Chapter 1335 Liam's Training Plan

After receiving the compensation of 10, 000 points, Feathered Gold, and Six-Light Nectar from Tom, Liam's spirits lifted.

Though these points couldn't upgrade his clearance level since they were special points, Liam was still very happy.

He proposed to share the compensation with Chad and Everett, his steadfast friends who had chosen to stand by him in dire times.

After all, true friends were always revealed in adversity. Chad and Everett had refused to abandon him in the face of danger, choosing instead to stand firmly by his side. Liam had come to recognize these two as his real friends in his heart.

Chad and Everett, however, were not tempted by Liam's offer to share. Instead, they declined the offer. In their view, these items were Tom's compensation to Liam, and it would be inappropriate for them to take a portion.

With Everett needing time to heal, he parted ways with Liam. After Everett left, Chad also proposed to take his leave.

After bidding farewell, Liam found himself alone once again.

Only Arthur remained with him.

Grateful for Arthur's assistance, Liam thanked him and expressed his intention to depart. "Mr. Vaughn, my mission here is complete. It's time for me to take my leave."

This time, Liam had gained a lot. With numerous treasures containing law power in hand, he naturally did not want to Seeing Liam about to leave, Arthur couldn't help but show a look of regret. He had hoped to cultivate a great relationship with Liam, seeing Liam's exceptional potential.

However, Arthur understood that his actions to protect Liam had already endeared Liam to the Vaughn family.

The depth of their future ties would depend on the strength of the bond his nephew Cecil could forge with Liam.

So, Arthur smiled and nodded, saying, "Alright, goodbye, Liam! If you have time in the future, you are welcome to visit the Vaughn family."

Liam smiled. "Rest assured, Mr. Vaughn. If I have the opportunity, I will certainly visit."

After bidding farewell, Liam utilized the mission's teleportation array to return to the main city.

He proceeded to the mission release machine where he submitted the three pieces of Feathered Gold he had collected and then sought a training chamber.

Settling into a cross-legged position, Liam reviewed his gains.

Armed with 10, 000 special points, he recognized the potential for significant benefits if he managed them wisely.

He was intent on swiftly enhancing his strength to the Primogem King level.

Achieving this would allow him to match his current clearance level and focus on advancing to level 5 clearance by completing more missions. After that, he could seek the fragments of the Heart of Life.

To enhance his strength, Liam considered two main paths.

The first involved cultivating his law power, a fundamental method for boosting strength.

The second path was using the Blood Sovereign's blood essence, given by his father, to upgrade his physique to the "Silver-Form Body". This upgrade would effectively enlarge his energy capacity, facilitating easier progression in the future.

It was like a container that could originally hold only one liter of water. After being modified, it could hold two liters.

Yet, Liam hesitated to use the Blood Sovereign's blood essence immediately. At his current stage as a fourth-stage Primogem Expert, the risks associated with the blood essence were considerable. A premature use could lead to an overwhelming influx of energy, risking fatal consequences.

After some consideration, Liam resolved to delay using the Blood Sovereign's blood essence until he achieved the Primogem King level.

Liam then secured 100 days of secluded training time in the Sea of Laws.

Having been enriched by Tom's generous compensation, he could afford extensive resources for his cultivation without constraint.

With his mind at peace, Liam immersed himself in cultivating his law power, commencing a dedicated phase of intensive training.
