

Chapter 1197 His Mirror Image

Liam followed the techniques his master had imparted to him before he entered the secret realm. He began to climb the steps ahead.

As soon as he stepped onto the first step, he felt a powerful sense of pressure descend on his body.

But this pressure was totally different from his own gravitational field.

Liam was surprised to find that he couldn't even use his primogem energy. It was as if it was being suppressed.

His Lightning Wings also lost their function.

Thus, he could only climb up step by step.

His expression darkened.

Liam hadn't expected that just the first step would give him such a head-on blow.

He exhaled heavily. He finally understood now.

The trial his master had mentioned was indeed challenging.

Liam raised his head and looked at the higher steps.

After roughly counting them, he was shocked to find there were one thousand steps!

Liam's eyelids twitched. He had already anticipated the

Liam raised his head and looked at the higher steps.

After roughly counting them, he was shocked to find there were one thousand steps!

Liam's eyelids twitched. He had already anticipated the immense pressure he would encounter as he continued to climb.

But Liam was not one to give up.

He adjusted his condition and continued to ascend to the next step.

As Liam moved higher, the pressure exerted on him also gradually increased.

But for now, this pressure was not yet a significant obstacle for him.

The pressure on Liam only disappeared when he stepped into the one-hundredth step, and a relatively large flat platform appeared in front of him.

When he thought he could take a moment to adjust his condition to prepare for the next stretch of steps, he suddenly realized something was amiss.

A figure suddenly appeared with its back to him.

Liam felt the figure looked very familiar. He knew at a glance that this figure should be the opponent he must defeat in this trial.

However, his sense of familiarity with this figure made him frown.

Liam was completely stunned when the figure turned around.

The figure was no other than his own self!

Even the tiny details on the figure's body were exactly the same as him.

If Liam hadn't known this was a trial, he would have thought he was hallucinating.

But his eyes were still full of surprise. He had never imagined this trial would involve fighting against another version of himself.

At present, the only thing he didn't know was whether this mirror image of him also had the same light elemental special power and life-draining ability as him.

At the thought of this, Liam didn't dare to underestimate his opponent. Instead, he began to test the figure's abilities.

Liam's first move was to unleash his gravitational field, which directly enveloped his mirror image.

But the next moment, his mirror image also attacked by using the gravitational field to restrain Liam's movements.

Liam instantly felt like his entire body was filled with lead, making his steps heavier.

After the mirror image used the gravitational field, it remained motionless. It seemed it had no other abilities and could only replicate Liam's moves.

Because of this, Liam was intrigued by his mirror image.

Fighting himself was actually quite interesting.

After all, he didn't know his limits yet.

Liam wanted to test his own strength, so he withdrew the gravitational field. Sure enough, his mirror image also quickly withdrew the gravitational field and began a hand-to-hand combat with him.

As Liam had expected, his mirror image copied his every move, replicating his fighting style.

Although it was a bit troublesome, the mirror image's abilities were limited. Unlike Liam, it did not possess the elemental special powers. Moreover, the mirror image's strength was only comparable to a sixth-rank seven-star warrior, which was inferior to Liam's.

It could only replicate Liam's special power of the earth element. As for the other special powers, the mirror image couldn't do it, let alone the life-draining ability.

Thus, Liam believed this mirror image was no threat to him.

He realized this after fighting with his mirror image a few times. Then, he effortlessly defeated it with a single move.

A trace of disappointment flashed through Liam's eyes.

He thought he could hone his strength by fighting against his mirror image.

But then, Liam realized something.

This was only the test on the one-hundredth step. If his mirror image possessed the same strength and abilities as him here, how could the trials continue?

This realization made Liam feel better.

He then took a rest there.

After making sure that his condition returned to its peak, he continued to climb up.

The pressure brought by the second set of steps was several times higher.

As a result, Liam's climbing speed became slightly slower.

However, this was not a big problem for Liam.

When he reached the platform on the two-hundredth step, he saw the familiar mirror image again.

A faint smile crept to Liam's face. It seemed the test here was still to fight against his own mirror image.

Liam tested his mirror image and found it had grown a bit stronger this time. Also, the mirror image not only had the special power of the earth element but also learned Liam's bodily movement skills.

However, these skills were still not enough for the mirror image to compete with Liam.

There was still no suspense about the outcome of this battle.

Once again, Liam won effortlessly.
