"Yes, she approached me, but I rebuffed her and told her not to come to me again," Sabrina replied, staring at Blayze calmly.

"You are right. Sierra has done something wrong and should be punished. You don't have to worry about anything when Rita comes to you. Just refuse her," Blayze remarked.

"I know you and your father are both reasonable," Sabrina replied.

Lowering his head, Blayze changed the topic. "Why do you want to go abroad all of a sudden?"

"There is no special reason. I just don't want to stay here anymore," Sabrina said with a shrug.

It was impossible for Sabrina to discuss something so embarrassing and humiliating with anyone but Bettie.

After a moment of staring at Sabrina, Blayze stated in a light tone, "A few days ago, I saw Tyrone and Galilea attending a party together. They seemed to be close."

Hearing this, the only reaction Sabrina gave was to reach for her wine glass. "Let's not talk about him. Let me propose a toast to you, Blayze."

"Okay."

Judging by Sabrina's cold attitude, Blayze guessed that she wanted to move abroad because Tyrone and Galilea had rekindled their old relationship.

He didn't know what happened between Sabrina and Tyrone. Now would have been a great opportunity for him to take advantage of the situation if Rita hadn't drugged Sabrina a few days ago.

If he expressed his feelings to Sabrina not long after Rita drugged her, it would have been easy for Sabrina to figure out that it was he who instigated Rita to drug her.

Therefore, he had to bide his time for a little longer.

Since Sabrina and Tyrone's relationship was broken for good and they would live in different countries, Blayze was certain he would have a chance someday.

Blayze took out a business card from his pocket and put it on the table. He pushed it to Sabrina and said, "I really can't leave here. Otherwise, I would have escorted you there to settle down. This is the business card of a photography studio in Philade. The owner is a friend of mine. He has branches in Philade. If you are interested, you can contact him and tell him that I recommended you."

Sabrina picked up the card and inspected it. Then, she looked at Blayze and smiled. "Okay, thank you."

After donating all her assets, the only thing Sabrina had left to live on was her own savings. She would have to spend part of it to settle down in Philade, and the rest would not be enough to support her forever if she just stayed at home. Sabrina didn't intend to stay at home.

Blayze's business card came at the right time.

Sabrina then asserted she would travel to Philade first.

Blayze had been in Philade for years and knew a lot about the place. He had many friends there, including the new president of the International Association.

He gave Sabrina the phone numbers of two of his friends and told her to call them for help if she was in trouble. Blayze had told his friends about it.

This way, Blayze had saved Sabrina from a lot of trouble. Sabrina was grateful for his help.

A few days later, Sabrina went to Wanda's house again. She talked with Wanda for a while. Then, Wanda called Lena and Claire and organized a get-together to see Sabrina off.

Even though Sabrina now had a bad relationship with Tyrone, she still treated Wanda as her family.

Sergio had already been aware of the fact that Sabrina was leaving for a while now. It was quite impossible for him not to be aware of the gossip in the office since Tyrone openly came in and out of the office with Galilea.

When Sergio was reporting work to Tyrone, he took the opportunity to ask, "I heard that Sabrina is leaving. Are you aware of it?"

Tyrone stared at Sergio calmly. "What does that have to do with me?"

Sergio floundered, unable to speak.

When Tyrone loved Sabrina, he schemed against others to stop them from making advances on Sabrina. When he didn't love her, he was indifferent.

Having known Sabrina for years, Sergio decided to return home and bid Sabrina farewell.

So, when Marnie asked him to go shopping with her, Sergio refused.

Marnie was unhappy with his refusal.

Sergio explained why he couldn't go with her.

Marnie rolled her eyes and asked, "Is it Miss Chavez we met that day? She is going to settle abroad? Why?"

Marnie remembered she had met Sabrina and Tyrone shopping together in the mall. All of a sudden, Sabrina announced that she was relocating abroad. Did she break up with Tyrone?

"I don't know. Everyone has their own choice."

"Can I go with you?" Marnie looked at Sergio expectantly. "I know Miss Chavez, and she knows my cousin. I don't think she will come back for our wedding, so I want to see her off."

Sergio had agreed to marry Marnie. He took her to the hotel, tried on the wedding dresses, picked up the ring, and took wedding photos. All in all, Sergio had done everything he ought to do, except for one thing — take Marnie to see his parents. Whenever Marnie attempted to get the marriage certificate, Sergio would change the topic.

When Marnie hinted at getting the marriage certificate, Sergio told her after the wedding, he would transfer a house to her name.

Marnie was happy about it, but Sergio's true meaning wasn't lost on her. She knew he would not get the marriage certificate with her.

The wedding was just a show for the public, preventing them from labeling the child as one out of wedlock. After the child was born, Sergio could kick her away at any time.

But Marnie had done so much to be connected with the wealthy Blakely family. How could she settle for a house and thousands of dollars?

No matter what, Marnie would find a way to persistently milk money from the Blakely family forever. That explained her visit back to her own home. She had to have a grasp of the situation and make the most of it.

When Sergio heard Marnie's request, he stared at her without saying anything.

He had studied her for a while.

Marnie stared back, feigning composed on the outside while she flustered. She couldn't help but feel Sergio could see through her with his penetrating gaze.

However, there were times he stared at her in such a manner but complied with her requests.

"Do you really want to go?" Sergio asked.

Marnie hesitated for a while and nodded her head. "Yes."

"Fine. Go with me."

So Sergio brought Marnie to Wanda's house.

By the time they reached, Leroy and Claire hadn't arrived yet.

Sabrina was surprised to see Marnie since she hadn't expected Marnie to come. Curiously, Sabrina studied Marnie's frame and saw that she was thin and not yet showing any signs of being pregnant.

Sabrina smiled at Marnie warmly and greeted, "I didn't expect to see you here. Have a seat."

Sergio and Marnie took a seat, with Marnie holding onto Sergio's arm. Marnie smiled at Sabrina and said, "I heard from Sergio that you are moving abroad. I'm afraid we won't be able to see each other much in the future. Therefore, I came to see you off."

Marnie used to call Sabrina Miss Chavez. But now that the date for their wedding ceremony had been set, she called Sabrina by her name.

"Thank you. I'm afraid I won't be able to attend your wedding. But don't worry. The wedding gift has already been prepared," Sabrina teased.

After a few more exchanges of pleasantries, Sabrina told Sergio, "Sergio, Wanda is in the room. You should take Marnie to see her."

"Fine." Sergio nodded his head and got to his feet, Marnie's hand in his.

Marnie could barely hide the look of longing and expectation on her face.

She knew that Wanda was an elder who was loved and respected by everyone in the Blakely family. It would be good for her if she could win Wanda's favor.

After a while, Leroy and Claire arrived.

The moment Claire walked into the house, she looked around expectantly. But she saw no sight of Sergio and Marnie. She turned to Sabrina and asked, "Is Sergio here?"

"Yes. He and Marnie are talking to Wanda in the room."

Rolling her eyes, Claire sat beside Sabrina and said, "Pay no mind to her presence. I didn't invite her here."

Leroy cleared his throat and said something to Sabrina, effectively changing the subject.

Claire echoed Leroy's words.

They were in the midst of their conversation when Sergio and Marnie came out of Wanda's room.

Marnie's face turned pale when she saw Claire.

All at once, Marnie recalled what happened in the mall last time. Those two girls wanted to file a complaint against her, and a woman came out to help the two girls.

Marnie was livid at that time. She had comforted herself with the fact that after she became Sergio's wife, she would find out about the identity of that woman and teach her a lesson.

But now, that same woman was here in the Blakely family.
