

Chapter 918 A Shocking Plot

Were they discovered?

Trevor was startled for a moment. But then, he came back to his senses.

The sound of the gunshot seemed to be coming from inside the house. It was not aimed at them.

Trevor and Bradly didn't know what was going on, so they quickly hid in the dense bushes aside.

They observed for a while until they saw two men in black carrying a dead body out of the house.

Needless to say, those men in black had killed someone.

The shirt of the dead body was wet with blood. He wore a peaked cap, and his eyes were wide open.

Trevor recognized the dead man. He was the driver pointed out by Aelfric in the surveillance footage of the rental company.

These men in black even killed the driver to shut his mouth.

"Rudolph must have a big plot," Trevor murmured.

The risk of shooting and killing people near Zayden was self-evident.

But Rudolph took such a big risk to kill the driver. This was enough to prove that his ambition was not small.

Fortunately, Trevor had found some clues and the tip of the iceberg of the conspiracy.

"Mr. Sanderson, what shall we do?" Bradley asked in a low voice when he noticed that the two men in black started digging a pit to bury the corpse.

Trevor thought for a while. Then he said in a low voice, "Ask a few people to keep an eye on them secretly. Make sure not to alert them."

He pondered for a moment again and added, "Take guns with you. If you are in danger, protect yourselves and fight back. I have to go back and meet my grandfather with my father. This matter can't delay any longer."

Originally, Trevor and Ronald discussed and planned to expose Rudolph's crime in public during the family gathering. In this way, Rudolph could receive punishment from the family.

But now, the situation was urgent. So Trevor had to inform Elwood in advance.

If they delayed this matter, the situation would change. If they didn't take precautions, it was very likely that Rudolph's plot would succeed.

Trevor quickly returned to the castle of the Sanderson family. He found that Elwood was with Ronald.

At first, Elwood was so happy that he even said jokingly, "Trevor, you've been in Zayden for so long. How come you only come to see me today?"

However, Trevor looked very serious when he took a step forward.

"Grandpa, I have something important to tell you."

He recounted all the details of when the Hidden Assassins attempted to assassinate him in Jork and in the manor in Dreles, as well as the bronze statues he saw.

"This is the inspection results of the statues. The excessive radiation in that warehouse is a threat to humans. We are in danger." As he spoke, Trevor put the report from the professional testing agency on the table.

Ronald also silently took out the other evidence of Rudolph's crime he had collected long ago.

At this moment, Elwood's face darkened. He sat on a chair without saying anything for a long time.

He clenched his thin hands into fists tightly and pounded the table angrily.

"How dare Rudolph!"

Elwood was so angry that he could hardly breathe. He kept silent for a while again, then sighed.

"People are always greedy for money. Rudolph used to be obedient and sensible when he was a child. But he has changed."

He reached out and wiped the corners of his eyes. Then he continued in a hoarse voice, "Actually, Rudolph is not my biological son. He is an orphan I adopted many years ago. At that time, I saw how pitiful, obedient, and well-behaved he was, so I adopted him. I even tried my best to change his surname, so he could be recognized as a member of the Sanderson family. I didn't mind the opposition of the others. I didn't expect... He is so greedy for money that he is going to do such a crazy thing."

Ronald sighed emotionally. "I've told you long ago that Rudolph and his family are ungrateful. But you just turned a deaf ear to me."

Elwood clenched his fists again and said, "I won't tolerate this matter. It's against the family rules to hurt our family. I will send the Shadow Guards to help Bradly keep an eye on Rudolph. No matter what tricks he is going to play, I won't spare him. If he dares to act rashly at the family gathering tomorrow, I won't let him go."

Trevor was stunned for a moment. It was his first time hearing the name.

"Shadow Guards?" he asked in confusion.
