Chapter 3012

Ellis: "Joanna, in fact, whether you work in a large company or a small company, or open your own shop, everyone's ultimate goal is to make money. You are making as much money as they do now, so you should be more confident than them."

"You seem to be right." Because of Ellis' words, Joanna felt a lot more confident. When Hayden came over, he happened to see the two of them chatting passionately. "Boss, why are you here?" Harry immediately stepped forward when he saw the boss coming, "Tonight's event was a huge success. Look at how much fun everyone is having!"

Hayden: "Didn't you send me a message to ask me to come?"

Harry blushed: "I was afraid that if you wanted to know Joanna's information more? So I boldly sent it to you."

"Why did you let her come for the company's singles?" Hayden asked.

Harry: "I saw that you and Ms. Picard have a good relationship, so I agreed. Anyway, she is an outsider, and she doesn't take up much space, and she can't eat much..."

Hayden was only concerned with how many seats she took and how much food she ate.

"Your bonus is gone this month." Hayden said the most ruthless words in the calmest tone.

Harry pursed his lips, a little aggrieved, but he didn't dare to complain.

After Ellis asked the woman for her contact information, someone immediately walked up to Joanna and asked Joanna for her contact information.

"Hello, I don't know which company you are from? Can we exchange contact information?"

Joanna waved her hands awkwardly: "I don't belong to these three companies, I own a dessert shop."

"Oh, your shop supplies desserts to our company, Sterling Group, every Wednesday?" The man asked.

"Are you an employee of Sterling Group?" Joanna asked back.

"Yes! It seems that our company's desserts are really delivered by your shop. I didn't expect the owner of the dessert shop to be so young and beautiful." The man became more interested, "This is my business card, I wonder if I can add you as a friend. We can have dinner together when we are free in the future."

Out of politeness, Joanna accepted the business card from the other party.

Then turn on the phone and add friends with the other party.

Hayden saw this scene and also saw his boss appeared to be upset.

But Hayden remained silent.

"Boss, if you like Joanna, why don't you tell her directly? According to your conditions, if you tell her, she promises to agree immediately." Harry was afraid that the boss would stifle internal injuries, so he kindly said, "I see Ms. Picard is a kind of introverted woman. If you don't take the initiative, she probably won't take the initiative to confess to you."

"I admit that I do have a little affection for her, but this affection is not enough for me to confess my love to her." After Hayden finished speaking, he turned and left the banquet hall.

Harry froze in place.

What did the boss just say?

Did his boss have feelings for Joanna?

This was the first time Hayden had admitted to liking a woman.

As a qualified assistant, Harry naturally wouldn't miss this opportunity to help the boss chase women.

He immediately strode up to Joanna.

"Ms. Picard, let's talk alone!" Harry said with a smile on his face.

"Mr. Harry, is there anything you can't talk about here?" Joanna asked, "I'm here with my friend, I'm afraid he won't see me later and think I'm gone."

"It's fine to chat here, but after I say it, don't be too surprised." Harry gave her a vaccination.
