

Chapter 1275 The First Opponent

---

If Cecil hadn't informed Liam, Liam would have been unaware of the arena task's existence.

Liam felt deep gratitude for Cecil's guidance.

Cecil, excited by Liam's appreciation, had shared the information hoping to foster a good relationship with Liam.

Pleased that his aim was met, Cecil soon excused himself and departed.

Once Cecil was gone, Liam, using the details Cecil had provided, found the entry point for the arena task.

"I accept the task!" Liam exclaimed, eagerly opting to join this month's arena match.

Upon accepting the task, he received comprehensive details about the arena task.

It was explained that defeating the first opponent would earn him 100 points, with subsequent victories yielding increasingly higher rewards.

Meanwhile, a defeat would cost him 10 points.

Liam's eyes sparkled with anticipation.

This task seemed as if it had been crafted perfectly for him!

Of course, he was careful not to underestimate his adversaries or approach the challenge with complacency.

After accepting the task, Liam teleported directly to the Human Sovereign Arena.

The arena buzzed with excitement, filled to capacity, and the space outside was equally thronged.

The Human Sovereign Arena served dual purposes: it was not only a venue for competitions but also offered spectators the chance to watch the battles live.

Anyone could visit the Human Sovereign Arena to watch a fight unfold.

However, spectators had to spend points to purchase tickets to view the battles.

Despite this, the arena was crowded every day.

Many came to the Human Sovereign Arena not only for entertainment but also to glean practical knowledge from watching other Primogem Warriors in action.

Of course, some attended merely for fun.

When Liam entered the arena, he barely had a moment to look around.

Almost instantly, he found himself transported to the center of the battle ring.

Surrounding the ring were vast grandstands, capable of holding hundreds of thousands of spectators, all of whom were eagerly anticipating the start of the next battle.

Above the ring, a huge screen displayed the upcoming matches.

"Liam Hoffman VS Everett Burke."

Liam's eyes moved from the screen to the opposite side

The Network of Human Sovereign displayed Everett's original strength as top of level ten.

However, due to the arena task's rules, Everett's power was adjusted to level ten with one star, matching Liam's.

At this moment, Everett, from his position across the ring, was fully aware of Liam's strength thanks to the information provided by the Network of Human Sovereign.

Everett looked across the ring at Liam with a hint of disdain. With a sneering tone, he called out to Liam, "Newbie, did you come here hoping to scrape together some points?"

Liam, detecting the scorn in Everett's tone, frowned and retorted sharply, "Aren't you here for the points, too? Why do you pretend to be above it all here?"

Everett's sneer deepened, his contempt apparent. "Do you think I'm like you? I'm here to dominate the lower levels and of course, snatch some extra points!"
