

I'm A Quadrillionaire

Chapter 1997

The Fellowes Residence in the Central Sacred Continent.

These days, the entire Fellowes family was tense.

As time went by, more and more powerhouses gathered around the Fellowes family.

Everyone in the Fellowes family understood that the day the Palmore family would take action against them was approaching.

However, aside from waiting, there was nothing they could do.

The strength of the two families were not at the same level at all.

Thus, they could only watch helplessly as the Palmore family sent more people to crowd the Fellowes Residence.

The Palmore family besieged them but did not attack.

This was mainly because Grandmaster Zenon had not completely taken control of the Saints Association yet, so he could not free his hands to deal with the three True Saints of the Fellowes family.

The second reason was that they wanted to destroy the confidence and weaken the fighting power of the Fellowes family.

If they attacked directly, the Fellowes family would fight back desperately.

If that happened, the Palmore family could win, but they would also suffer heavy losses.

However, if they besieged the Fellowes family and let the entire Fellowes family be filled with an air of despair, some of the weaker Fellowes family members would surely not be able to stand it.

As expected, some members of the Fellowes family soon begun to change sides.

They left the Fellowes family secretly. Then, they contacted the powerful members of the Palmore family and offered to provide information on their own family just to survive.

Of course, this was everything that the Palmore family wished for.

The Palmore family would take in anyone who betrayed the Fellowes family.

They promised that as long as the information provided was legit, they would spare the information provider after they wiped out the Fellowes family.

However, no one knew if the Palmore family would keep their promise or not.

The Palmore family's actions caused the internal collapse of the Fellowes family.

Soon, more than 10% of the Fellowes family's power was lost.

At this moment, the Fellowes family came back to their senses and quickly called for a meeting.

The True Saint grandmaster, Cedar, was the host.

Aside from the other two True Saints who were still recuperating, the rest of the cores were all present.

In the Fellowes family's meeting room, Cedar looked at the seniors of the Fellowes family in front of him with an unpleasant expression on his face.

He did not expect such a result.

As a member of the Fellowes family who got to enjoy everything the Fellowes family had to offer, one had to live and die with the family instead of thinking about betraying the family in order to survive when something bad happened.

Cedar could still understand if it was a collateral family member who had done this.

However, some of these traitors were direct descendants of the family, and there were even very few high-ranking members of the family amongst their ranks.

Cedar struggled to accept this.

What did this mean?

It showed that the cohesion of the Fellowes family was too poor.

He, the grandmaster, and all the senior members of the Fellowes family were responsible.

Cedar scowled.

"Everyone here is a core of the family, so I believe everyone knows what happened to the family recently. As the grandmaster of the Fellowes family, I feel very disappointed and ashamed. Why did this happen? Everyone should reflect on it."

"Grandmaster, I'm sorry! It's all my fault. I am resigning as the head of the family, and I hope you will allow it," Dane Fellowes, the head of the Fellowes family, stood up and said with a guilty expression on his face.

"You want to resign?" Cedar could not believe his ears.

The head of the Fellowes family was resigning at this moment?

"Exactly! I hope you will allow it," Dane reconfirmed.

He had no choice either.

The Fellowes family had no chance of beating the Palmore family at all. In the end, there was only one result, and that was the extermination of the family.

Once the Fellowes family was breached, the Saint Realm grandmaster and the head of the family were almost certain to die.

If others surrendered, they might have a chance of survival.

Even if they became the slaves of the Palmore family, they could at least stay alive.
