I am a quadrillionaire chapter 2647

The little boy in the carriage was called Zion Quinn. The beautiful middle-aged woman was Leticia Chandler.

They were not mother and son, but aunt and nephew.

Zion was the son of Leticia's twin older sister.

Ten years ago.

Her sister had suddenly returned from her travels with a baby in her arms, which she handed to Leticia.

She told Leticia that the baby was hers and his name was Zion Quinn. He was a prince of the current Great Quinn Empire. She died of serious wounds not long after.

Leticia did not believe it initially.

After all, this would mean it involved the Emperor of the Great Quinn Empire.

How was it possible for her sister to know him?

It was even more difficult to imagine them having a child together.

However, her sister had already died and there was no way to prove if this was true, which was why she soon forgot about it.

Leticia had raised Zion as her own son for all these years, never hiding his true identity from him.

Zion had always been a bright and intelligent child since he was very young.

He learned things quickly, which was a great comfort to Leticia.

It was not too long ago when someone visited Leticia and proved Zion's identity. He really was the prince of the Great Quinn Empire.

The Emperor of the Great Quinn Empire was seriously ill, and it was important that a prince inherit his throne soon.

As the Emperor was quite young and did not have many concubines, he had only a few daughters but no sons.

Under such circumstances, he could only allow his brothers' sons to take over the throne.

However, the Emperor finally remembered that he had a son out there, which was why he ordered his right-hand man to locate Zion via the address in his memory and bring Zion home to inherit the throne.

The Emperor was not supposed to have a son.

Now that he had an illegitimate son popping out of nowhere, it was unacceptable.

This was what led to the assassination attempt on Zion at this moment.

The identity of the people behind the attack was evident. They must be the brothers of the Emperor who were not willing to see Zion return, which was why they had arranged for so many ambushes along the way.

Zion and Leticia continued talking.

While this was going on, something new was happening on the battlefield outside.

The guards who had rushed out discovered each hidden enemy shooting arrows from the forest and killed them, which helped decrease the stress of Captain Himmel and the others defending the carriages.

The guards were delighted as they felt victory was near.

"Stand your ground, everyone! We've found the hidden enemy and they will be completely annihilated soon. Victory will be ours," Captain Himmel shouted.

He was motivating the guards who were gradually getting exhausted.

In fact, those who had stayed behind were facing the biggest challenge. Almost every one of them was wounded.

They had to ensure the safety of the Madam and the Young Master while facing the rain of ordinary arrows shot at them and the Soul Fracturing Arrows hidden among those arrows.

There were times when they even had to use their bodies as shields.

It would be the end of everything if anything happened to the Madam and the Young Master.

Not only would they be unable to enjoy a life of fortune, but even death might be considered a luxury for them.

Now, they were encouraged by Captain Himmel's words.

Some of the guards, who were at the end of their tether, bit down hard on the tip of their tongues to force themselves into focus. They continued defending the carriages against the arrows raining down on them.

Their energy has been depleted after combating for a long time in this high-stakes battlefield. With their wounds, they were close to falling to the ground.

Suddenly, a Soul Fracturing Arrow shot into one of the guards. The force from it was powerful as the arrow pierced through the guard's body and headed toward the luxury carriage containing the beautiful woman, Leticia Chandler, and the little boy, Zion Quinn.

Captain Himmel was shocked by what he saw.

"Oh no!!!"

He swung his blade immediately without a second thought.

A blade force of about a few meters emerged from the blade and collided with the Soul Fracturing Arrow and the guard's body.
