I'm A Quadrillionaire chapter 705

"David? what's the matter with you?" Celia saw David staring into space after answering the phone. Then, she asked while waving her hand in front of David's eyes.

"Huh? Oh, Celia, I'm fine. Just now the chancellor of my university called me and asked me to go back to class tomorrow. I almost forgot that I was a student, so I was caught off guard," David smiled and said,

"David, have you been too tired recently? Why don't you take a break? It just so happens that the classes have started, so you should put the company's affairs aside for a while. Don't you have a lot of subordinates? Just leave things to them first and relax for a while," Celia said worriedly.

She was afraid that David would wear himself out because of the company.

"I'm fine. I'm not tired, but I have to go back to campus tomorrow because the chancellor is waiting for me," David replied.

He was embarrassed to say that he had never managed the company at all. He was basically a boss who never did anything and he would only decide on the general direction of the company.

"Then when are you coming back?" Celia asked. "Why? Are you unwilling for me to go?" David asked with a grin. "Who... Who's unwilling for you to leave? I am desperate for you to leave," Celia blushed and said embarrassedly.

"Really? Why do I feel like you're lying?"

"I... I'm not."

"I don't believe it, come over and let me have a look."

David reached out and grabbed Celia.

Celia screamed and tried to run but was caught before she could take a few steps.

Two hours later...

When David and Celia went downstairs, Mindy had already prepared food.

Jon was still sitting on the sofa reading the newspaper.

This chapter is provided by . Visit for daily update.

“Come down and eat now!” Mindy called out.

David sat at the dining table like everything was normal. Celia’s face was red, and she lowered her head a little. She was afraid to look at her parents and was only focused on eating. She did not expect her parents to come back so early. She screamed so loudly before this.

How embarrassing!’

Mindy and Jon were going about their business as if they had not heard anything.

After dinner, Mindy casually asked David about the company.

When he felt that it was almost time, David said, “Mrs. Young, Mr. Young, it’s getting late, I’ll go back first.”

Mindy was taken aback and asked, “Are you not staying? Or do you have something going on at night?”

“Mrs. Young, I have to rush back to South River Province tonight. Classes are starting tomorrow and I have been busy recently so I forgot. Today the chancellor called me and asked me to go back to campus tomorrow,” David explained. “Have you booked a flight? What time is it?”

“Um... I didn’t.”

“You didn’t? Then how are you going to get back to South River Province?” Mindy asked suspiciously !

“Even though I didn’t book a flight, I’m taking the private jet that belongs to East League Capitals so I can leave at any time.”

Mindy was stunned and did not continue to speak.

Jon also put down the newspaper and glanced at David.

Although their family was also considered wealthy, something like a private jet was still beyond them.

It was not that they could not afford it, but they could not maintain it.

A private jet was less than one billion dollars and they could still afford it if they grit their teeth.

However, the key question was, why would they buy it?

Just to sit in it every once in a while?

Moreover, after buying it, it was likely the company would not be able to operate and it would cause the company's capital chain to break.

The annual cost of maintaining and operating an aircraft was also astronomical.

'I didn't expect David to buy a private jet.

"Does this kid not know how to save money?"

"How many times will he need it in a year?"

Mindy wanted to lecture David, but considering that David owned 100% of the equity of East League Capitals, which was valued at nearly 10 trillion dollars, she decided to forget it.

A private jet was like a toy for someone at David's level.

Besides, if David went out to meet a client at his level without a private jet, he would probably be too embarrassed to go.

Mindy had been in the business world for nearly 20 years, and she knew some of the tricks to Each level had its own way of playing.

When a big shot at David's level was talking business with others and they all had private jets, he would definitely also need one.

"David, what will happen to East League Capitals if you go back to campus? Are you leaving it with that general manager, Pearl?" Mindy asked.

This was what she cared about most.

This woman, Pearl, was too much of a threat.

If David left everything to her now, Pearl would have a loyal following in East League Capitals over time.

When Celia joined the company in the future, she would definitely be restrained by Pearl.

This was not a good thing for Mindy.

“Tomorrow, I’ll go back to report to the university and tell the chancellor that I will not stay on campus forever,” David said.

“That’s good, be careful on the road and come back soon.”

“Alright, Mrs. Young, Mr. Young, Celia, I’ll go first. I should be back in about two days.”

“David, be careful on the road,” Celia said in concern.

“Okay, I will, wait for me to come back.”

After David finished speaking, he left Celia’s house.

Then, he contacted Hugo, head of East League Capitals in Capital City, and had him arrange a flight.

An hour later, David departed from Capital City and flew to River City in South River Province.

On this day, the news of the discipline team quickly spread throughout Somerland.

They were the newly established special privileged department of Somerland, and they had the power to act first and report later.

To put it bluntly, it was established to specially manage martial artists.

It was said that the members consisted of a combination of people from major hidden families and sects and the former Team Dragon in Somerland.

The weaker members being master late Dragon Rank meant that their strength was simply amazing

Captain David made countless people curious, and his information also appeared in the hands of the forces in Somerland and even foreign forces.

However, there were only some brief introductions as no photo of him had been circulated.

He was the eleventh MP of the Somerland Parliament and the secret disciple of Mr. Mason

Stefani.

These two identities shocked countless people.

Plus, David was the recognized winner of the grand event of the chosen ones in Somerland and was also the number one among the younger generation in Somerland.

It was a pity that there were rumors that Mason was dead. Otherwise, David's identity could be raised to another level and there would be no one in Somerland who could surpass him.

I'm A Quadrillionaire chapter 706

I'm A Quadrillionaire chapter 706

South River University,

David stopped into this university that changed his destiny alter a long time once again,

It was here that his ex girlfriend abandoned him, was angered until he vomited blood by the campus' rich kid, and finally got a super lavish system when he woke up.

It was this system that changed his life, in the past, he was at the bottom of society. He was looking forward to changing his destiny through studying, which was why he had been studying hard this whole time.

At the same time, he also did part-time jobs to earn money to please his girlfriend, Now, stepping into South River University again, he had already stood at the peak of the world with no shortage of identity, status, and money.

It could be said that he was worlds apart from that poor student David, who did deliveries and worked part-time as soon as he had time.

After entering the school, David looked at the students coming and going into the school. Many of them were young and new faces, and he lamented repeatedly in his heart. He would be a senior at the start of this semester and South River University also welcomed a group of freshmen.

The reporting time for new students had passed and class would officially start today.

However, instead of going to the classroom, David went to Chancellor Oliver's office.

“Wow! That guy looks so handsome, and he has such a good temperament. I wonder if he has a girlfriend,” a beautiful freshman at South River University said after seeing David, her face filled with admiration.

“Where? Where? Let me see!” Acute-looking freshman beside her lifted her head and asked.

“The one who just passed by us. You were looking down at your phone so you missed him.”

“Come, let’s go back so we can see him again.”

“Don’t, it will scare him.”

This chapter is provided by . Visit for daily update.

“No way. It’s his blessing that I’m looking at him. Plus, I’m so cute, how could I scare him?”

The two walked back after walking away and now, they were face to face with David.

“Wow, it’s true! He’s so handsome! Hi, what’s your name? Can we exchange contact information?” The cute girl stood in front of David and asked.

“Hi, you made a mistake. I’m not a student but a lecturer. You’ll be given a demerit if you flirt with a lecturer,” David said, pretending to be stern.

“Huh? You’re a lecturer? What a pity. I don’t want a lecturer-student relationship. Plus, lecturers are too old-fashioned and they are not romantic at all. Never mind, forget it. Let’s go!

After she said that, she left with the other girl.

Then, David continued to walk to the chancellor’s office,

Inside his heart, he asked himself, ‘Are girls nowadays so courageous?’

‘Or am I just out of date?’

She asked for his contact information the first time she met him.

If he was not smart just now and pretended to be a lecturer, he did not know how long she would keep him trapped there.

He was not in the mood to encounter any beautiful women now.

He had so many gorgeous women around him and it was enough to give him a headache.

On the way, a lot of new students were side-eying David. On the other hand, a lot of the students who knew David were looking at him curiously. David had not come back to campus for a very long time last semester, and they did not expect to see him this semester.

David was popular at South River University.

Initially, he was just an unremarkable and normal student. However, after his girlfriend cheated on him, he vomited blood out of anger, and was posted to the online forum of the university, immediately shooting him to fame.

However, the plot twist after caught them unprepared.

The pauper who would do deliveries and work part-time whenever he had time transformed into a super-rich kid after his girlfriend cheated on him.

A lot of rumors about David started circulating on campus.

The most believable one was that David was initially a son of a powerful family, but in order to find true love, he pretended to be a pauper.

However, unexpectedly, his girlfriend ran to a rich kid because he had no money.

I'm A Quadrillionaire chapter 707

I'm A Quadrillionaire chapter 707

David could not handle this, so he vomited blood on the spot. After waking up, he decided to stop pretending to be poor and restore his identity as the son of a wealthy family.

Everyone basically believed this rumor,

Otherwise, how could a pauper suddenly become a super-rich kid?

Howard, the president of the campus' student council, not only respectfully called him Mr. Lidell, but he also drove a luxury sports car worth tens of millions to campus.

David walked to the chancellor, Oliver's, office,

Knock knock knock

David knocked on the door.

"Come in!" Oliver's voice came from the office.

David pushed open the door and walked in.

Oliver looked up and saw that it was David. Therefore, he quickly stood up and said, "David, you're here. Please take a seat. I'll go get you a glass of water."

If anyone else at South River University saw this scene, they would definitely drop their jaws.

Who was Oliver?

The chancellor of South River University.

His words had enormous weight at South River University and now he was pouring water for a student himself?

Yet, Oliver himself did not feel awkward in the slightest.

This chapter is provided by . Visit for daily update.

David's identity was not what it used to be As the chancellor, he did not dare to neglect him, otherwise, if David were not happy and wanted to transfer to another university, there would be no one for him to cry to.

"Mr. Carson, you don't have to be so courteous. I mainly came here today to fulfill my promise I gave in Capital City. I've decided to donate another 200 million to the university," David said, going straight to the point.

"I see! I would have forgotten if you didn't mention it, haha!" Oliver handed the water to David and said with a chuckle,

As long as David was still studying here and did not want a transfer, Oliver did not care if David donated money or not.

Two hundred million was indeed a very large sum of money.

However, compared to the fame that David would bring to South River University in the future, Oliver still preferred the latter.

“Mr. Carson, although I have come back to report to the university this time, I have been really busy recently, so I have to leave in two days. I hope you can approve this.”

“It’s okay, it’s okay! As long as you come back to report yourself, the university will handle it specially for you since your situation is a little special.”

“Thank you, Mr. Carson.” “David, there is one more thing that needs your cooperation. This year’s freshmen have all arrived so there will be a welcome party tomorrow night, so I was hoping you can speak on behalf of the old students.”

“Me? Mr. Carson, that’s inappropriate, right? I’m not the most outstanding on campus either, so please just forget it,” David refused.

He only wanted to stay for two days, donate the money, and leave. He did not want to be in the limelight. “David, I know a little bit about you. You are definitely the best student in the history of South River University for having made such great achievements at this age. No, even the top universities in the world have never had a student as excellent as you. You are the pride of South River University, so whether South River University can go further and become the top three prestigious universities in the summer depends on you,” Oliver said excitedly. David knew right away that Oliver had found out about him starting East League Capitals.

After all, East League Capitals was founded in River City and its chairman was also named David Lidell. Moreover, David also donated so much money to the university.

Anyone could basically guess his identity after connecting all these dots.

“Alright then, I’ll go and say a few words when the time comes, but I hope you can keep this a secret for me, Mr. Carson. I don’t want to be regarded as an alien by everyone,” David thought for a while and said. “David, don’t worry. I will never tell anyone anything about you,” Oliver patted his chest and assured him.

While David was in Oliver’s office, word had quickly spread that he was back on campus.

David was being discussed in the university’s forum or even in the chat groups of each class. He was handsome, temperamental, and was also a kid from an affluent family. Of course, someone as popular as him on campus would naturally be very eye-catching.

I'm A Quadrillionaire chapter 708

I'm A Quadrillionaire chapter 708

I'm A Quadrillionaire chapter 708

After coming out of the chancellor Oliver's office, David walked to his class. Now that he was back, he should attend his class no matter what. After all, he was still a student of that class.

When David walked through his classroom door, he immediately caught the attention and became the focus of the whole class.

Many of the girls had joy on their faces when they spotted David.

This was because ever since David was dumped by Sarah last semester, they had yet to hear about David having an official girlfriend.

As the saying goes, they would benefit from intimacy with an influential person, and they still had a chance.

It had been a while since they saw David and David had become even more handsome. Plus, he was also a super-rich kid. How could the other boys compare to him?

Except for the three boys in the class who shared a dormitory with David and had a good relationship with David, all the other boys in the class had expressions of envy, jealousy, and hatred on their faces.

Dean, the monitor, in particular, wished David would not have shown up.

As soon as David appeared, his glow instantly dimmed.

Compared with David, he was like a firefly while David was the dazzling sun in the sky.

Knock knock knock.

David knocked on the door politely.

The lecturer turned around and saw David.

"You're back, go and sit down."

"Alright, Sir."

This chapter is provided by . Visit for daily update.

After David answered, he walked into the classroom, returned to his seat, and sat down.

He had not come back for so long and yet his seat was still empty.

The lecturer continued to lecture without saying anything.

The lecturers in his class had all been notified by chancellor Oliver.

They were to keep David's seat and it would be fine no matter when he came back. Hence, all lecturers should just keep one eye closed.

Since the chancellor said David could come to class whenever he wanted, they could only obey.

The class continued but most of the students in the class were not focusing on the lecture. Instead, they were all focusing on David.

Since the class had been going on for some time before David came to class, the bell rang soon after.

The lecturer packed up his books and left the class.

Immediately, a huge crowd came and surrounded David.

Of course, the most enthusiastic ones were David's roommates, William, Finn, and Patrick.

"Dave, it's been so long since you came to class. Where have you been?" "Yeah! I thought you dropped out! Everyone on campus is saying that you're from a rich family now. What's going on? Did you forget us after you become rich?"

"Nonsense! Dave is not like that. I believe he must have his reasons. However, since you're back, you should explain to us, right? It's been so long since you contacted us. Did you forget the days the Four Musketeers went through together?"

David's three roommates asked.

"No, how could I? I was indeed very busy recently. My family asked me to go back to take over the business, so I applied for leave for some time," David answered. He thought long and hard about what he was going on to say.

The four of them stayed in the same dorm since freshman year and they were very close. Patrick's family was the most well-off among the Four Musketeers and he never looked down on David. Whenever they went out for gatherings, Patrick would be the one paying.

Since David was rich now, naturally, he would not hide from the three. David was ready to train these three so that he could hire them to work as senior executives in East League Capitals. Moreover, David figured he would help the students in his class if he could. Now that they were seniors, they could start their external internship in the next semester.

East League Capitals was such a huge company that if he were to hire all of the seniors of South River University to work there, it would make no real difference to them.

However, he was not ready to reveal this yet. He would only think about this after everyone graduated. When the time came, he would ask his company to come here to recruit people.
