

Read I Am A Quadrillionaire Chapter 1937

I am a quadrillionaire chapter 1937-'40%?'

Cedar considered it for a moment.

He figured this number was quite reasonable.

Valerio should have considered carefully based on the actual situation before stating this number.

Cedar would agree if he did not get the news just now.

However, it was different now.

Zenon had become the head of the Saints Association.

The Fellowes family would definitely not have David and his master on their side if they did not lose more money.

So, this was still too low.

Cedar thought for a while and said, "40% is a bit low, let's do 50%! David, what do you think? We will each have half of the company and so it would not be in vain if your master decides to take action. After all, the Palmore family also has a Sacred Saint."

'50%?'

The hearts of the other three Fellowes family members sank.

It was not that they thought it was too high.

Rather, they could tell that the Fellowes family's situation was not optimistic, otherwise, the grandmaster would not have given such a high percentage.

"Cedar, 50% is fine. Let's compromise and do 45%! It'll be easier to convince my master with this number. I believe he will be satisfied, and as long as he is satisfied, everything will be fine," David said.

"Okay! Then let's do 45%. David, you've invested four hundred trillion Star Dollars, accounting for 45% of Treasure Trove's shares. Vai, immediately drew up an agreement. We still have things to do after we sign it."

“Yes, Grandmaster!” Valerio replied.

After speaking, he got up and walked out of the room.

He should do this as quickly as possible.

Shortly after, he came back with the agreement.

Both David and Cedar signed and pressed their fingerprints.

Cedar, as one of the three True Saints of the Fellowes family, could fully represent the entire Fellowes family.

After signing, David used the system to transfer 4 hundred trillion Star Dollars to Treasure Trove’s public account.

This money should have gone to the Fellowes family, but no one cared at that critical moment.

Money was not as important as their lives.

“David, I hope we will have a happy cooperation! I hope you can get your master here quickly and protect our common property,” Cedar stretched out his hand and said.

“Don’t worry! Cedar, I, David Lidell, am a man of my word and I will never let what happened last time happen again.” David also extended his hand and shook Cedar’s hand.

“Thank you!” Cedar withdrew his hand and bowed deeply to David.

He was hiding something important from David this time.

He did not tell David about how Zenon became the head of the Saints Association because he was afraid that David would choose not to help the Fellowes family anymore if he found out.

After all, no one wanted to offend a top figure like the head of the Saints Association.

Even David’s master was no exception.

So, Cedar could only hide it for the time being so he could bind David and his master to the Fellowes family.

Cedar had another question in mind.

What method did Zenon use to drive Sid, the number one of Star Kingdom, from the position of the head of the Saints Association?

It would not be so terrifying if he did it with the other four deputy heads.

If he directly defeated Sid and replaced him, then it would be very bad.

Cedar was afraid that even if David's master came forward, he might still lose his family if that were the case.

If that happened, then it meant this was the Fellowes family's fate.

In any case, David and his master were the last hope of the Fellowes family.

Even if Cedar could not save everyone in the Fellowes family, he had to keep the family's heritage so the family could continue to pass on.

"Cedar, what are you doing? Get up!"

David wanted to help Cedar up, but Cedar bent over and refused to get up.

He felt ashamed.

Seeing this, Roald, Valerio, and Alba hurriedly bowed to David.

"Please, Master David!" The three said at the same time.

How would they dare to stand if the grandmaster was bowing?

Recommended Novels