The Secret Heir Return To Wealth And Love Chapter 1629

Chapter 1629

After leaving the restaurant, Rosalynn went straight home, and had Felix deliver the documents to the school principal.

The principal originally thought that this issue would be a headache for a while, but he didn't expect Rosalynn to solve it so quickly.

He flipped through all the authorization documents in disbelief. Among them, there was even a document where Curtis agreed to change Alison's name.

"Thank you so much!" The principal was so touched that his eyes turned red and he kept nodding his head.

Felix looked at him helplessly.

He had seen the principal a few times at parent-teacher meetings.

Honestly, the principal seemed a bit too emotional.

As he carefully put away the documents, the principal knew that Felix was Molly's father, and began to praise Molly.

"Molly has improved a lot. Although she didn't rank last in her first exam after enrollment, her score wasn't good. But in the last exam, she became the first in the entire grade, and her grade was a lot higher than the second place. Honestly, she may lead even more by the end of the term."

"She's a bit arrogant, I'll talk to her when we get home."

Felix knew that teachers all hoped that students would remain humble.

“Ah, you can’t hit Molly’s confidence like this. She’s not arrogant, how should I put it, Molly is very tenacious!”

Molly was quiet at school, trying to avoid interacting with people as much as possible.

Surprisingly, no students disliked her for this.

Not long ago, he even saw a few senior boys running over to talk to her.

He had already told Rosalynn about this.

Rosalynn had previously told him that if students show too much interests to their children and the situation was serious, he could directly contact her.

Although the principal didn’t quite understand why he needed to do this, he still cooperated fully.

Felix walked with a spring in his step because Molly was praised

His daughter was excellent at school, and he was so proud!

After Felix left, the principal started looking in the dictionary

Since Alison was no long with her irresponsible parents anymore, he wanted to help Alison choose a more meaningful name to welcome her bright future!

When Rosalynn got home, Wayne was doing physical rehabilitation

Rehabilitation is never an easy thing.

She took a sneak peek.

Wayne’s face was pale, and his forehead was covered in fine sweat. Each muscle stretch brought unimaginable pain.

Rosalynn watched with a throbbing heart.

No wonder he had previously said that he didn’t want Ivy and Cory to accompany him during rehabilitation.

It was painful enough for her to watch, let alone Cory and Ivy. They would definitely be very upset.

Rosalynn hesitated for a moment and didn't go in

When the rehabilitation was almost over and he was no longer in so much pain, Rosalynn knocked on the door.

The rehabilitation doctor briefly explained Wayne's condition and the plan for the future to Rosalynn.

His condition was not very good, but not too bad either. With long-term rehabilitation, he might recover to 90%

After the rehabilitation doctor left, Rosalynn sat across from Wayne, gently stroked his cheek, and asked, "Are you in pain?"

Wayne shook his head and replied, "No, don't worry"

Rosalynn didn't expose Wayne's lie, and changed the subject, 'Everything about Alison has been handled

Chapter 1630

"Are we gonna handle this stuff this afternoon?"

"Yep." Rosalynn nodded, "I've got all the permits and paperwork sorted out, even prepared a name change document."

"You always think of everything, don't ya?" Wayne looked at her with admiration.

Rosalynn chuckled, "do you want to rest in the room?"

Wayne shook his head, "Calvin said Ivy should be out picking fruits around this time."

"She's not studying?"

"She said she can spare an hour. Wayne laughed.

Ivy has this soft and cute vibe. When she goes all serious explaining logic, it's just so adorable.

“Alright then, let’s head over there. We can consider it a stroll.”

Hand in hand, Rosalynn and Wayne started walking towards the orchard,

Mike was scolding Max, clearly ticked off, while holding his leash.

Max kept resisting, turning his head, totally ignoring Mike.

“What happened?” Rosalynn asked.

Max knew, at home, Rosalynn was the boss. Hearing her voice, his ears perked up, he lay down on the ground, guilt written all over his face.

“He was barking like crazy when I was seeing the rehab doctor out!” Mike replied, “I told him, the guy’s a doctor, but Max thought he was giving Mr. Silverman a hard time! Man, was he mad!”

Rosalynn laughed and beckoned Max, “Max, come here.”

Max trudged over with his hefty body, glancing at Wayne, as if asking for help.

Wayne was both amused and helpless.

“I won’t scold you this time, but if you do it again, I’ll cut your treats and Wayne won’t play with you.”

Max seemed not to understand, but his tail started wagging

At the orchard, Paige, heavily pregnant, was fanning herself with a little fan, two baskets of peaches and apples by her feet.

“Paige, it’s so hot today, are you feeling alright?” Rosalynn asked, helpless and worried.

The weather had taken a sudden turn for the hot, and pregnant women are usually more sensitive to heat.

“I’m fine.” Paige smiled, “My baby is being good.”

“Daddy, mommy!”

Ivy, in her dungarees, a leaf somehow stuck in her hair, came running over from the fruit tree.

“Look at you, all sweaty” Rosalynn took off the leaf from her hair.

“Hehe.” Ivy giggled, then turned to Wayne, “You done with your rehab? Feeling better?”

“Yeah, a bit!” Wayne replied.

“Great! Look at my bountiful peaches! Laura said she can make peach cake tonight!” Ivy was thrilled.

Max was equally excited, chasing his own tail.

“You can have some too!” Ivy generously announced.

Max was even happier.

“Look at Ivy, she’s got everything and everyone in the house sorted out, even the dog!” Paige didn’t hold back her praises.

“Need any help? Wayne offered

“Can daddy help me? Ivy was a bit worried.

“Of course Rosalynn said.
