

Chapter 1191 Start Preparing For The Breakthrough

Finally getting a chance to be alone with Liam, Carlden took this opportunity to keep Liam by his side and said, "Liam, you've been leveling up so fast. I think it's time for me to fill you in with the basics of being a Primogem Warrior."

Carlden's words instantly piqued Liam's interest. He knew he was in for some valuable insights.

So, he quickly nodded and sat next to Carlden, ready to listen attentively.

With a faint smile, Carlden said, "To tell you honestly, I was really shocked when I saw you fight against Cillian before. You probably don't know the significant difference between a seventh-rank and an eighth-rank Primogem Warrior. To reach the eighth rank, one needs to break through one's current limits. It is not an easy step. If you want to break through to the eighth level, you must master how to condense your special power. Basically, it means turning your special power into something substantial through the condensation method."

After a pause, he continued, "For example, think about your special power of the earth element. Currently, are you only using it to boost your defense? But have you ever thought about condensing your special power of the earth element into a real shield? This can expand your defensive coverage and significantly boost your defense power. In my case, I awakened my special power of the metal element. After I learned to condense this special power, I was able to forge it into a spear. And with this spear in my

Looking at Liam, he added, "However, if you want to master the ability to condense your special power, it requires strong spiritual power. Moreover, you must have excellent control over your spiritual power. This is the first big challenge you need to overcome. I suggest you start practicing now. This way, you can pave the way for future upgrades."

After listening to Carlden attentively, a trace of excitement flashed through Liam's eyes. He nodded and immediately began to practice as Carlden had suggested.

However, he soon felt his head dizzy and throbbed. Every time he tried to summon his spiritual power and condense his special power, he felt that way. He was so overwhelmed by pain that he struggled to make any headway.

When Carlden saw this, he immediately said comfortingly, "Don't worry; this isn't a major issue. It's just because of the huge difference between your current strength and the strength needed to condense your special power. So, Liam, just take it slow. At least now you know which direction you need to aim for."

Liam looked at Carlden and noticed the gentle and encouraging smile on the latter's face. This was in stark contrast to his usual stern demeanor to outsiders.

This made Liam realize that Carlden genuinely cared for his well-being. Carlden was truly looking after him.

At the thought of this, Liam felt warm in his heart. With a sense of gratitude, he said, "Thank you so much for your guidance. Rest assured that I won't let you down."

Carlden smiled faintly and waved his hand dismissively.

"There's no need for such formality between us. By the way, I've noticed that your power is about to break through to the seventh rank of Primogem Warrior. You should start preparing for the breakthrough. After you break through to the seventh rank, I have something important to tell you."

Liam believed Carlden had something significant to share with him. But his current level was not enough to understand that. That was why Carlden had been encouraging him.

Liam nodded in agreement. "Okay. I will do my best."

In fact, Liam also felt he was about to have a breakthrough. After all, he had consistently held back his breakthrough during his time in the secret realm, which helped stabilize his strength.

The maritime secret realm had a rule that no Primogem Warrior above the sixth rank could stay there.

Therefore, Liam had rarely felt the urge to have a breakthrough when he had been there.

However, after he left the maritime secret realm, he suddenly felt he was about to have a breakthrough to the seventh rank.

It was just that he had not found the right opportunity to level up.

But now that he was back at Mount Moria safely, it seemed like the perfect time for him to have his breakthrough.

Laura and Shayla were on the verge of reaching the sixth rank of Primogem Warrior.

Liam still had two Universe Crystal Dewes with him. If he

So, Liam approached Laura and Shayla. Then, he handed out the last two Universe Crystal Dewes to them without hesitation. He asked them to stay with him within the protective barrier at the foot of Mount Moria to focus on their breakthroughs.

Liam's own primogem energy had become abundant after he experienced numerous battles.

Thus, he didn't need any external forces to help him now.

Laura and Shayla, who had been conserving their energy for a long time, also didn't have any problems advancing to the sixth rank.

As for Carden, he personally guarded this secluded place to ensure no intruders could disrupt Liam's critical advancement.
