

Chapter 856 Lemuel's Plot

They agreed to visit the zoo on the second day.

Early the next morning, Harmoni went to the five-star hotel where Trevor was residing. She was going to find out about his identity.

After all, they would be apart soon. This was going to be her last chance. She must take full advantage of it.

"Hello, I'm a friend of Trevor Sanderson. I'm here to pay him a visit. Can you please tell me his room number so I can head there now?"

Wearing a blue dress and pearl earrings, Harmoni was the epitome of elegance. With the way she stood and spoke, she looked noble and graceful.

When the receptionist heard Trevor's name, she nodded and became more respectful.

"This gentleman lives in the presidential suite on the top floor. There's an exclusive elevator on the right side that can take you there."

Presidential suite!

Harmoni was surprised, but she tried to hide her reaction. She once asked someone about it before.

The presidential suite of this hotel was rarely open to the public. Only people who were powerful, influential, and rich were allowed to stay in the suite.

Harmoni was certain that Trevor was far from being a nobody. He probably came from an affluent family. This thought thrilled her.

Trying to suppress her excitement and making sure she kept a straight face, Harmoni said in a calm voice, "Trevor asked me to meet him in his suite today. Could you please help me with it?"

The receptionist hesitated. "There are policies in this hotel..."

"I understand, but that's fine. I'm a friend of Trevor's. I just came here because he requested me to." When the receptionist still made no move, Harmoni smiled warmly. "He's waiting for me."

The receptionist swiped her card and opened the exclusive elevator doors for Harmoni, fearing that she might displease Trevor's friend.

Harmoni bit her lip from squealing triumphantly. She kept her composure as she got into the elevator.

When the doors of the elevator closed, she couldn't help but pump her fist in the air. That wasn't so hard!

She then looked around her surroundings. It was luxuriously decorated—from the intricate carvings to the beautiful, fragrant flowers. It made her feel as though she was stepping into a life of opulence.

"As long as I win Trevor's heart, all of these will belong to me too! Trevor must be destined to be my boyfriend!" Harmoni murmured.

With a ding, the elevator stopped at the top floor of the building.

At that moment, Trevor walked out of the presidential suite. His eyes widened in surprise at the sight of Harmoni standing in the elevator.

When Harmoni laid her eyes on Trevor, she could feel her heart beating wildly in her chest. Her palms started to sweat, and she was feeling a mix of nervousness and excitement.

Still, she took control of her emotions and pretended to be calm and collected. With a small wave, she said, "Hi, Trevor. It's not easy to see you, you know."

After saying that, she looked meaningfully at the door to the presidential suite.

Trevor shook his head lightly, coming to his senses already after getting over his initial shock.

He already guessed what was on the girl's mind.

There was no denying that Harmoni was beautiful. However, he wasn't interested in her.

Harmoni looked reserved and polite, and Trevor did not want to embarrass her by telling her that her actions were so obvious. Besides, she was a huge help during the finals of the tennis mixed doubles.

With a soft smile, he gestured towards the elevator and said, "Let's go. The others have already gathered on the bus. And as for this presidential suite, I won the big prize and got the opportunity to stay in the suite for free. If you like, I can give you a tour once we get back from the zoo."

Harmoni nodded and didn't ask any questions, but her heart was filled with joy.

She didn't believe anything he said at all. She thought that he just lied to her to make her believe that he wasn't that rich.

She turned her back to him, pressed the button to open the elevator doors, and moved to the side to make room for him.

Trevor walked into the elevator, and with a short beeping sound, the elevator began to slowly descend.

Meanwhile, Lemuel hid himself in a corner on the first floor.

When he noticed that the exclusive elevator was moving down, he quickly dialed a phone number and said in a low voice, "Act now! Trevor is coming down!"

After hearing Lemuel's order, the members of the football team sneaked into the generator room. One of them pressed the power switch to stop the elevator.

With a screeching sound signaling a sudden power failure, the exclusive elevator came to an abrupt stop. Trevor and Harmoni had to quickly steady themselves.

Satisfied with what they had done, the members of the football team looked at each other, smiled mischievously, and winked. Then, they ran out of the hotel laughing.

"Here we are! Let's go. It's time to leave!" Lemuel said to the bus driver as he looked at the seats on the bus. "Trevor's not here yet. That man is not punctual. We have to leave now. We can't wait for him forever. If we leave later, we won't have enough time to visit the zoo."