

Chapter 1338 Trying To Find The Heart Of Life Fragment

Liam soon reached the No. 69 planetary system that Cecil had mentioned. Disembarking from the Stellar Cruiser, he noticed a stark difference in this planetary system. Here, the World Powers of all the Celestial Realms were not scattered like the other planetary systems. Instead, they all gathered together. It seemed as though these World Powers had been systematically twisted by someone into a rope-like formation.

This peculiar observation intrigued Liam.

Having mastered the manipulation of World Power, he immediately recognized the implications of such an anomaly within a planetary system.

It seemed highly probable that a being similar to a World Lord presided over this planetary system. Otherwise, such a situation would not have happened!

However, Liam didn't dwell on the matter.

Whether a World Lord governed the No. 69 planetary system was irrelevant to him. He intended to avoid trouble and thereby escape the notice of any such powerful entity.

Liam reconnected with Cecil via the Network of Human Sovereign to update Cecil on his location.

Shortly after receiving the message, Cecil arrived. When Cecil caught sight of Liam, his face brightened with a hint of joy. "Buddy, I've just checked it again. I'm almost convinced the Heart of Life fragment is here. In all my years, I've never encountered something brimming with such strong life force!"

Liam smiled, his response tinged with gratitude. "If that's the case, I owe you greatly."

With a hearty laugh and a dismissive wave, Cecil replied, "Think nothing of it! We're friends. Let's hurry before anything goes awry."

Liam nodded and followed Cecil towards a planet within the No. 69 planetary system, a thrill of anticipation surging within him.

The potential presence of a Heart of Life fragment here could activate the dormant one within him, which in turn might awaken Emer.

Guided by Cecil, Liam reached the base of a verdant mountain.

Cecil gestured towards its peak and shared his theory with Liam. "It's here! I discovered that the flowers and trees here are brimming with boundless life force. That's why I suspect a fragment of the Heart of Life might be hidden here."

Looking at the mountain, Liam felt a strong inclination to believe Cecil.

While a master of the law power of the wood element could also do this, Liam doubted anyone would use so much power just to nourish the plants here.

Liam sighed in his heart. It was unfortunate that Emer was dormant and could not provide detailed guidance. Thus, he was left with no choice but to rely on his own intuition now, walking with Cecil.

Soon, Liam and Cecil began their ascent of the towering mountain. Simultaneously, Liam's brow furrowed deeply.

Cecil noticed Liam's concerned expression. "What's wrong?"

Liam shook his head, explaining, "I haven't sensed anything unusual as we've drawn closer. It's not the same feeling I had when I found other fragments of the Heart of Life before."

Despite the dormant state of the Heart of Life fragment within him, Liam could still feel a connection with other fragments when he was nearby.

But Liam didn't doubt Cecil's intentions for summoning him here. The sincerity in Cecil's demeanor convinced him there was no deceit; Cecil genuinely didn't know if there was a Heart of Life fragment.

Thinking of this, Liam placed a hand on Cecil's shoulder and said, "Thank you!"

Though they had not discovered the Heart of Life fragment, Liam appreciated Cecil sharing his findings.

Cecil, surprised by Liam's gratitude, was about to respond.

However, before he could say anything, Cecil suddenly noticed a mysterious figure materializing in front of Liam and him!
