

Chapter 695 Returning To The Delta Region

Liam waited and waited, but all that came was a strange silence. There was no explosion.

With a frown, he stood up and went to pick up the time bomb he had just thrown away. Damn it! It was just a toy with a timer. It was no threat.

Liam clenched his fists, angry and disappointed by the fact that he had let himself be fooled so easily. This had been a great opportunity for him to kill Rennes and Timothy.

However, the deed was done, and regretting it now was of no use.

Liam looked back at Annie who was still out of it and sighed heavily.

He could vaguely guess that Annie most probably turned out this way because of Jaxtyn.

He had promised to create a medicine for Jaxtyn, but so many things had happened and he hadn't had the time to fulfill his promise.

Now, Liam felt guilty for not keeping his word.

The island which had been bustling up so much lately was now so silent. All the major forces that had been pulled here by the fraud of the rare earth mine either died or fled. All of their strength sapped.

Liam had nothing else to do here. He picked Annie up and walked away.

As the two of them left, Julie walked out of her hiding place in the valley and watched their receding backs with a complicated emotion in her eyes.

So many different feelings and doubts surged within her.

He really came! Did he come for her? Or was he here for the rare earth mine, just like everyone else?

Why did he lie to her all this while?

Why didn't she go down to meet him just now?

Perhaps she was just scared that he wouldn't like the new her.

All sorts of troubling thoughts filled Julie's heart and mind, making her increasingly upset. She wanted to run to him, but she didn't think she was ready. She didn't have the courage to follow Liam and ask him what happened. So she turned around and walked away dejectedly.

At her residence, the old lady looked at her with concern. "What's wrong with you? Are you okay? Are you hurt?"

Julie ignored her sign language, her dull eyes exposing her empty soul.

She had managed to keep her longing for Liam locked up all this time. But now, it was forcing its way out.

In that second, she made up her mind to go to delta region. She wanted to see him. She needed to see him.

She believed that Liam must have come here for her.

She didn't want him to see her current appearance, but her desire to see him was more than that.

Her mind made up, she turned to the old lady. "I want to go to the delta region."

The worried look on the old lady's face deepened. "I know how you feel, but the delta region is a dangerous place, and you are not strong enough. Your survival and safety is not guaranteed."

With a determined look in her eyes, Julie made gestures with her hands. "I understand, but I need to go there. I will be more miserable if I stay here. If it means getting the answers I want, I'm willing to die in the delta region."

Seeing how determined Julie was, the old lady sighed. "Fine. You can go, but I have to go with you."

Julie's brows creased in surprise. "Why?"

The old lady shook her head and made active gestures with her hands. "Your business is my business. I can't just let you go alone to such a dangerous place while I stay safe here."

Julie had only been here for a short time, but the old lady treated her as her granddaughter.

Julie was moved, but she still tried persuading the lady not to go with her.

This was her business and she didn't want to put anyone else in any difficult position, especially not this old lady.

However, the old lady was even more determined to go with her.

After a long back and forth argument, Julie was left with no choice but to compromise.
