Chapter 61

Stefan pushed open the door and saw that Micah, who was under the influence of the drug, was pinning Charlotte beneath him and trying to have sex with her.

“Stefan, help me!”

As of seeing a lifeline, Charlotte screamed at Stefan for help.

Although Micah was her boyfriend and they had had sex a long time ago, this was a situation she just could not accept. It was too humiliating!

Stefan’s eyes coldly swept across the two on the floor and took away what belonged to Renee on the table.

“Serve you right!”

He left without looking back after saying those words.

His cousin was spoiled to the point of being too lawless. It was time for her to taste some pain.

When he got downstairs and saw Renee waiting at the door, he frowned. “We are not divorced yet. You are still the mistress of this villa.”

“No, thank you!”

Renee took the things in the man’s hand and left without bothering to say goodbye.

It was already late at night at the moment.

Renee stood outside the villa and tried to call for a cab, but because it was too far from the main city, no driver was willing to take the order.

Not long after, Stefan pulled up in front of her in his silver Bugatti Veyron. His handsome face was cold.

“Get in!” It was not an invitation, but an order.

Renee hesitated for a while but did not refuse. She pulled open the passenger door and got into the car. (1)

But when she saw the things on the seat, she was a little surprised.

“Where did you get this?”

She saw an amber pendant on the car bench. It was identical to the one she had found in the graveyard this morning.

+15 BONUS

A bold guess came up in her mind. Could he be the one who visited her parents’ grave today and dropped the amber pendant? But it couldn’t be. Why would he buy two identical pendants? Was it just a coincidence?

“Your pendant...” “Don’t touch

my stuff!”

He sounded hostile and snatched away the pendant coldly. “Tsk!”

She was a bit disappointed, thinking that it should be a coincidence and she must have been overthinking.

Stefan did not even care about her, so how could he remember the death anniversary of her parents and bother to send flowers to pay respects?

It was a love me, love my dog kind of thing. What was she expecting?

She looked out the car window, hoping to get home as soon as possible.

However, she immediately discovered that the route he took was not right.

“This was not the way back to Sunup Residence. Where are you going?”

Stefan did not answer. His eyes were focused in front. “You’ll know when you get there.”

She furrowed her brows and said, “Stop the car. I’m getting off.”

If it were not for the difficulty of getting a cab in that area and he so happened to live in the same neighborhood as her, she would not have considered getting into the car!

But now, the road was unfamiliar and she did not dare to get into a stranger’s car.

“Sit tight!”

He pressed the lock button and stepped on the gas pedal harder, and the car picked up speed immediately, overtaking several cars in a row.

“What are you doing? Don’t drag me with you if you want to die. Slow down!”

Renee was so scared that her back was pressed against the seat and her fingers were gripping the armrest.

It was not that she was a coward. She had learned car racing back then and experienced a higher speed than this. It was just that she was worried about the babies in her belly being scared.

“We are almost there. Don’t worry. I’m not going to sell you!”

Stefan’s handsome face was expressionless when he continued to speed up.

It took about ten minutes for the car to pull up at Paris La Nuit Club.

Renee knew about this club. It was very high class and had a strict membership system. Those who were members were either the rich or the aristocrats of Beach City.

This was weird. Why would this man bring her to such a place all of a sudden?

“Get out of the car.”

Stefan parked the car and unlocked the passenger door.

Renee, seeing that she was free, hurriedly opened the door to run away.

But Stefan grabbed her wrist with his big palm and said in an absolutely assertive tone, “You have to accompany me to this meeting today.”

“We are in the middle of a divorce. Why should I play along with you? What’s in it for me?”

Renee, who was no longer her past self who was at his beck and call, said proudly, “My appearance fee is very high, you know?” “One hundred thousand per minute.”

“Deal!”

She replied immediately with a bright smile, “You are indeed generous, Mr. Hunt!”

Thinking about her past self, she really found that she was very silly to be willing to be his puppet who was ready to accompany him to any occasion at any time without getting anything in compensation.

Even reckoning made long friends, what’s more with husbands and wives!

The two were led by the waiter to the room on the highest floor of the club called the “Night Banquet.”

This room was the classiest in the entire club and was only used to receive their most Sunguished members.

Renee heard cheerful voices and laughter from afar.

The moment Stefan entered the room, he suddenly pressed the pause button, and all the voices stopped awkwardly.

A tall, handsome man rushed over, his eyes widening. “Holy sh*t, Stef, am I dreaming?”

Are you really here?”

Chapter 62

The one speaking was a childhood friend of Stefan’s, called Xavier.

When Xavier saw Renee who was standing next to him, he let out an even more exaggerated yell. “Oh my god, come and see this. Not only did Stef come, but he also brought his wife with him. Will wonders never cease? What a rare occasion!”

Stefan’s attractive face remained unfazed as he strode into the room and said in a meaningful tone, “Since I received the invitation, I naturally had to come.”

Renee was still confused about the situation, so she acted like a good and dignified wife and followed the man obediently. Since she had received a fee of a hundred thousand dollars per minute, she naturally had to play her role as his puppet well.

The interior of the room was extravagantly luxurious. It was spacious and lavish, with lights glimmering and glinting, as if they had entered a palace.

A few couples were seated on the couch. She could tell from their appearances that they were children of the rich. The ones who stood out the most were the couple sitting in the middle.

The man was charming, with rimless glasses resting on his high nose bridge. He looked genteel and elegant, but his pair of narrow, deep eyes seemed to be able to control everything.

Such aura must come from a family with a rich and powerful background.

For instance, the silver watch on his wrist was a limited edition Rolex. It was the only one in the world, worth more than ten million!

The woman who was intimately next to him also looked unique. Her near-perfect face was not only beautiful but sophisticated.

She had a look that was rare even among the ladies of the high society.

In short, they were clearly a couple and were a good match for each other when sitting together. They were equally stunned when Stefan came in.

"Stef, you..."

The woman stood up directly. Her eyes were wide open, flowing with love as if she had a lot of things to say.

the contrary, the man was calmer and more relaxed. He said gently, "You are finally not angry and are willing to come."

Stefan put his hands into his pockets and looked at the two condescendingly. His deep voice was mixed with a hint of helplessness as he smiled faintly and said, "Why else would it be?"

Renee's eyes shuttled back and forth between them, and then she immediately came to a conclusion, "The relationship of these three is not simple. There must be something fishy going on here!"

The atmosphere within the room was inexplicably awkward. Everyone was tensed and cautious, no one dared to say a word.

Xavier took two glasses of wine and walked airily to Stefan and the man on the sofa to give them each a glass of wine, and said cheerfully, "Let's not talk about it. It's been four years and now that the golden trio is finally reunited, so we must drink till we drop! I am the youngest here and I was worried for the two of you so much, my bros, so I shall be the one who gives the first toast!"

The man on the couch stood up and clinked Stefan's and Xavier's glasses with his wine glass, and sighed rather emotionally, "Indeed, it's been four years, and we are finally reunited!" And he tilted his head and emptied his glass.

Then, his attention fell on Renee beside Stefan and he said gently, "So, you are the girl that Stef was forced to marry four years ago, and you are... Renee?"

"Yes, I am. Nice to meet you."

Renee said gently, and smiled without showing her teeth.

It was what she had to do for the sake of the money she would make per minute, so she had to set up the best stage for the high and mighty Mr. Hunt.

"Hello, I am Christopher Jacobs. I'm very sorry for not attending your wedding four years ago. As an apology, I'll drink three shots later."

"It's okay, Christopher. Stefan has been telling me about you for the past few years, saying that you're great and that he misses you and has wanted to get together with you for a long time."

Stefan was dumbfounded.

'Can you not overdo it? When did I ever mention Christopher in front of you?' "Really?"

Christopher's eyes lit up, and he looked at Renee with more interest. "You are indeed as gentle and docile as they said. You are a lucky man, Stef!"

Hmph! How could she be not gentle and docile when she is paid a hundred thousand per minute?'

Xavier was discontented and refuted, "What's so lucky about that? She's just a tasteless, down- on-her-luck girl. How is she a good match for Stefan? And Stefan, even if you were dumped, you couldn't just give up and casually marry such a boring woman!" "Dumped?"

Renee suddenly turned extremely domineering. She swept her eyes around the room and asked loudly, "Who dares to dump my husband? Is she here?"

The Untouchable Ex Wife by Mizuki Sei

Chapter 63

Everyone in the box froze!

No one expected that Renee, who looked gentle and docile, would have this side to her. "My husband is such a perfect man. Let's see who's blind enough to dump him!"

When she said this, she wrapped her arms around Stefan's affectionately, expressing her desire to defend her husband. But of course, it was mere pretense.

Regardless, out of curiosity, she wanted to confirm if her guess was correct.

Sure enough, the elegant lady sitting on the couch lowered her head sheepishly.

Christopher's expression was also somewhat stiff.

Xavier seemed to care a lot about the woman and immediately retorted surly, "It doesn't matter who dumped her. Since she is Stefan's first love, she must be a hundred times more perfect than you in every way! It is important to know one's weaknesses. You and Stefan are not even from the same world and you can't see eye to eye. Why did you still marry him, knowing that? You're doing him and yourself a disservice!"

Christopher's soft gaze turned slightly cold. His tone was light but very oppressive. "Xavier, enough!" Xavier continued on like a kid instead, "Well, am I not right? This girl can't compare to Cecy."

Cecy?

Renee raised her eyebrows slightly, guessing that this beauty on the sofa should be Cecy. "Xavier, stop joking around. Don't scare our new friend."

Cecilia finally raised her head and waved graciously at Stefan and Renee, with a warm and gentle smile on her face. "Stef, it's been a long time."

"Indeed, long time no see."

tef, are you still angry with Christopher and me?" She knitted her eyebrows slightly and revealed a sad face. "It's all my fault. It was me who was clueless, not knowing how to tell friendship and love apart that I wavered between the two of you and caused a rift between the two of you. I'm so glad you're here today!" "Let's not talk about the past anymore."

+15 BONUS

Unlike the woman's excitement, Stefan's attitude was lukewarm. There were not many emotional changes on his charming face. This feeling of estrangement was as if the two were only acquaintances who had not even spoken a few words.

Xavier could not stand it and said loudly, "Man, I really respect you guys. It's just a relationship that has ended. There is no need to be like this, right? We are friends who grew up together. Let's not make it so awkward just because of the past."

The crowd echoed.

"Yeah, we are all friends. Now that Mr. Jacobs and Cecilia's relationship is stable, and Mr. Hunt and his wife also seem to love each other, it's a happy ending for all!"

Therefore, under the coaxing of everyone, Stefan and Renee sat down next to Christopher and Cecilia. Gee, what a scene!

Renee looked at Stefan on her right and then at Cecilia on her left. What was with the excitement she was feeling?

His first love had dumped him and got together with his best friend? And gosh, as the victim, he was actually forced to come here to reconcile with them? Weren't they just bullying him? Comment by Lunaelle: please rephrase

It was unexpected that Mr. Hunt, who usually looked cold, ruthless, and bold, actually had such a heartbreaking past.

No wonder he insisted on dragging her to this place unprecedentedly and even offered her such a high fee to act. If he were to come alone, how devastated would he be?

Renee suddenly had a feeling that she was entrusted with a great responsibility as his actress, and the burden on her shoulders had become heavier! Comment by Lunaelle: awkward. please rephrase

'Don't worry, ex-husband-to-be, since we are in the same camp of those who were cheated, I'll help you win the game tonight.' Comment by _Lunaelle: of those who cheated or of those who were cheated??

Thinking about this, she smiled and looked at Cecilia, and said, "Miss Smith, I must thank you tonight." Cecilia was slightly taken aback, "What do you mean by that?"

"Thanks for not realizing how wonderful my husband is, and leaving him. That gave me an opportunity to be with him. You have no idea how perfect my husband is. He is so handsome and such a family man. Not only does he give me all his money, but he is also a good cook. I really am very happy!"

When she said this, she lovingly leaned on Stefan's shoulder.

Stefan, on the other hand, sat there stiffly, with a mixed expression. He did not expect this woman to go so far, that he did not know whether he should be angry or laugh.

He leaned and moved his mouth close to her ear, as if displaying their affection, but in fact, he was saying, "Take it easy. Your acting is too fake."

Cecilia clenched her fingers a little when she saw this and failed to hide her disappointment.

Seeing this, Xavier challenged Renee. "Of course, you have to thank Cecy. Do you know who she is? If she had not given way, when will it be your turn?"

"Oh? Who is she?"

Renee was really curious about it.

Chapter 64

"Hah, you'll be shocked when you find out!"

Xavier said proudly, "Do you know Petersville University? Cecy studied astrophysics there, their most difficult subject. When she presented her research paper, she was even awarded the first prize in the Starburst Competition!"

"Wow, you're really an outstanding student, Cecy!"

The crowd cast adoring glances at Cecilia. It was not that their reaction was exaggerated, but in fact, it was because it was very rare for those who were born with a silver spoon to excel in academics, so an astrophysics top student was a feat to them.

Cecilia smiled lightly and said softly, "It's not that I am good, it's just that I happened to pick the topic that the judges liked." "Don't be so humble. You should just admit it if you are good!"

Xavier put his hands into his pockets and looked at Renee pompously, and asked, "Do you know what astrophysics is? I guess a housewife like you, who never leaves the house without her husband, must have never heard of it."

Renee laughed and shook the orange juice in her glass, ignoring his insult.

She looked at Cecilia and asked tentatively, "Is your award-winning paper "The King of the Dome of the Sky – On the 'Love and Death' of the Solar Emissive Layer and the Troposphere"?"

The smile in Cecilia's eyes disappeared and she looked at Renee with some surprise. "That's the one. Could it be that you've read it and also studied astrophysics?"

"Hahaha, what a joke!" said Xavier disdainfully, "She's a housewife who reads recipes. How could she possibly understand such an advanced academic paper?"

At this moment, Stefan, who had been silent, said nonchalantly,

"Of course, she can read it." The crowd's eyes widened in astonishment.

Stefan unhurriedly took a sip of wine and said expressionlessly, "Because she is one of the five anonymous judges of the Starburst Competition."

"What?!"

They shouted in shock and their eyes nearly popped out of their sockets.

Cecilia found it even more incredulous. "Could it be that you are the most mysterious judge of the MISSC contest?" "It's all in the past. There's nothing to brag about."

Renee smiled awkwardly while glancing at Stefan.

She had not revealed this hidden identity to the public, so how did this guy know about it?

"Coincidentally, my wife is also a top student who studied electromagnetic waves," said Stefan while raising his eyebrows and smiling faintly, "Anyway, it is not much use, it is just that it's always good to have more skills."

Christopher looked at Renee with eyes full of admiration.

He knew that Stefan would not have simply married a useless woman. Cecilia lowered her head, a little frustrated.

No matter where and when, she was always the best and the one in the limelight.

She was very proud of her identity as a top student, but in front of Renee, who was a judge, it was not worth mentioning. Xavier had wanted to support Cecilia, but now he was making her look bad.

He frowned and thought for a while, and then said, "It's not a big deal if you are only good at your study, but Cecy is an all-rounder, which is much better than you, a nerd. If you beat her in this category, I will kneel before you!"

Renee was speechless.

'Hey, is he going to stop? Why must he keep pestering me?'

Xavier acted like a kid and challenged Renee. "Do you dare to take out your phone?"

The Untouchable Ex Wife by Mizuki Sei

Chapter 65

"Why would I not dare to?"

Although Renee did not know what trick he was pulling this time, she did not chicken out and took out her cell phone confidently.

Perhaps she wanted to compete with Cecilia deep down.

After all, Cecilia was Stefan's first love whom he could not get over, so she was curious about what was so memorable about this woman.

"Did you download Apex Heroes on your phone?"

When Xavier said this, he cast an even more adoring gaze at Cecilia and said, "Cecy is not only a top student, but she was also an advanced game player. Apex Heroes is the most popular game worldwide and she is the third-best player in Aeos!"

Renee smiled and said calmly, "Is she really that good? Then let's stop wasting time and play a match."

"You know how to play games?"

Xavier was a little surprised.

It seemed like this demure wife was not as boring as he had thought!

Anyway, he guessed that she would only be a rookie who would never beat his Cecy.

After losing the battle just now, Cecilia was eager to have a chance to reclaim her pride and said quickly, "Forget about a match. Let's just have some fun."

So, they logged into the game and started the competition.

They even projected their screen onto the giant LCD screen.

Since there was a huge disparity between them, the crowd was not very excited, expecting to see how Renee would be killed in seconds.

But after three checkpoints, Renee miraculously passed, scoring almost the same as Cecilia!

Seeing that the game was getting more and more intense, Renee's series of moves were getting more and more smooth and comparable to the level of professional players.

Cecilia started to panic. Her forehead was covered in sweat, and her slender fingers were Licking on her phone as fast as they could.

If she did not take the last checkpoint, she would definitely lose, which would humiliate her greatly!

"Spin!"

"Cover!"

"Watch out. The crystal is about to be stolen!"

The crowd held their breath as if they were watching a world-class gaming league.

With the last hit, Renee performed a perfect attack and got the highest score, successfully surpassing Cecilia.

"Impressive!"

"Wow, that was amazing! Please let me join your team!"

The crowd was bursting with excitement. They admired Renee so much that they nearly wanted to kneel before her.

Xavier, who had been sitting on the couch with his legs crossed waiting for her to become the laughing stock, fell straight off the couch. "This is impossible. It's just luck. It must be!"

Renee calmly put down her phone and asked leisurely, "You said that she is the third-best player in Aeos, then do you know who the best player is?"

"Of course!" As a senior enthusiast of the game, he immediately replied, "It's a player with the ID, Everheart_Hunter. Wait a minute... It's a bit similar to your name... Wait, are you Everheart_Hunter?"

She smiled briefly. "That's right. It's me."

Although it was just a simple statement, the room was in an uproar.

Stefan had never played mobile games and had been watching this with a cold face. But when he heard her ID, he frowned and stared at Renee deeply.

"You are Everheart Hunter?"

So, she was the original author of the article with the same name that caused a media sensation?

"So what if I am?"

The man's reaction was confusing. Why had he asked so much when he did not play games?

Stefan stood up and exclaimed, "You are both top students and pros of mobile games. It seems like Stef has found an advanced version of Cecilia, so now I can feel at ease. Cecilia and I will be engaged at the end of next month. I hesitated to tell you at first, but now that you have such a wonderful wife, I think you should have gotten over the past. I hope you and Renee can attend our engagement ceremony!"

"Tsk, he was cuckolded, yet he still has to send his blessing. How cruel they are!"

Renee peeked at Stefan and could not help but sympathize with him.

Stefan's expression was nonchalant. "Don't worry, I'll be there, and I'll give you a big present."

Hearing this, Cecilia's face turned gloomy and she clenched her fists secretly.

On the way back, Renee sat in the passenger seat, peeking at the man from time to time, wanting to say something.

"Is something wrong?" Stefan asked coldly.

Renee finally could not hold it in any longer and said sympathetically, "As someone who has experienced it, I can understand your feeling. Being betrayed by the person you love is not a good feeling. Don't hold it. Cry if you want!"

Stefan had actually gotten over Cecilia a long time ago. His absent-mindedness was due to his attempt to digest the fact that she was Everheart_Hunter.

Since she was so understanding, he decided to tease her.

Stefan slowly pulled the car over, and propped his long arm on the backrest of the passenger seat, looking down at the woman from above. "Yes, I am very sad. Anyway, we are a couple, so how are you going to comfort me?"
