

Chapter 1249 The Strength Of The Primogem Expert

After the initial test concluded, the next challenge focused on defensive capabilities.

This was Liam's strongest suit.

His first awakened special power had been of the earth element, after all.

He had mastered this special power more than any other due to its long-standing presence in his life.

The second test was straightforward.

Liam needed to endure ten minutes under assault from virtual aliens. Surviving without defeat would signify his success.

As the synthesized voice announced the start, the test commenced.

The aliens in the initial wave were formidable, classified as level ten with three stars.

Liam, however, was well-prepared. Relying on his robust physique, honed through the Human Body Refinement Technique, and his adeptness with the special power of the five elements, he could withstand most of what the aliens threw at him without using his armor. Moreover, he possessed a fragment of the Heart of Life, an artifact that continuously regenerated his life energy.

Therefore, it was much more difficult to defeat Liam than to resist his attack.

Meanwhile, four hours had ticked by since the start of Liam's test.

Those gathered in the Sanctuary of Human Sovereign began to murmur amongst themselves, taken aback by the duration of Liam's test.

"Usually, the test for an average participant wraps up in half an hour. The longest one I've witnessed stretched just over two hours. Why hasn't he emerged after four hours?"

"Does his young age really lengthen the test duration?"

"How could that be? All the rules for tests at the Sanctuary of Human Sovereign are the same!"

"Then why hasn't he emerged after four hours? It doesn't feel right."

"Could he truly be a prodigy?"

"I suspect it's his lack of strength. He's probably taking longer to overcome the alien hallucinations. That might explain why his test is dragging on for so long!"

"Exactly! That makes sense!"

"He probably took too much time in each combat scenario, which is why he hasn't completed the test in four hours!"

The group was buzzing with excitement. It was challenging for them to come to terms with the possibility that Liam might possess more talent than Emperor Hoffman.

Meanwhile, Lindy arrived.

She stood among the onlookers, eagerly awaiting the outcome of Liam's test.

After all, the results of Liam's test were crucial to her assignment.

Moreover, Lindy also found herself wondering why Liam had been inside for so long.

Unlike the others, she was convinced that Liam's extended duration was due to his exceptional strength, which likely meant he was undergoing more rounds of the test than usual.

After all, it had taken her nearly four hours to complete her own test, too.

Her combat skills were impressive, allowing her to take on opponents three levels higher than herself.

Judging by what she had seen so far, she believed Liam was even stronger than her.

This realization delighted Lindy.

The more skilled Liam proved to be, the greater the reward she would receive for accomplishing her mission.

Furthermore, Lindy genuinely hoped that Liam would demonstrate his remarkable abilities.

In the testing room.

Another hour had ticked by.

Liam was currently up against an opponent of the Primogem Expert level—a first for him.

This new challenge caused Liam some anxiety.

At that moment, Liam made up his mind.

Regardless of whether he could withstand the onslaught of a Primogem Expert, he knew he had to give it everything he had.

He needed to understand just how wide the gap was between a Primogem Expert and a level-ten Primogem Warrior.

Taking a deep breath, Liam prepared himself and mounted a full defense.

However, the result was not what he had wished.

Despite deploying every defense tactic he had, Liam couldn't quite grasp how the alien before him launched its attack.

All he saw was a sweeping motion from the alien's hand, followed by a crushing blow to his body.

Liam was sent flying before he could even mount a defense!

When he regained his footing, the starry vista before him had vanished.

A look of regret washed over Liam's face.

He realized that this defeat marked his elimination by a Primogem Expert.

He hadn't anticipated that, despite his defensive capabilities, he would be so easily overpowered.

Shocked, Liam muttered to himself, "It seems becoming a Primogem Expert significantly boosts one's strength!"
