Chapter 1497

“Okay, drive safe,” Camryn spoke softly.

Dalton hummed and watched her get out of the car. She walked to the gate of the villa, took out her key, touched the lock, and slowly unlocked the side door.

Anyone who looked at Camryn like this would think that she was a normal person.

They would not believe that she was blind.

She could live like a normal person in familiar environments.

Dalton watched her unlock and push open the door before leaving.

Then, he saw Callum walking over.

Dalton instinctively wanted to slam on the brakes, but he drove too fast. By the time he saw Callum clearly, his car had already driven past Callum.

He gave up on braking.

Through the rear mirror, he saw Callum walking toward the Newman family villa.

Did Callum see him send Camryn back?

If he did, then there was no helping it.

Callum already misunderstood their relationship, and Camryn was unwilling to explain it to him. Dalton did not intend to reveal his true identity either, so he could use this as a chance to test if Callum was sincere to Camryn or just seeking a sense of novelty.

Camryn did not know that Callum had come.

When she pushed open the villa door, she startled the servants inside who came out to see her.

A maid came over.

“You’re back, Ms. Camryn.”

Camryn hummed.

The maid took the initiative to close the front door but saw Callum approaching. She turned to Camryn and said, "Ms. Camryn, Mr. York is here."

Camryn froze for a moment before saying calmly, "It's very late now. Please ask Mr. York to go back. We'll discuss anything he needs to say tomorrow."

Then, she went into the house.

Callum heard her words but pretended he did not. He walked inside before the maid could close the door.

When the maid saw this, she silently closed the door and withdrew.

Now, there was only Ms. Camryn and Mr. Trenton left. Mr. Trenton was still in school, but he would come home this weekend.

The servants of the Newman family were all hired by Mrs. Newman and usually stood on Mrs. Newman and Carrie's side. They listened to their orders and did many things to bully Camryn.

Now, there was only Camryn left in the family. Even if she could not see, she was still their master, so the servants' attitude toward her changed. They did not dare ignore her like before.

Whether they could stay and work here most likely depended on Camryn's decision.

Of course, there were people who thought differently. Mr. Trenton was about to take his entrance exam, and he would stay at home for a while after the exam.

Their employer, Mrs. Newman, was arrested but Mr. Trenton was still around. They thought about enduring it for now and assisting him in taking control of the Newman family after he graduated from high school. They must not let Ms. Camryn become the master of this large villa.

It seemed like Ms. Camryn was not planning to do anything to them now, but who knew if she would settle the scores later?

However, Mr. Trenton was Mrs. Newman's son. Although he was usually very caring for Ms. Camryn, the servants felt that he would certainly stand on his mother's side rather than his half-sister.

Callum took a few large strides and walked up to Camryn.

Camryn stopped when she heard footsteps. There seemed to be a shadow in front of her.

She raised her head to look at Callum quietly. She could see a black shadow, but nothing else.

“Camryn, you were with that man all day, weren’t you? Where did you go together? It’s so late now. Did he just send you back?”

Dalton’s guess was correct.

Chapter 1498

Callum saw Dalton sending Camryn back.

Before Camryn returned, Callum asked his bodyguard to drive away from the Newmans’ villa, but after thinking about it, he got out of the car midway and walked back, intending to wait for her at the entrance of her residence.

Dalton was unfamiliar with Callum, so he failed to recognize Callum by the latter’s back when he drove Camryn back in his car.

When Dalton left, Callum was only a hundred meters away from the Newmans’ villa. He saw Camryn getting out of Dalton’s car.

Callum was originally worried about Camryn, but when he saw that scene, his thoughts went haywire. The more he thought about it, the angrier and more jealous he felt.

Just what was the relationship between that man and her?

She was with him for the entire afternoon and evening.

“Tell me. Who is he?” Callum questioned her.

Camryn did not answer him and tried to walk past him.

Callum reached out to grab her wrist, pulling her back.

She tried to wrench his large hand away, but he grabbed so tightly that she could not break free.

“Please let go!”

Callum stared at her for a long time before softening his tone. “Camryn, I’m sorry. You can slap me if you’re still angry at me. You can slap me until both my cheeks are swollen and teach me a lesson.

“I promise you that I won’t treat you like that again. I won’t do that to you without your consent.

“Camryn, I don’t think of you as a task. After getting to know you, I’ve really come to like you. Putting aside my nana’s assignment, I think I already have feelings for you. It’s because I like you! that I get jealous when I see you with another man.

“But you said that we have nothing to do with each other, so I—I... I was wrong, Camryn. You can hit me and scold me, but don’t run away from me like this, okay?”

“Don’t turn off your phone. My thoughts will run wild if I can’t reach you. I worry if you get into an accident somewhere. I couldn’t focus on work the whole day. All I could think about was you.”

Callum’s apology was also laced with a confession.

He did not dare say he was in love with Camryn, but he could say that he really liked being with her.

He also liked to tease her a lot.

At first, he probably thought of her as a task given to him by his nana.

However, after being told off by his sister-in-law, he understood one thing—he had feelings for Camryn now.

Otherwise, if he did not like her, he would not care about her being intimate with another man.

He forced a kiss on her because he was jealous.

Callum thought he was well-educated and would never do something as uncouth as forcing himself on a woman.

However, he did it! He kissed her without her consent.

Camryn could not see. When he treated her like that, she must have felt that he was bullying her.

He did not respect her.

She would feel like he was treating her like a plaything.

He never played with women.

From the first time he saw her photo and his nana said that she was the wife chosen for him, he had treated her as his wife, no matter how reluctant he was initially.

Camryn's expression remained calm and quiet.

After waiting for Callum to finish, she was silent for a long time before saying softly, "Mr. York, it's very late now. I'm tired and want to rest first. Please leave, okay?"

"Camryn..."

Callum said in a low voice, "Tell me who that man is, and I'll go back."

After a moment of silence, Camryn said, "He's someone I saved fourteen years ago. We're like siblings to each other. He has a girlfriend he's about to marry."

She did not mention Dalton's name.

It was to prevent Callum from doing a background check on him.

She just told Callum that Dalton and she were like siblings.

She was telling Callum to stop thinking nonsense.

"Why didn't you mention him before?"

"Did you ask? Why would I talk about him if you've never asked?"

Callum was struck speechless.

He thought she had a monotonous circle of life. He also investigated her before and found that her life was indeed dull. However, he realized that he did not investigate her in-depth. If he had delved deeper, maybe there would have been a surprise.

Now, he really was surprised. No, he was shocked.

He was shocked by her and thought that she actually had a boyfriend. It was good if they were just like siblings.

"I'm sorry, Camryn. I misunderstood you and did something to hurt you. I'm sorry. Can you forgive me?"

Camryn was silent.

Callum saw her like this and knew that she was still angry at him.

Thinking about how she was willing to tell him her relationship with that man, Callum did not pursue the subject anymore. He took her hand and said gently, "I'll walk you inside."

Camryn pulled her hand back.

"No need, I can walk without a cane in my own home."

Callum remembered about the cane as she brought it up.

When she threw her cane at him, he caught it and left with it. He remembered that he placed it in his car...

"Camryn, your cane is still in my car. I'll pick you up tomorrow and bring you to the store, then return it to you."

Camryn's lips moved, but she did not say anything to refuse.

"You're the only one at home right now. I'll only be assured if I help you inside."

"My aunts are all around. Aunt Evelyn will come over tomorrow."

After such a major incident, Aunt Evelyn was sure to come and accompany her.

As for her two other aunts, all they knew to do was call her on the phone to yell at her or go to her, store to point at her and scold her for being an ungrateful wench. They scolded her for falsely accusing her uncle of killing her father when it was her uncle who raised her.

They said that her father's death had nothing to do with her uncle and that her father was unfortunate to have his life cut short, and so on and so forth.

Camryn knew that her two other aunts had a good relationship with her uncle, but her father was their brother too. How could they smother their conscience and say that her uncle had nothing to do with her father's death?

They went as far as to say that her father was unfortunate and had his life cut short.

Her two elder aunts were close to her uncle, who killed her father with the help of her mother, which meant that they were the same kind of people. Thus, it was not unusual for them to be able to say such a thing.

Camryn realized that fact.

Callum heard her say that her Aunt Evelyn would be coming over tomorrow. Evelyn was the elder in the family who was most concerned about Camryn. He had to come over and meet her tomorrow.

“I’ll leave after I walk you inside.”

He insisted on doing what he said he would, so Camryn said nothing more.

The two went into the house silently.

Callum kept his word and left after helping Camryn inside.

After he left, Camryn went back to the nanny’s room that she shared with. However, the nanny who was separated from her by a board had not slept yet.

The nanny heard the sound of the door opening and knew that Camryn was back. She knocked on the board.

“If you have something to say, just say it.”

Camryn spoke faintly.

The nanny asked from the other side of the board, “Ms. Camryn, are you dating Mr. York?”

“What’s it to you?”

The nanny choked.

After a moment, she smiled sheepishly. “Ms. Camryn, Mrs. Newman and Ms. Carrie were around before. They didn’t like you and targeted you all the time. We were hired by Mrs. Newman, so even if we sympathize with you, we couldn’t help you openly.

"You also know that I've never done anything to hurt you. I just don't pay much attention to you usually."

If she did not pay attention to Camryn, then she did not have to hurt her.

The nanny was neither good nor evil.

"Mrs. Newman and Ms. Carrie have been arrested, Mrs. Newman will probably get a heavy sentence, but Ms. Carrie will be released in a few years. She has always been against you. What will you do when she's released?"

"Mr. York is quite good. Most importantly, his family is powerful. If you and Mr. York get together, you must hold onto him tightly. As long as you can marry into the York family, you don't have to worry about Ms. Carrie getting back at you when she's released."

Camryn ignored her.

The nanny said so much but did not get a response, so she stopped talking.

Camryn received a phone call from Dalton, who asked if Callum and she were fine.

"I'm fine. He came to apologize. He left after helping me into the house."

Dalton was relieved and said a little more to her before hanging up.

The night passed without a word.

The next morning at daybreak, Zachary was awakened by his cell phone.

He was extremely displeased.

Groping for his phone, he answered it without looking at the screen and said in a frigid voice, "This better be important!"

Callum said carefully, "It's me, Zachary."

Zachary wanted to hang up the phone as soon as he heard Callum's voice.

Why was this guy calling at the crack of dawn?

"Don't hang up. I'm on the first floor of your house. Are you coming downstairs, or should I go upstairs and knock on the door? I don't want to wake Serenity."

Zachary's expression was sullen.

He turned to look at his wife beside him. Serenity was still sleeping soundly. He could not let his brother's knocking wake her up. He said in a low voice, "Wait there."

Callum smiled ingratiatingly. "Okay."

A few minutes later, Zachary was sitting across from his brother with a dark expression.

"What do you want? Can't you see the time? Why did you wake me up at dawn? I would've beaten you up if you weren't my brother."

Callum smiled apologetically.

"What time will Serenity wake up? I... I still want her to help put in a good word for me with Camryn."

"Callum York, do you need a spanking? Why are you bothering your sister-in-law with something so trivial? Even if you have to bother her, can't you wait until past nine?"

Callum continued to smile apologetically. "I—It's just my first time. I haven't experienced this before and feel insecure. Zachary, how were you able to stay angry at Serenity and ignore her for days?"

"Now that Camryn is cold to me, I can't stand it. I feel anxious if she doesn't forgive me."

Zachary glared at him.

Callum did not dare make another squeak.

"If you feel anxious, that's your problem. If you can't even solve a little conflict, then I advise you to tell Nana that you've decided to be a bachelor for the rest of your life."

In the past, everyone laughed at him and thought he had low EQ.

Now that it was Callum's turn, Zachary felt that his cousin's EQ was not much higher.
