

Chapter 1240 Method To Create His Own Origin...

Lancy fully understood why Liam was so determined to master the technique of crafting his own Origin Technique, and she said, "Don't worry. Show me what the issue is first."

Liam nodded and positioned himself in front of Lancy, beginning his demonstration.

Liam had done a perfect job at the beginning without any mistake. However, during the critical phase of integrating and releasing his special power, Liam encountered a failure.

Liam shrugged and explained, "That's the problem. Every time I'm close to succeeding in creating my own Origin Technique, I fail at this stage!"

Lancy nodded thoughtfully and then responded, "Actually, most level-nine Primogem Warriors possess only one type of special power, which naturally aids them in developing their own Origin Technique. Your case is different because you have multiple types of special powers, which complicates things. Furthermore, the World Power has fused all your special powers. If you try to convert a particular special power into an Origin Technique, it gets opposed by the other powers. This is why you're finding it difficult."

Liam was taken aback by Lancy's explanation.

A bitter smile formed on his face.

He hadn't anticipated that possessing multiple special powers would make it harder to enhance his abilities.

Lancy said, "Actually, if you aim to advance to a level-ten Primogem Warrior, you have two options. The first is to select one special power to focus on and develop as your main power. However, this would require you to relinquish all other special powers and remove them from the World Power. Of course, you can try to comprehend them again after you become a level-ten Primogem Warrior. But I'm not sure if you can successfully get them back."

After a pause, she continued, "The second option is to create a perfect special power. You can make the new special power remain isolated from the World Power temporarily. So you won't have to worry about this new power being rejected by the others."

Looking at Liam, Lancy added, "You have two potential special powers to explore. One option is to activate the special power of the dark element and blend it with the special power of the light element to form a new power. The second option involves enhancing the special power of metal and water elements. Regarding the remaining special powers of wood and fire elements, they can potentially be substituted by the Heart of Life fragment and the special power of rock fire element. With the special power of the earth element you've already mastered, you could integrate it into a special power of the five elements!"

Upon hearing Lancy's suggestions, Liam's expression grew more serious.

He wasn't concerned that Lancy might be misleading him. Given their shared interests, helping him would indirectly benefit her, too.

After pondering for a moment, Liam made his choice.

With a determined expression, he said to Lancy, "Lancy, I'll go with the second option you mentioned!"

Liam was still unsure about the specifics of these two strategies.

But from Lancy's explanation, it was clear that the first option required sacrificing his potential to gain immediate strength.

While this approach might rapidly advance his strength to level ten as a Primogem Warrior, it contradicted his long-term aspirations.

Liam knew that to successfully find Julie and Asher, merely being a level-ten Primogem Warrior wouldn't suffice.

The stronger he became, the better his chances of locating Julie and Asher.

Seeing that Liam had made his choice, Lancy gave a slight nod.

She chose not to influence his choice.

In her view, it was not her place to impose her thoughts on her friends.

Liam carefully considered whether to pursue the fusion of the five elements' special powers or the combination of light and dark elements.

After all, these two choices were both very difficult.

Choosing his cultivation path lightly could waste precious time if it failed to meet his expectations.

After careful consideration, Liam opted to try merging the

This decision was not made lightly.

In fact, under Lancy's guidance, Liam had already attempted to enhance his sword of darkness with dark element energy treasures.

Moreover, Liam had also tried to awaken his special power of the dark element.

Yet, every attempt to activate this special power had failed without exception.

This consistent failure was a major factor in Liam's decision to pursue the five elements' fusion.

He was concerned that he might never successfully awaken the special power of the dark element.

Liam felt confident in his decision. Ultimately, it seemed like his only viable option.
