

The Divorced Billionaire Heiress Chapter 2039

Chapter 2039

Nicole has not spoken yet.

Hearing that Tina could not help gnashing her teeth, she released a tempting bait: "I don't have any friends anymore. If you come to accompany me, I will sell you the shares of GH Company that I can get from my divorce."

She knows that Nicole doesn't have a deep friendship with her.

If there is no attraction, how can Nicole come?

Nicole got out of bed and put on clothes while answering the phone, and said politely, "You are too outside, you are all women, I can understand you, really..."

She didn't make too much publicity. She chose to put on a low-key beige long dress, put on a thin coat and went out the door.

When she arrived at Tina's house, the upstart style of local tyrants really made Nicole stunned for a while.

It's just that there was no place for feet in the densely packed house.

She looked closely, and there were piles of cash on the table.

There was also a lot of gold jewelry.

Tina welcomed Nicole in with her eyes wide open, sniffing her nose, and didn't make up for the past two days.

"You're here, just sit down."

Nicole twitched the corners of her mouth, "Is there anything I can help you with?"

Tina sighed: "No, I'll just watch you. After all, in the circle, You are the most that I admire you."

Nicole dared not think it was a compliment. She smiled embarrassingly: "Tina, you've talked about it and decided to get a divorce?"

Tina pursed her lips, went into the bathroom to wash her face, and came out without makeup, "No, he doesn't agree, I plan to sue. "

Nicole: "Oh, I didn't expect you to come."

Tina: "I've been confused for half my life, can't I wake up once? He dared to hit me in the face outside, did he really think I would endure it? Don't worry, I will give you what I promised you. but you can't deliberately lower the price, I'm divorced, and there are many places where money is used."

Nicole raised an eyebrow and nodded understandingly: "Don't worry, it's all women, I won't treat you badly."

Tina went back to the sofa and continued to pack her things: "These are all the cash and jewelry at home, as well as some important contracts and shares. I need to do calculate all."

Her eyebrows were heavy and her face was not good-looking: "I suspect that b*stard. The transfer of property has already begun, half of the property on the book is gone, and the company is also in a state of loss, but there are people in the company who say that the company has been operating normally and there is no loss recently."

Nicole nodded, "You have to find and come up with evidence, otherwise the divorce will be very unfavorable to you."

Tina gritted her teeth angrily: "Of course, but I am afraid that after the divorce, the property will be transferred by him. I have been unable to control the company's affairs these years, of course you can cover the sky with one hand."

Just as she was talking, the doorbell rang.

Nicole looked at her: "Who is it?"

Tina ignored it and continued to lower her head to sort out:

"Who else could it be, that b*stard has been attentive these two days, do you think I will still believe him?"

The doorbell kept ringing.

Nicole was surprised that Zach Gelinis didn't have the keys to his home.

Or rather, Tina quickly changed the lock.

Nicole chatted with her while chatting with Clayton on the mobile phone, without delay.

Tina was busy sweating and took out a few photos from the bedroom.

They were all photos of her and Zach. It can be seen that the two had a good relationship when they were young, and their eyes were full of affection.

It's just that men's eyes have always been deceptive.

She threw it to the ground angrily, with red eyes: "Since he was cheating and I caught him for the first time, the two of us have never taken any pictures. This marriage is a mere formality, and I have given him enough face but how could he bully me like that."

Nicole said nothing.

The doorbell outside continued.

No intention to stop.

Tina angrily ran over and opened the door. "Get out! Waiting for my lawyer to talk to you."

"Wife, I've broken up with people outside, I really can't bear you. I'm wrong, okay. You know, I only have you in my heart. It's all a show, I can't compare with you."

Nicole listened inside, quietly looking at the green plants on the balcony.

Green and dripping, suddenly fluffy and damp, someone took care of it carefully.

Tina usually has a carefree temperament and can do these small things, and he is not less boring on weekdays.

The two people outside continued to shout: "Go away, I'm telling you, I've had enough, I can still find a younger brother to support me if I stop the loss in time, I don't want to spend my life on you."

Zach's tone pleaded humble: "Wife, we have known each other for so many years, and your position in my heart is irreplaceable. We have known each other since junior high school. For so many years, you know how difficult it is for us to go from school uniforms to wedding dresses."

Tina sound gradually disappeared.

Zach struck while the iron was hot: "Wife, you forgot that when you had surgery for appendicitis, I gave up the opportunity to sign with others and ran back to the hospital behind your back. At that time, your family did not agree with us being together. I paid you for the medical bills after I sold my blood. We have been here for so many years. Don't file for divorce lightly. If you are dissatisfied with me, you can beat me and scold me, and I will accept it."

Tina's cries grew louder.

But the next second, she pushed him away suddenly, looking at her indifferently: "I didn't forget, if I hadn't remembered the past feelings, do you think I would endure it now? But after so many years, I have become acquainted with you. I thought you were just playing with people outside, just having fun. I thought you would come back to me one day. But when you took the v*xen to public places, I knew you had changed. "

Zach's face was on the side, and he has to explain in a hurry.

Tina didn't give him a chance, her voice was hoarse and hoarse: "You are testing my bottom line, don't admit it, the way you bring people out in a grand manner is nothing more than not taking me seriously, not putting me on the line. In your eyes, you are so disrespectful to me. Don't keep talking about Mrs. Gelinias, I'm already a joke, don't you know?"

You broke the balance between us by doing this. Others can laugh at me, but you can't."

Nicole closed her eyes, her heart was quite blocked. She shouldn't have come.

In the eyes of her and outsiders, Tina deserved it today.

A good deck of cards smashed.

Poor and hateful.

But she deserved it, it should not just be the name of Mrs. Gelinias.

From school uniforms to wedding dresses, that moment of romance is enough to burn for a long time in life.

"Wife, I was wrong..." Zach didn't know what to say, so he could only apologize.

No conscience and superficial apology can solve anything.

It will only urge Tina to strengthen his determination.

"Zach, force me to tear my face, I'm divorced from this marriage."

Zach's face changed a few times, but he finally left.

The sound of Tina closing the door was very loud and loud. The tears had been wiped off her face when she came back.

But the eye sockets were red, and the red blood was particularly obvious.