I am a quadrillionaire chapter 1709—The sound of the discussions caused David's heart to turn cold.

'Archimedes?

'The first-in-line heir of the Lightfoot family?

'Didn't Cornelius, whom I just killed, call himself the second-in-line heir of the Lightfoot family?'

After connecting the dots, David finally realized who the person in front of him was.

He and Cornelius, whom he just killed, were from the same family, which was the Lightfoot family.

'What a small world.

'I just killed the second-in-line heir and now, I ran into the first-in-line heir.

'It seems that he doesn't want me to leave either.

'They're indeed from the family. They're both so overbearing.'

When David thought about how Archimedes came to him the moment he arrived, his heart shook slightly.

'Did Cornelius' murder come to light and now he's here to seek revenge?'

After thinking about it, this possibility was small,

If the Lightfoot family knew David was Cornelius' murderer and could even find out where the murder happened, they would not just send two people over.

One of them was even the first-in-line heir of the family.

'Are they not worried that I will also kill Archimedes?'

'At the end of the day, I killed the two beginner Sovereign Rankers around Cornelius.

'How would the Lightfoot family guarantee that a late Sovereign Ranker could kill me?'

'Clearly, this was unreasonable.

'If the Lightfoot family already confirmed who the murderer was, they would gather a lot of power and suppress him with everything they have. This the only way a big family would react.

"They will avenge Cornelius and at the same time, show their family's power to intimidate others.

'So, Archimedes being here is just a coincidence.

'He is not here to seek revenge.'

When David thought of this, he let out a sigh of relief on the inside.

He was not worried that the Lightfoot family would know he killed Cornelius.

Since he killed Cornelius, David was prepared to be the Lightfoot family's enemy.

He was worried that he would be found out at this critical moment.

David might not defeat the old late Sovereign Ranker next to Archimedes, but he would not be scared.

However, if they started fighting, David would surely miss the auction that he pinned all his hopes on and had prepared for a very long time.

If he missed the auction, he would not be able to spend money to get lavish points.

If that happened, David would not be able to raise his strength for the time being.

He could not accept this no matter what.

Furthermore, the Lightfoot family would also chase and kill him.

David was just a mid-Sovereign Ranker now, so even with the help of his mind power and Evil-Splitting Sword, it would not be enough to defeat a peak Sovereign Ranker or even a partial Saint.

Even if the Lightfoot family did not have Saints, David might not be able to escape the Central Sacred Continent unharmed.

Therefore, the auction was very important to David.

If nothing happened, David would become a partial Saint after the auction.

At that time, David would have the power to exterminate the entire Lightfoot family if the Saints did not show up.

Plus, Saints would not show up casually.

As long as David did not show that he had the power to crush everyone below Saint Realm, the Lightfoot family would not ask their Saint Realm grandmasters to come out.

If not, it would be making a fuss out of nothing, and also show how weak the Lightfoot family was.

I am a quadrillionaire chapter 1710—That way, David could fight or retreat depending on the situation and continue to deal with the Lightfoot family slowly.

The more he delayed, the greater his advantage.

Countless thoughts flashed across David's mind to calm him down.

He should try his best not to have any conflicts with Archimedes now.

He should think of a way to leave and then decide after participating in the auction safely.

After the discussion around him died down, David said, "My master and I have been living in seclusion this entire time, and I was only let out recently. Hence, I don't think he'll know your family."

"In seclusion? Where?" Archimedes asked curiously.

"I'm sorry, this is the secret between me and my master. I can't tell you."

"Is it a secret or are you looking down on my family and me?"

"Whatever! I have to go, so please get out of the way."

"What if I don't?" Archimedes said mockingly.

"What do you want? Is everyone from big families like you? Do you all like to make something out of nothing?"

David started to get mad.

He did not want to have any conflict with Archimedes in case it would affect the auction later. However, he could not stop the other party from causing trouble for him.

If he kept retreating, it would make the other party continue to push.

Their harsh quarrel caused the onlookers around them to show excited expressions on their faces.

Everyone loved drama.

It would be better if this escalated and it would be best if they could fight, so everyone would have something interesting to watch.

A Lightfoot family member's argument was more interesting than the argument just now.

They were not on the same level at all.

At this moment, Eamon let out a huge sigh of relief.

He joined the Heavenly Sect for so many years and he thought his cousins might have grown.

However, they were more arrogant than before. The main thing was that they were stupid and did not know how to read the room.

If Archimedes did not come in time and stopped the argument from escalating, both sides would suffer once a fight broke out.

'How should I explain to Master if they accidentally hurt Angelica?'

Eamon swore that he would not contact those two idiots the next time he came here.

If not, they would be the death of him.

Archimedes was utterly insulted by what David said.

He was the first in line heir of the family, so how dare a punk speak to him like that?

Plus, so many people were staring.

"Brat, I told you that you can leave, but you have to leave the wine jar and the wooden box on your back here. Otherwise, don't even think about stepping out of this place. This is the Central Sacred Continent, not the old growth forest where you lived in seclusion. No one can leave safely after offending me."

The first time Archimedes laid eyes on David, he felt that this kid was special.

Everyone was focused on him, but David was focusing on his food.

Plus, after Archimedes got close to him, he inexplicably felt a very disgusting energy from this kid. He smelled like blood.

This was a disgust that came from the deepest part of his heart, making Archimedes want to kill David on the spot.

It was as if he could only stop the disgust that way.

If there were not so many people here, Archimedes might not be able to hold back from killing David.

In reality, this was because David had the blood of a Lightfoot direct descendant on his hands. If the Saint Realm grandmasters of the Lightfoot family were in front of David and not Archimedes, they could tell at one glance that David had killed a direct descendant.

When someone from a family became a Saint, their blood vessels would undergo some changes.

Anyone who killed a direct descendant in this kind of family would have a faint smell of blood on them. It would only disappear as time went on.

However, only people from the same family could sense the blood, and they had to get close to the murderer to do so.

For Saints, they could sense it even at a distance,

The stronger they were, the stronger they would sense it.

Archimedes and Cornelius were direct descendants of the Lightfoot family.

Thus, Archimedes had this feeling when around David because the latter had killed Cornelius not long ago.

However, Archimedes was still young, so he did not know the reason for this.

On the other hand, Bernard, who was standing next to him, could not feel anything because he was just a collateral relative of the family.
