The Secret Heir Return To Wealth And Love Chapter 1151

Chapter 1151

She left again, huh?

She doesn't believe him, doesn't want him anymore?

Thoughts like these were racing through Wayne's mind.

His heart felt so tight it hurt.

He walked up to the front door, stood there for a long while, then unlocked the door with his fingerprint.

All he saw was darkness

No matter how late he came home before, Rosalynn would always leave a light on for him.

His heart ached as if he were suffocating

Then

"Wayne?"

Wayne jumped.

Then he walked forward in panic, grabbed the person in the darkness, and held on tightly.

"You didn't leave." He looked like he had narrowly escaped disaster.

"Where would I go?" Rosalynn paused, then realized, "You thought I left?"

"Mhmm." Wayne's voice was shaky.

Then he held her tighter.

Rosalynn laughed helplessly, "You're squeezing me too tight, I can hardly breathe."

"Why didn't you leave a light on for me?" Wayne sounded hurt.

did. The light just went out." Rosalynn waved her hand, "I fell asleep on the couch, too lazy to move, figured I'd get someone to fix it tomorrow. I didn't expect you to come back"

"Why were you sleeping on the couch?" Wayne asked, "Were you waiting for me?"

Wayne buried his face in her neck

"How did you get back?" Rosalynn asked.

"I found an airport that could fly to other places, flew to a nearby country, then took a connecting flight back." Wayne answered.

"Didn't tell you not to rush?" Rosalynn sounded exasperated, "You're so picky, airport food definitely wouldn't suit your tastes. You probably didn't eat much on the way back, did you?"

"Mmm" Wayne nodded.

On his way back, all he could think about was panic.

"I'll make you some steak" Rosalynn patted his back.

After a while, the kitchen light turned on

Rosalynn cooked the steak and brought it to the counter.

Dig in"

Wayne was looking straight at her

He extended his hand, drew Rosalynn in, and kissed her

Before he paused and started to eat, he gave her many kisses

As she sat across from him. Rosalynn kept him company.

Sky and Cury wanted for you for a long time. They couldn't stay up past ten and went to sleep. They'll be thrilled to see you tomorrow"

As he ate Wayne asked. 'Aren't you going to ask me about Olivia?"

Leta after your Rosalyn frowned slightly. Don't talk about things that are hard to digest during mealtime."

Chapter 1152

After eating, Rosalynn urged Wayne to take a shower. After he did, when he tried to get a bit intimate with Rosalynn, she grabbed his chin and said, "I think the baby Olivia is carrying might actually be yours."

Wayne's good mood evaporated instantly. "I thought you were waiting for me, cooking for me, even kissed me.... I thought you believed me!"

Wayne was so mad his eyes were red. He got up to leave, but Rosalynn pulled him back. "I do! I do believe you!"

"If you believe me, why would you say something like that? I've never touched Olivia, not even once!" Wayne said, frowning.

“Why so touchy?” Rosalynn hooked her arm around his neck, tilted her head back and gave Wayne a few kisses on his lips. “You’re a big man, why are you acting like a child? You didn’t even let me finish talking”

Rosalynn soothed Wayne and he quickly calmed down

Although Wayne still looked worried, he was clearly less angry. He waited for Rosalynn to finish talking

“Do you remember what Old Mrs. Silverman and Maddie did to ensure the continuation of the Silverman family when you were in a coma after the car accident?”

Wayne said expressionlessly. “You already figured it out, huh...”

Rosalynn smacked the bed hard, “I knew it!”

Seeing Rosalynn’s reaction, Wayne finally relaxed.

“I told you, don’t worry, nothing you’re imagining will happen” Wayne said, leaning in to kiss Rosalynn.

Rosalynn was a little perplexed at this point. Given what Wayne just mentioned, he ought to be aware of Olivia’s conception process. What made him look so at ease, though?

“Darling, you don’t intend to murder Olivia, do you? I considered it, but I decided against it. If something were to happen to her right away, we’d be the first to be suspected”
“Rosalynn avoided Wayne’s kiss and hurriedly made an effort to stop him.

Wayne started to laugh, “You even considered killing Olivia? Darling, you’re really ruthless...”

“I’m talking to you about a serious matter, not flirting with you. Get serious!” Rosalynn pinched his cheek. “If she actually does a DNA test, your reputation will be ruined. What will our children think of you?”

“Let her do it. No matter whose kid it is, it can’t possibly be mine.” Wayne held Rosalynn’s waist, pulling her into his arms, “Let’s not talk about her anymore”

Rosalynn felt a little perplexed. What did Wayne mean when he spoke?

Before she could inquire, a torrent of kisses from Wayne rained down.

Wayne’s late-night return to the nation reached the trending list the next morning

Wayne filed a formal lawsuit against Olivia at 8:00 am through his attorney. The information spread widely.

Wayne himself went on Twitter, retweeted the news, and added a comment: 1 want to reiterate, there has never been anything intimate between Olivia and me. I'm ready to cooperate with a paternity test at any time."

The comments section instantly blew up.

Rosalynn was listless. Wayne brought breakfast to her room.

"Do I need to do anything?"

She lay in bed absent-mindedly, lifting her hand, which Wayne instinctively took and held.

"No need!" Wayne held her hand and gently kissed it

Just at that moment

The memories that had been disrupted by Paige's sudden arrival yesterday came back to Rosalynn.

She slowly opened her eyes, "Wayne, you drowned in the lake in the park and were saved by Olivia, right? Do you remember which park it was? Was it day or night?"

"Central Park, at night. Why?"

Are you sure it was Central Park? It was close to autumn, right? The place where you fell into the water was there a very large banyan tree in front of you? Rosalynn gestured.

Chapter 1153

Rosalynn remembered it.

Every year since they left L City, her grandma would go back alone on this particular day. She missed her husband, Rosalynn's grandpa.

On that day, Rosalynn was not in the best mood.

Instead of going to her after-school tutoring class, she went to a nearby park.

She loved this park..

It reminded her of the one near their home in L. City.

Back in the day, she would always accompany her grandpa on his daily walks and chess games in the park.

At the park entrance, she bought some snacks from the vendors and wandered around before heading to the lakeside.

She located a peaceful area by the lake and took a seat on a bench beneath a large banyan tree.

She stayed there till dusk fell and the streetlights turned on, listening to the most recent song by her idol.

After looking at the time, she concluded that her grandmother would soon be home and that she should go as well.

She heard a splash as she was going to walk away.

She noticed someone struggling in the water as she turned to face the sound.

Rosalynn had a young vigor at the time.

She dropped her bag and dived into the lake to help the victim without a second thought.

She was able to get him ashore with some effort.

She saw he wasn't moving when they reached dry land.

She gave mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and CPR

He eventually came to after coughing up some water.

A mob had formed around them at that point.

Sitting on the ground, under the dim light, Rosalynn could feel the man she just saved watching her.

"No need to thank me," she said after catching her breath, thinking of her grandma, she quickly told the onlookers, "Can someone call an ambulance? I've got stuff to deal with, gotta bounce."

Her grandma's demeanor has undergone a significant change following the deaths of her mother and grandfather.

She was aware of Rosalynn's compassion and desire to assist people.

But she constantly underlined that while it's admirable to assist others, one shouldn't endanger oneself.

Her granny would be furious if she admitted to jumping into a lake at night to save someone.

Rosalynn hastily picked up her fuggage and left the park after thinking that “I got home that day, just tossed my wet clothes into the washing machine when my grandma came home. It was a close call, really dodged a bullet there!” Rosalynn finished recounting her rescue story.

Wayne looked pale as a ghost.

“You saved me?” his voice was shaky.

For Wayne, that day was monumental.

He wouldn't forget it.

“We should be more careful, maybe ask around the park, see if anyone else fell into the lake that day? Rosalynn suggested in a serious tone

What a coincidence

So, it was she who saved Wayne.

Chapter 1154

“Stop asking!” Wayne held Rosalynn's hand tightly. “I vaguely remembered your face, so I mistook you for Olivial Rosa, when you first saw me, did I look somewhat familiar?”

Rosalynn shook her head.

“The guy I saved was pretty frail, and it was dark. I was so focused on rescuing him that I didn't get a good look at his face.”

By the time she met Wayne again, he was all dressed up in a suit.

“How could this happen...”

Wayne's brows wrinkled, and his breathing was a little labored.

Rosa was his primary objective, however he had made such a lengthy detour.

Rosa endured such unjust misery, and he nearly missed her!

Wayne felt a cold come over him as he clutched Rosalynn closely.

“Thank God I woke up after that accident. Heaven must have decided to punish me since it saw how foolish I was!”

A little mishap that Maddie had planned evolved into a catastrophic one that nearly killed him and put him in a coma Everything was predetermined.

Without the mishap, Olivia wouldn't have left him for a more promising marriage.

Perhaps in a couple more years, he would have married her....

Then he would have completely missed Rosa.

"Stop talking nonsense" Rosalynn patted him. "Why did you go to that distant park? It's far from the Silverman Mansion." Rosalynn asked with confusion.

"I was asked to go there by someone." Wayne dipped his chin. "I have a relative on my grandmother's side that I get along with very well. To discuss anything, he requested me to meet him there. But when I arrived, my cousin wasn't there. Someone put something drugged over my mouth and nose. They shoved me away as the medicine started to work."

Rosalynn furrowed her brows, it seemed that young Wayne... was very gullible.

"What happened after that? How was it resolved?" Rosalynn asked.

She had never heard of any cousin when she was with Wayne,

"I didn't publicize it when I got back, nor did I confront my cousin Wayne answered.

Wayne continued, "But two years later, I bankrupted his company, and he himself was deep in debt, being pursued by creditors every day. You know what? He still hasn't figured out it was me. He even came to me for help, hoping I could help him pay off his debts_"

"But why did he want to harm you?" Rosalynn wondered Hearing Rosalynn's question, Wayne laughed.

Even now, the reason was still baffling and absurd to him.

That day, his cousin came to borrow money.

When he found out everything, he became furious

"You did not pass away, did you? You survived the trip back, did not you? While doing all of this behind my back, you did not say anything at the time. Wayne, you are the worst."

"Why did I do that? Which do you believe? Even though I have always outperformed you academically and socially, you managed to get everything wanted. I wanted you dead because I detest this unfairness! Why can not I be one of the many people that wants you dead, there are so many of them?? "Jealousy really does make people ugly" Rosalynn concluded.

“That’s only part of the reason, there’s another reason he didn’t mention” Wayne sneered. “The Silverman family only has one child, me. At the time, my grandmother was very fond of that cousin. If I died, he would have been her heir

“So, when you took control of the Silverman Group, you kicked out everyone from the Stein family?”

“Mm-hmm”

Wayne buried his head in Rosalynn’s neck.

“I don’t want to talk about this anymore. Right now I just want Olivia to drop dead!

Chapter 1155

Rosalynn gently patted Wayne’s back

“So, am I still a stand-in for Olivia?”

“Absolutely not!” Wayne immediately let go of Rosalynn and answered seriously. “She was the one who took your place, if she had not appeared, I would have kept looking until I found you.”

She wouldn’t have been as anxious and nervous when her grandma fell ill if he had discovered her. He might have provided her with solutions to every issue.

Wayne’s anger at Olivia grew as he considered this.

Rosalynn turned to face Wayne before laughing out loud.

She leaned in and kissed him on the lips after that.

Wayne was furious and was caught aback by the kiss, asking, “What’s up?”

“I’m happy, Rosalynn laughed, “Turns out you were looking for me from the very beginning. Hmm.... I like that feeling.”

“Sweetheart, I messed up... I should have double-checked.”

Wayne thought about the last decade of mistaken identity,

And how he hurt Rosalynn’s heart over and over again because of his gratitude to Olivia for saving his life.

“Enough with the apologies, let’s go sort things out,” Rosalynn gently stroked Wayne’s cheek and said slowly. “Alright!

Wayne never contacted Olivia, which made her extremely anxious

Seeing Wayne's new announcement, Olivia was completely pissed off.

"Go do the DNA test! Raines instigated from the side, "You've been more than generous, giving them their dignity!"

"Done!" Olivia clenched her fists.

Wayne, you sure about this?

Well, I'll wait and see how you cope when the DNA test results come out!

Soon later, in a tweet, Olivia included Wayne as a tag.

O.J.: @Wayne You choose a testing location, I choose a testing location, and let the internet users choose a testing location at 3 PM. This issue has to be rectified!

There were polls for numerous reputable testing facilities along with the post

I'm team Whaley this time, according to a remark underneath that said, "Ms. Whaley seems pretty confident."

I won't let you down, Olivia retorted.

"Ms. Whaley, do you admit that you were the third party between Secretary Tesdal and Mr. Silverman?"

Olivia replied: I don't. Do you admit that Rosalynn is my substitute?

This reply stirred up a heated discussion among netizens.

Even though there were many rumors, since Wayne had never admitted to Olivia, the substitute thing had always been a legend.

Now that Olivia directly named names, it was a confirmation of the long-standing substitute rumor.

Netizens were buzzing.

"Wow, Ms. Whaley is really brave this time!"
