

Chapter 701 The Final Wish Of The Old Lady

Upon glimpsing the lifeless body of the old lady, Julie shattered emotionally, tears streaming down her face. Her guilt intensified the ache in her heart.

"Let's return to Sea God Island and give madam a proper burial," Sarai said, her voice icy.

Though Sarai harbored strong resentment toward Julie, she was bound by the old lady's dying wish.

Yet, reluctance filled Julie's heart. She gestured vehemently at Sarai, indicating, "No, she sacrificed herself for me. I have to avenge her!"

Long-buried animosities flared within her. The old lady's death had stoked the embers of her rage.

Sarai's pent-up hatred ignited at these words. She slapped Julie sharply, yelling, "Avenge her? Don't be naive. You'll just get more people killed! If you're so capable, go exact your revenge now! Stop hiding behind others for protection! The man who tried to kill you is part of a criminal syndicate, deeply involved in the black market. If you're so brave, go end him!"

Sea God Island is no place for you!"

Sarai's final words exploded from her in a furious torrent.

After that, she started to drag the old lady's corpse toward the dock, abandoning Julie.

Merchant vessels from the Shipwreck Organization were available to transport them back to Sea God Island.

Julie remained frozen in place, trembling. Sarai's words hit her like an unexpected lightning strike, echoing in her thoughts.

Indeed, she saw herself as lacking strength and capability. How could she go about seeking revenge?

She had always been a burden to others since her arrival in Salem!

On the brink of emotional collapse, Julie felt blood seep from her mouth and heard her own knuckles crack as her fists tightened. One moment, she was weeping uncontrollably. The next, she was laughing hysterically. In the dark alley, her erratic behavior made her appear bizarre.

Eventually, Julie's eyes were filled with a mixture of resolve and insanity. She'd made her choice.

Determined to avenge the old lady's death, she swore

Chapter 701 The Final Wish Of The Old Lady +90 Points at most that if she couldn't, she would join her in the afterlife.

At the dock, the crew of the Shipwreck Organization's merchant vessel had just swapped out seafood for an assortment of vegetables. They were engrossed in the loading process.

Upon seeing Sarai, they were initially puzzled.

They were aware that Sarai and the old lady had journeyed to the delta region, but they'd been told they'd be away for an extended period. Why had Sarai returned so soon?

Then, in an instant, shock enveloped them.

They caught sight of the old lady's lifeless body.

"What's going on, Sarai?"

"Sarai, speak up! What happened to her? Where's Julie?"

Teetering on the edge of emotional breakdown, the members of Shipwreck Organization encircled Sarai, making frantic gestures. Some of the more rash individuals even attempted to address the deaf Sarai directly.

Yet, Sarai offered little explanation. Remembering the old lady's final wish, she sighed and uttered, "We'll discuss this later. First, bring her body aboard."

After issuing the command, Sarai maneuvered through the crowd and, along with the others, escorted

Chapter 701 The Final Wish Of The Old Lady 🎁 +90 Points at most the old lady's body onto the ship. Her eyes hardened with resolve.

She was committed to honoring the old lady's last wish. No matter the cost, she would ensure Julie's safe return to Sea God Island.

Turning around, she set off toward the black market.
She was certain that was where Julie would go.