsider after all. It was all thanks to David's financial support that he could become this in Wier.

Yet, this situation would not last long.

After all, he had threatened a lot of people's interests by spending money crazily to collect treasures.

Now, nobody knew much about Thor's background, so they all waited and observed.

Someone would surely want to find out who he was.

If Thor showed strength, everyone would sit down to discuss how to allocate resources.

If Thor only had money but no strength, then one could imagine the results.

The group of wild beasts would surely gnaw at him until he had nothing left.

The Spirit Cage was just like the real world.

The wealth one had was linked to one's strength.

Time passed quickly.

Another three months passed in a blink of an eye.

During this time, Thor helped David get 60 thousand lavish points.

In other words, he spent six trillion L Dollars.

David increasingly felt that it was a wise decision for him to take Thor in and bring him to Wier.

After leaving The Spirit Cage, David would also go to find Thor in reality. If he was willing to follow David, then David would let him. If not, then David would give him enough benefits.

David's consistent principle of life was to never treat the people around him badly.

In the morning, David was about to leave with Pebbles in his arms when he saw Thor running over hurriedly.

"Master, are you free? I need to see you for something," Thor said respectfully.

"Come with me."

David replied and turned around.

After a while, David and Thor sat at the table in the guest room.

Beanie brought a pot of tea and poured it for them.

As for Pebbles, apart from being interested in treasures of heaven and earth, she was not interested in anything else.

In three months, the little girl had grown up a lot.

She was not like the troublemaker she was before.

Sometimes, she would just sit on the roof blankly, looking at the sky.

David knew that the little girl must have remembered something from the past.

Maybe, when she recalled everything, it would be time for the two to separate.

David was already prepared for this.

Although he was reluctant, this was what he should do.

David had already planned in his mind when he would send the little girl home and when he would leave The Spirit Cage.

He probably would not be in The Spirit Cage for long in the future.

At most, he would just come in occasionally.

After all, he still had to continue earning lavish points.

If he missed Pebbles, he could go look for her in Leila after the crisis of the Feather family was completely resolved and he returned to Earth.

A lot of times, David could not help but wonder what the little girl looked like in the real world.

Would it be like when they first met?

Or would she grow according to her soul power?
