

Chapter 2037 Investigate Sonia Thoroughly

Janet had just returned home when Brandon quickly followed and watched her with a nervous gaze.

He had made arrangements earlier for the family doctor to visit. As soon as Janet arrived, they started a thorough check-up.

Surprised, Janet asked, "Was that really necessary?"

She made light of the situation, but when she noticed Brandon's look of concern, she realized he was truly worried about her. She proceeded with the medical check-up as he wished.

Thirty minutes passed, and after the doctor finished the check-up and put his tools away, he reassured Brandon, "Your wife is perfectly healthy."

"See? I told you I was alright." Janet gave Brandon a triumphant look.

Once the doctor left, Brandon embraced Janet and they returned to their room.

After Janet freshened up, she carefully massaged essential oil into her skin.

"Today, I helped Mrs. Lawrence teach her husband a lesson. You wouldn't believe how outrageous he is."

Brandon, always engulfed in his work, replied absentmindedly, "Oh? What happened?"

Janet, energized by the memory, eagerly shared the day's drama.

"Her husband brought his mistress to today's banquet. Mrs. Lawrence made it public that she was firing him from their company. It was quite the scene! Mrs. Lawrence even told me that her company will now be working closely with Rowena Studio. I only threw out an idea, and just like that, we've landed a stable partnership. It's beneficial for everyone!"

Brandon barely looked up but replied calmly, "That's because your design was impressive."

A smile of contentment spread across Janet's face.

"Oh, by the way, I ran into Sonia today. She's the one who rescued me previously. She disappeared without a farewell last time, but today she was my savior again."

As Janet shared this, Brandon, who had been engrossed in his work, stopped momentarily and became interested.

Having finished with the essential oil, Janet sat on the edge of the bed and looked earnestly at Brandon. "I feel a special bond with her, so I'm considering hiring her as my bodyguard. She's already saved me twice and clearly knows what she's doing."

"Bodyguard?" Brandon's brow furrowed slightly. "Do we need more bodyguards?"

Janet paused, then shook her head. "No, not exactly. I just feel safer with Sonia around."

She then lowered her gaze to her lower abdomen, her eyes filled with affection.

"By the way, I felt the baby move today."

Brandon had been on the verge of dismissing the idea of Sonia coming around, but Janet's words made him hold back.

He closed his notebook, stood, and walked over to Janet, embracing her while his other hand rested lightly on her belly.

"Why didn't I feel it?"

Janet laughed at his reaction and pushed him away playfully. "Well, it's not in your belly."

Brandon leaned over, pressed his ear against her stomach, and listened quietly.

They playfully tussled on the bed for a while until Janet grew sleepy and soon drifted off.

After she fell asleep, Brandon quietly left the bedroom.

He called Sean again.

"Ensure you investigate Sonia thoroughly for me!"
