Novel Married at First Sight Chapter 1760 -Callum: "Aunt Azalea's business will definitely improve."

In such a situation, ask someone to help. Callum thought that aunt Azalea's family business would soon get better, and that things would also get better for the family.

"I accept your words." Camryn knew that her aunt's family was almost bankrupt, but luckily, her cousins worked hard, and because of their hard work, the business has gotten better, and the pressure on the family's finances has gone down.

She hoped, of course, that her aunt's family business could go back to how it was before or even get better.

Her aunt's family were all good people, and good people should be rewarded with good things.

Even if the uncle occasionally voiced an opinion, believing that the aunt frequently left everything at home and ran around to heal her eyes, he nevertheless secretly provided a great deal of financial assistance and frequently inquired about better ophthalmologists.

It was very wise to tolerate her aunt who had been working for her niece for ten years since Azalea's husband had no blood relationship to her.

Callum: "When did Mr. Dal leave? Before he left, he didn't invite me to eat or drink. I want to have a few drinks with Mr. Dal."

It would be best to get Dalton drunk. Let's see how much Dalton could drink.

Camryn: "My sister-in-law misses him so much, he can't wait to go back, and even prepared a lot of gifts for my sister-in-law."

Camryn and Callum rarely gave each other gifts, and since she didn't want to be with him, she didn't.

Callum gave it away, but if she didn't accept it, she wouldn't experience the sweet feeling of being happy with each other and putting each other first.

After helping Camryn into the car and helping her fasten her seat belt, Callum walked around the car and returned to the driver's seat. He handed the bouquet of flowers to Camryn, "Help me hold the bouquet first, I don't want to let it go. When I drive, I hope I can see this bouquet."

Camryn helped him hold the bouquet, and said with a smile: "It's just a bouquet of flowers."

But Callum regarded the bouquet as a treasure.

"Even though it's just a bunch of flowers, this is the first time you've thought to give me one. I really value it a lot. After I bring it home, I'll put it in an antique vase I have. That antique vase is very valuable. The flowers you send must be placed in the most expensive vases."

Camryn: "If I send you flowers every day in the future, don't you have a vase for flower arrangement? I also have vases for sale in my shop, for you to use for flower arrangement?"

Callum laughed Said: "Okay, I'll buy as many vases as you have available for sale."

Camryn: "If I give you too many, you won't like it and might think I send you too many flowers every day, forcing you to throw out even more trash."

Callum: "No, absolutely not! If you give me a piece of grass, I will keep it."

Camryn deliberately said: "Next time I will give you a piece of grass."

Camryn: "I can accept it as long as it is given by you." No matter what it is, I like it."

Camryn turned her head to look at him, but she couldn't see anything clearly, occasionally felt a little light, but her vision was blurry, and when she blinked and wanted to take a closer look, it was pitch black again.

Camryn: "Callum, don't drive yet, I'll ask you a few words."

When Callum heard what she said and realized he was going to drive, he turned off the car, gave her a loving glance, and said: "Okay! Ask."

He kept beating the drums, not knowing what she was going to ask.

He never did anything to apologize to her. Thinking of this, Callum felt relieved again.

The most egregious thing he did was kissing her forcibly.

But that incident had passed for a long time, and her anger had long since disappeared.

"Callum, you said that you like me and love me, can you still take these words seriously?" Camryn's voice was not very loud, but she asked seriously.
